Fog Interfered With the Yacht Race Today

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—With a fog heavier than on any previous morning and but a five or six mile wind from the northward, the conditions this morning for the fourth attempt this week to sail the third of the series of the international yacht races, were far from ideal. With all, however, there was more wind than on the three previous days, when all attempts at a race were futile and there were hopes that the fog would lift and wind would increase in velocity as it blew from a favorable quarter.

At 7 o'clock the fog could not be penetrated beyond 100 feet, but in less than two hours there were indications of its lifting. The wind still held true and at 8.55 was reported officially at Sandy Hook at five miles. The sun, too, began to break through the mist and it then began to clear rapidly. Soon it was possible to see half a mile or more, blue skies were in evidence, and the prospects of a race were more encouraging than on any previous day this week.

At 8.45 o'clock Captain Wringe and Captain Barr gave orders not to make sail until the dropping fog lifted further. Captain Barr said there would be a great clearance of the fog before he would think of risking Reliance outside of the hook.

At 9.15 o'clock, however, Reliance crew began putting up their stay sail and jib in stops and Shamrock followed shortly after.

At 9.30 Reliance started for the lightship in tow, raising her mainsail as she went. At that time the wind, according to the official observer, had dropped to three miles an hour from the northeast.

Sir Thomas Lipton's guests arrived about 9.25 on the Fletcher and for the first time saw Shamrock III making preparations to leave. Shamrock left in tow at 9.38 with only her foresails in stops.

When the yachts reached the lightship, the wind had hauled around to the southeast and was blowing about five miles an hour. It was clearing gradually but the fog was still so heavy that at 10.35 the committee boat Navigator signalled a postponement of the start until later in the day.

WIND INCREASING.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. By Marconi, wireless, from yacht Chetolah:

11:10 a. m.—Light mist overhangs the course, but is rapidly disappearing.

The wind is blowing five miles an hour from the south by east.

There is a good chance for a race.

11:30 a. m.—Both boats are still in tow at the starting line awaiting the committee signals. Wind increasing.

CHURCH AND CARRIAGE FACTORY SAVED

Haverhill and Amesbury Sent Help

FIRE STARTED IN THE WALKER FACTORY

The Whole Town Was Threatened

By Associated Press to The Sun

MERRIMAC, Mass., Sept. 3.--Fire, which at one time seemed to threaten the whole town, caused a damage of $25,000 at the wooden factory of the Walker Carriage company here, today. The absence of wind made it possible for the local fire department, aided by divisions of the Amesbury and Haverhill departments, successfully to cope with the fire and prevented it from reaching adjoining buildings. The Baptist church and the Pease Carriage factory building were in danger, and it was only by the hardest kind of work on the part of the firemen that the structures were saved.

The Walker establishment was located on Mechanic street in the center of the town. It is a large, roomy wooden structure, three stories in height with a large wing in the rear. It was here that the fire was discovered by a citizen shortly before six o'clock. An alarm was sounded immediately; the whole town was aroused and all available men at once proceeded to check the progress of the flames. To this end the steamer and hand engine of the town were brought into service and an effective bucket system of throwing water on the building was employed. The inflammable nature of the structure made it easy for the fire to spread and the probability of a serious conflagration led to the asking of Haverhill and Amesbury to send apparatus. Haverhill dispatched a steamer and hose wagon and Amesbury a hose wagon. By the time this combined department had got to work, the large wing of the factory was burning furiously and nearby structures were threatened. The firemen, however, confined the blaze to the wing of the building. This contained the blacksmith shop, the body-makers room and the trimming room. The entire building was damaged by smoke.

The Walker company came here from Amesbury in July, purchasing and refitting the old Stevens factory. The first shipment of goods was made only yesterday. The fire of today is a serious blow to the concern. There is, however, a partial insurance. A score of men employed in the body-makers' room lost all their tools.

The Walker company is composed of James L. Walker and his son.

CUT HIS THROAT

Ernest Harmon of Chase Avenue Attempted Suicide

Ernest J. Harmon, a man about 50 years of age and residing at 15 Chase avenue, Pawtucketville, this morning during a temporal aberration of mind made an attempt on his life by jabbing a dull scissors in his neck. Despite the fact that medical aid was promptly summoned he was in a very weak condition when taken to St. John's hospital. His condition grew rapidly worse and at the time of going to press there was little hope for his recovery.

Harmon was employed in the street department of the city, having for a number of years been stationed in Merrimack street sweeping the street. He was an honest and industrious man and has a wife, two sons, Charles M. and Ernest N., and a daughter Etta J.

For the past two or three months Harmon had been complaining and seemed to be very despondent, having little or nothing to say at home and was always very moody. His wife and members of the family had advised him to visit a physician, but he refused to do this and at the mention of a doctor being called he at times became almost frantic. He seemed to have a horror for doctors and at different times believed that the members of his family were trying to have him sent to an hospital. Time and time again when no reference whatsoever had been made to a doctor or hospital he would start from one of his despondent spells and emphatically state that he would not go to the hospital.

While he seemed to be all right physically it was decided that it would be better for him to attend to his duties in order to have something to keep him from becoming despondent, for while at work he seemed to be in good spirits, but just as soon as work was over and he had nothing to occupy his mind he became despondent. At times it seemed as though he was improving in spirits, but he would again lapse into low spirits and have little or nothing to say.

It was thought that during some of his despondent fits he might attempt to take his life and on account of this several revolvers which were in the house were put away where he could not get at them as were his razors and other dangerous articles.

Last night he returned home from work at his usual time and after eating supper sat around and retired early. About 2 o'clock this morning he left his bed and went down stairs. His wife and daughter who have been constantly on the alert hearing him getting up, followed him down stairs and prevailed upon him to go back to bed again.

He finally consented and going up stairs went back to bed and stayed there until about 4 o'clock, when he again rose and descending to the floor below put on his shoes and taking a pair of old, dull scissors went through the kitchen into the shed and out into the garden, where he jabbed the dull prongs into his throat.

The first his wife knew of the affair was when she heard loud cries, and rushing down stairs had just reached the rear door when she saw her husband in his night attire coming towards the house.

He had both his hands to his throat and upon seeing his wife, cried, "I've done it, Mary! I've done it!" His wife was horrified with fear and arousing the other members of the house made her husband as comfortable as possible until the doctor who was summoned could arrive.

Dr. Alonzo G. Dennett was the physician summoned and he was prompt in arriving, but immediately upon seeing the condition of the man he telephoned for the ambulance. When the ambulance arrived Harmon was removed to St. John's hospital.

FIRE ON BROADWAY

Vellieux's Cash Market Badly Gutted

A lively blaze started in Vellieux's public cash market in Broadway shortly after eight o'clock last night, which necessitated the ringing in of an alarm from box 39. The local department responded promptly, and through their efforts the fire was placed under control before very much damage was done.

The fire was first discovered by Matthew Mitchell, who rushed down Broadway to where Sergt. John B. Crowley was standing, and the latter broke in the door of the store and removed what books and papers he could and to a place of safety. In the meantime an alarm from box 39 at the corner of Fletcher and Broadway was pulled in.

When the department arrived on the scene the appearance of the blaze was suggestive of a stubborn battle, but after a stream of water and a few lines from the Central chemical company had been directed onto the flames the fire was checked in short order. The interior of the building suffered to a great extent from fire, while Mr. Vellieux's stock was damaged by smoke and water. The stock is insured in the agency of Frank M. Brogan.

J. A. Green, the owner of the building, stated last night that the damage to the building would amount to over $200, and the proprietor of the store stated that a similar amount would just about cover his loss. Both losses are covered by insurance. The origin of the blaze is unknown, and of course the innocent rat and the sulphur-headed sticks have another charge to answer for.

ALL FOUND GUILTY

Tammany A. C. Men are Convicted

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—Nine defendants were arraigned before Judge Williams in the Roxbury court yesterday on the charge of illegally carrying on and promoting a boxing match at the Tammany A. C. two weeks ago. The men were Representative Daniel Donnelly, John Mack, David Leahy, George Byers, Robert Armstrong, John Thompson, John F. Doyle, Harry Sanborn and Sandy Ferguson, and each was found guilty on two counts.

Capt. Hanley and Sergt. O'Neil of division 10 conducted the government's case and Hon. Charles H. Innes appeared for the defendants.

Sergt. O'Neil testified that on the evening of Aug. 20 he telephoned from Chelsea to the club asking that two tickets be reserved for him. A patrolman from another station was with him when he telephoned, and a messenger boy was sent to get the tickets. Two officers from division 14 used the tickets.

Later he and Patrolman Skillings called at the club and the patrolman paid David Leahy $6 for tickets in an envelope marked for Mr. Sherwood. Upon cross-examination Sergt. O'Neil said he was a member of the club but had never received a membership card. When he joined the club some weeks ago he filed an application and while he had been in the club house several times, he had never seen a membership card. When he applied for admission he stated that he was a police officer.

Special Officer Kilday testified that he went to Chelsea with the sergeant and heard him telephone. He attended the exhibition in the evening. While he is not a member of the club he has been there several times and has seen the membership cards. He has also seen them presented by applicants for admission when there was an exhibition.

John Crowley, a messenger boy, testified that he was sent from Chelsea by Sergt. O'Neil, who gave him $6 for two tickets. He filled out two membership blanks and was given the tickets. Patrolmen Wylie and Skillings of division 14 testified that they were admitted to the club on the tickets ordered by telephone. Capt. Hanley testified that he sent officers to the club on the night of Aug. 20.

None of the defendants took the witness stand, and upon the conclusion of the government's case Mr. Innes made his argument. He said that nothing was shown to prove that his clients had acted in contravention to the law governing such exhibitions, and asked for their acquittal.

Judge Williams then found each defendant guilty on two counts and fined each $25 on each charge, an aggregate of $450. All appealed.

Daniel Donnelly, one of the accused, is a member of the legislature from ward 7, while all the others have been more or less prominently identified with boxing in Boston since it was revived.

It is believed that the theft at the Lawler estate was made between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning, as somebody in the house heard a noise in the yard about that time. PARKS WILL LEAD

Will Ride at Head of Labor Day Parade

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3. Samuel Parks will ride at the head of the Labor parade next Monday, and there is a strong probability that William S. Devery, who has been his friend, will ride beside him. That the man who has just come from prison will be the grand marshal of the parade was decided at a meeting of the United Board of Building Trades yesterday.

Eight other walking delegates, who will act as aids to Parks, will be on horseback. They are: Timothy McCarthy, who was indicted with Parks; Richard Carvel, M. Goldnetz, J. Mullaney, P. O'Neil, Wm. Fife, Frederick Lemm and James Anslow. Parks' organization, the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's union, will have the right of line.

Parks was forced to take to his bed yesterday. To the reaction coming after his release from Sing Sing prison and the excitement attending his welcome by his labor union friends was added a return of his malarial trouble and a decided increase in his temperature.

When asked how many men would be in line Labor Day, Parks said: "If there had not been all this trouble in the ranks, there would have been 100,000 men, but now I don't suppose there will be more than 25,000 or 30,000."

He did not seem to realize that when he said this he was admitting that 70,000 must have deserted from the faction which he leads.

When questioned about a report that he had said he had under way a new plan which would turn the tables on the employers he said, "Wouldn't I be foolish, if I had any such plan, to talk about it so that the bosses would learn all about it and be warned?"

FROM YESTERDAY'S LATE EDITIONS

MANY WITNESSES

Michael Graham and His Pal on Trial Today

The case of Michael J. Graham and Thomas Altimus, charged with larceny on eleven counts, came up for trial before Judge Hadley in police court today. Twenty-five witnesses, including several prominent business men, were sworn.

Graham and his pal went about representing themselves as solicitors for advertising for a book in aid of the Freight Handlers' Association of the Boston & Maine railroad. They succeeded in getting considerable money. Graham was arrested in this city and Altimus in Cambridge.

Charles T. Rowland of Simpson & Rowland, was the first witness. He identified the defendants as the two men who called at his store and solicited advertising in aid of the freight handlers of the Boston & Maine railroad. He gave them $5 and said he didn't expect any return for his money.

Freeman M. Bill said that the man who waited on him asked him to subscribe for a book in aid of the freight handlers of the Boston & Maine railroad. Mr. Bill told his cashier to make out a check for $5, payable to John J. McCarthy, president of the association, that they claimed to represent. The check went through and was paid.

James M. Pearson, fruit dealer in Shattuck street, told of his experience with the two young men. They told him their mission and after considerable bantering he told his cashier to give them $2. Mr. Pearson said he did not expect anything in return for the money he paid.

Miss Lydia Barker, bookkeeper for Mr. Pearson, could not identify the men in the dock. Two men called at the store and she gave one of them $2. She could not say if the defendants were the men.

Charles R. Bunker of M. Donovan & Co., said that he gave the defendants $2 and that he expected to get advertising space in the book, a prospectus of which they had with them.

Daniel F. Carroll of the firm of Carroll Bros., plumbers, Middle street, identified the defendants and stated that he had given them $5 to benefit the freight handlers of the Boston & Maine railroad.

Mr. Morse, of the firm of Derby & Morse, electricians, said that the defendants called on him at his place of business and asked him to subscribe something for the benefit of the freight handlers. Mr. Morse refused to subscribe.

The two young canvassers, however, succeeded in doing business with Lucius Derby, Mr. Morse's partner. They struck him for $25, but compromised on $3. Mr. Derby said he did not expect any return for his money. His only desire was to help the freight handlers.

Other witnesses who told of their experience with the defendants and who paid them anywhere from one to ten dollars, were C. H. Thomas of Otis Allen & Son, Frank B. Kenney of the T. C. Entwistle Co., E. A. Wilson, coal dealer, O. W. Wilder and Henry F. Whiting. Other witnesses included Mrs. Silk of Royal street, in whose ash barrel the books used by the defendants were found, and officers Bigelow, Cawley and Inspector Maher.

The president and secretary of the Freight Handlers' union, K. of L., embracing the Boston & Maine railroad and the president and secretary of the Mutual Benefit association of the southern division, B. & M. R. R., were present and said that the defendants were not authorized to collect for either one of those associations. Judge Hadley after admonishing the complainants to be more careful about how and to whom they pay money found the defendants guilty and continued them in $800, for sentence, until tomorrow morning.

Graham and Altimus may have to answer to the charge of forgery before the Lowell police get through with them. The names on two checks on which they realized were forged. The wives of both young men were in court today. Both had babies in their arms and were allowed to see their husbands after the latter were taken down stairs. Graham's father and Altimus' mother were also in court.

DOUBLE TRACKS

Will be Laid Between Lowell and Lawrence

The Boston and Northern road has completed plans for the double tracking of the road from Lowell to Lawrence.

The surveys have been made and it is said that the contract for the work has been given out.

The rails were purchased in Germany and were shipped here and now are stored in this country. President Sullivan ordered the rails in Germany because he could get them cheaper there. It is expected that the tracks will be laid and the cars running over the double rails before the snow flies. This arrangement will obviate the delay now experienced at turnouts and will go a great way toward preventing accidents, inasmuch as a car will have practically a clear track all the way between Lowell and Lawrence.

Besides it will shorten the time occupied in the trip between the two cities, and it is believed that under the new schedule the run from Lowell to Lawrence will be made in forty-five minutes and possibly in less time. One thing is certain it will also greatly lessen the time occupied in the trip from Lowell to Haverhill. Patrons of the road will be pleased with the action of the company in having the double tracks laid.

MOLLY MAGUIRES

Said to Have Broken Out Again

By Associated Press to The Sun

TAMAQUA, Pa., Sept. 2.—The continued criminality in the anthracite fields of northern Pennsylvania has only aroused a feeling of insecurity among the residents, while the authorities are very much puzzled over the mystery surrounding the numerous murders committed. It is evident that Molly Magaireism is cropping out again. Police and detectives declare that the infamous Molly Maguire brotherhood is numerically as strong in certain localities as during the early seventies.

DEAD IN CELL

EDWARD COSTELLO SUFFERED FROM DELIRIUM TREMENS.

By Associated Press to The Sun

MANCHESTER, Sept. 2.—Edward Costello, about 30 years of age, was found dead in his cell at the police station Tuesday morning about 8.30 o'clock. Costello had been suffering from the tremens and was under treatment.

Sunday, at midnight, Policeman Coolidge and Patrick Hampstead took Costello from the home of his parents, 276 Summer street, to the station. He was suffering with a slight touch of the tremens. Monday he ate heartily of some soup which his mother brought him, and apparently was coming about all right.

Early Tuesday morning, however, he grew worse and raved at times. He was visited frequently in his cell during the morning and about half an hour prior to his death was talking to Frank P. Wiggin.

At 8.30 o'clock Policeman Butler went in to see how Costello was and he found him lying on the floor dead.

The survivors are his parents and three brothers.

Mrs. Costello, mother of the dead man, said Tuesday morning that for the past two years her son had complained of pains about his heart, and she believes that heart trouble was the cause of his death.

Medical Referee Davis was summoned and viewed the body which was later turned over to Undertakers Kean & Sheehan.

STANDS BY DAUGHTER

$50,000 SUIT FOR DAMAGES MAY BE SETTLED.

By Associated Press to The Sun

STAMFORD, Ct., Sept. 2.—Miss Alice Bradley and her mother, Mrs. A. H. Seofield, have been reconciled, and Mrs. Seofield is standing by her daughter in her present trying position. The reports that there is a likelihood of settlement of the $50,000 suit for damages brought by Mrs. Quintard against Miss Bradley are unfounded. A long time ago there was some desultory talk of such a settlement of the case on a monetary basis, but there were never any definite offers made, according to Homer S. Cummings, Miss Bradley's counsel.

Mr. Cummings is prepared to go on with the trial of the case, which will probably be reached in a few weeks. A rumor that the Quintard-Goodrich show had been attached and that Miss Bradley and Quintard had separated was current here, but could not be verified. Miss Bradley's whereabouts could not be ascertained.

A prominent club woman, Mrs. Danforth, of St. Joseph, Mich., tells how she was cured of falling of the womb and its accompanying pains.

"Life looks dark indeed when a woman feels that her strength is sapping away and she has no hopes of ever being restored. Such was my feeling a few months ago when I was advised that my poor health was caused by prolapsus or falling of the womb. The words sounded like a knell to me, I felt that my sun had set; but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to me as an elixir of life; it restored the lost forces and built me up until my good health returned to me. For four months I took the medicine daily and each dose added health and strength. I am so thankful for the help I obtained through its use."—Mrs. Florence Danforth, 1007 Miles Ave., St. Joseph, Mich.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cannot be equalled by any other medicine in the world.

Entertained by French Courts Last Night

Grand Chief Ranger John F. Jandron of Worcester and the executive council of the Grand Court of Foresters paid a fraternal visit to Circles Samuel De Champlain, which after a short business session entertained the visitors royally. He was followed by Mr. Jandron, who in a brilliant discourse, told of the conditions of the order in Massachusetts. According to his statements there has been a decline in the membership during the past few years and he spoke of this as a deplorable state of affairs, and urged that more individual effort be exercised in the promotion of the order.

Refreshments were served by a committee from the French courts.

SELLING COTTON

Brown is Disposing of It Freely

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Following the uprise of cotton prices in the cotton pit Monday, when W. P. Brown, leader of the New Orleans cotton bulls, in a spectacular finish closed August transactions, September cotton and fall options broke sharply yesterday and it was very evident that the bull clique was taking advantage of the high prices and selling its accumulated stock.

Mr. Brown admitted that he was selling cotton and plenty of it, but denied with some vehemence the story that he had vaulted the speculative fence and was selling fall options short.

"I am selling cotton," said Mr. Brown, "but it is actual cotton which I own, and it is being sold to spinners for consumption."

Many traders turned a ready ear today to the story that Daniel J. Sully and Theodore H. Price had joined forces with the intention of holding Mr. Brown's grip on the cotton market. Both denied the report, and Mr. Sully personally appeared in the pit and bid for September cotton.

The breaking of the high closing prices on Monday was a general surprise to the cotton speculative public today. It was generally supposed that Mr. Brown intended to carry his deals at least through September, and possibly into the period when the effect of the new crop would be felt.

The men are supposed to have belonged to a band which has been active for several weeks in this section and the deputy has been on the watch for them.

The man who was killed had attacked Cook with a corn-knife but after a struggle the deputy managed to draw his revolver and fire, killing him instantly. After shooting the second man, Cook was joined by Charles Crowley, a resident, and they soon captured the two fleeing men.

VENTURESOME GIRL

WENT UP IN BALLOON AND MADE PARACHUTE JUMP.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Sept. 2.—Miss Carrie Meyer, aged 23 years, of this city, was upbraided by her mother Monday night because she did not come in early enough, and yesterday the young woman went to Edwin Rock to take the balloon ascension with Prof. T. H. Flowers of Boston. Just before the balloon was ready to go up Prof. Flowers was asked by Miss Meyer if he would take her up with him. He consented and she donned the stage costume which Prof. Flowers' assistant intended to wear on the ascension. Then she climbed into the balloon car and she and the professor went up. She had never before put her foot into a balloon. The balloon ascended a mile. When the balloon was within 200 feet of the earth on the downward trip, under the manipulation of Prof. Flowers, Miss Meyer dropped the remainder of the distance by the aid of a parachute. She landed in an open lot. It was stated by the young woman last night that she did the act to scare her mother because she had upbraided her for being out late nights.

WAR IS DECLARED

On "Yale Glides" and "Harvard Dips"

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Football tactics in the ball room must stop. No more "Yale glides," or "Harvard dips" or distorted attempts to tread a measure in two-four time when the music calls for three beats in a bar.

Such is the ultimatum of the American Society of Professors of Dancing, now in session here. War has been declared by the professors on what they call the invasion of their special field by college students. The dancing of the two-step to waltz time and the grotesque positions assumed by the dancers are evils attributed to the college fads that have vitiated the public tastes.

"Some of the students," said a professor from Terra Haute, Ind., "invent a series of simian contortions and football antics and give it a college name, the public thinks it is all right because the college men do it.

"Now, we want to stop all this and bring dancing back to the old style of graceful carriage that enabled the dancers to express the beauty of motion to music."

Attention was also drawn to the neglect in the large cities of the old square dances, which are still taught in the smaller centers.

SUES A BANKER

ARTIST CLAIMS THAT HE HAS HER $6,000.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW HAVEN, Ct., Sept. 2.—Mrs. Amelia E. Douglass, the artist, who has a studio at Short Beach, near Ella Wheeler Wilcox's bungalow, known as "Driftwood," brought a suit yesterday in the superior court against James H. Morton of East Haven, Ct. According to the attorneys of the artist, on Nov. 1, 1902, Mrs. Douglass came into possession of $6,000 belonging to her dead husband's estate. The artist claims that she gave Banker Morton this money to invest for her and that he failed to do so and appropriated the funds to his own use. Mrs. Douglass says she is unable to get an accounting. It is claimed in the writ by Mrs. Douglass that Morton urged her to let him invest her money, saying that she was not acquainted with investments and he, being a banker, fully understood them.

Mrs. Douglass is well known socially among the summer colony at Short Beach. She was the heroine of a Short Beach scandal recently when she drove away with her revolver two men who were trying to put into her home. She is about 50 years old.

DOUBLE MURDER

Couple Were Found Dead in Their Home

THERE WERE INDICATIONS OF A FEARFUL STRUGGLE

The Bodies Were Badly Mutilated

AN ADOPTED SON SUSPECTED BY THE POLICE

There is No Trace of Him

By Associated Press to The Sun

WARRENTON, Mo., Sept. 2.—Mr. and Mrs. Young, aged respectively 60 and 58, have been found murdered at their home on a farm within a few miles of this city. Information of the murder was found by a rural mail carrier in an anonymous letter left in a box in front of the house. The carrier at first thought the letter a hoax and did not investigate at once. The bodies were badly mutilated and indicated that there had been a fearful struggle between the aged people and their assassin.

Suspicion is directed against William E. Church, an adopted son of the murdered couple, who has disappeared and the most diligent search has failed to disclose any trace of him.

GUNNING FOR CROWS

FARMER FIRED AND FATALLY INJURED HIS DAUGHTER.

By Associated Press to The Sun

OTSEGO, Mich., Sept. 2.—Duncan Swan, a well known farmer, accidentally shot his daughter, Mary, yesterday and she died last night. Swan has been troubled with crows in his corn, and when he saw the stalks moving he fired at the corn. To his horror his daughter screamed and he found that he had shot her in the breast. She was gathering corn for dinner and her father did not know it. Swan is almost crazed.

NARROW ESCAPE

HOTEL PROPRIETOR CAME NEAR BEING ASPHYXIATED.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 1.—Philip J. Rowe, proprietor of the Hotel Chatterton, corner of Cambridge and Charles streets, had a very narrow escape from gas asphyxiation yesterday morning. Mr. Rowe, with his wife and child, occupy a suite on the second floor of the hotel, which has eight suites, each provided with a separate gas meter. Fortunately his wife and child were away on a visit, Mr. Rowe occupying his rooms alone Monday night.

He retired about 1 a. m., and as he did not arise at his usual hour, 9 a. m., his housekeeper became alarmed and went to his room to call him, about 12 o'clock. After some difficulty she succeeded in arousing him.

On getting out of bed Mr. Rowe staggered and fell upon the floor and was taken violently sick. He succeeded in opening the door, when the housekeeper discovered that the rooms were filled with gas, and in getting the windows open she also was taken ill.

Dr. Leslie was hastily summoned and succeeded in reviving Mr. Rowe, although he said that it was a close call, and had Mr. Rowe remained in the room a little longer he would undoubtedly have died. Upon the gas company being called, it was discovered that there was a defect in the meter, through which the gas had been escaping all night.

THOMAS W. HALL

Asked the Police to Arrest Him

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—A sad-looking, middle-aged man walked into the office of the captain of detectives at the Brooklyn police headquarters yesterday morning and said that he was sick, homeless and penniless. He wanted to be arrested as a vagrant.

"Indeed," he said to Detective Sergt. Lomm, to whom he was assigned as a prisoner, "I've been on the point of giving myself up to the authorities ever since I left jail, for I played a mean trick on the keepers, who had placed me on my word of honor. I broke it when I saw a chance to get out and I've been remorseful ever since.

"And I have not prospered in all that time. I have been going steadily from bad to worse and although I have committed no crime since I did not commit any then—luck has been steadily against me. I am estranged from my wife and son. I have no employment, and I am ill."

The prisoner proved to be Thomas W. Hall, who 12 years ago lived in a suburb of Boston and was generally respected. He was a salesman, doing rattle well and his wife and one child, a boy of 10, were comfortably housed, clothed and fed. One night the man had a quarrel with an Italian, a stranger to him. He said that the Italian attacked him, but being lusty he turned on his assailant and gave him a sound drubbing.

The Italian was disabled so much that he was sent to the hospital, and Hall was placed under arrest. The injured man recovered and was able to appear in court against Hall, who was convicted and sentenced to the reformatory at Concord, Mass.

The sentence was indeterminate and might have expired at the close of nine months' imprisonment if the accused had behaved himself. He was a little better than the run of prisoners who were sent to the reformatory, and the warden pitied his plight and made him a "trusty." He was employed in doing odd jobs about the office and was given the freedom of the corridors and the office buildings.

One night the prison door was open and he walked out. The escape was made on the impulse of the moment, but the delicious sensation of freedom after two months of constraint led Hall to walk rapidly away from his prison environments.

"There was one second or two," he said in his clean-cut narration to the authorities, "when I hesitated, and I had not walked many steps from the reformatory then. The sense of my own weakness came upon me. I had been trusted by the keepers and now I was violating their trust and maybe getting them into serious trouble. It was then that the impulse to return came upon me.

"But another thought came into my head. I believed that I might be able to see my wife and child and stay free, and that thought stirred me to keep on my way. As a matter of fact, I have not seen either of them since I left the prison nearly 12 years ago.

"I have heard from them in an indirect way, but I have feared to go to their home because of the dread that I would be recaptured. So I kept out of the way, and once heard from my people in a roundabout way since. I hear that my son is now in the 20's and is doing well.

"The first place that I went for when I got out of prison was Downicket. I got work there as a salesman and stayed there until I heard that there was a possibility of my recapture. Then I moved on and I have been 'moving on' ever since. I got work and managed to keep myself decently for a long time. But I felt that I have been gradually getting lower and lower.

"Many times, though, the impulse has come on me to return and give myself up. Now I am weak and sick out of work. I am desperate and do not care how soon I may be sent to the prison to work out my sentence. Then I can go out in the open and live up my friends.

"It is better that I should go back. It will be a regretful in some measure for the trust that the men who have charge of me reposed in me, even after all those years of wandering."

Detective Logan took the prisoner over to the Adams street court and he was arraigned before Magistrate Tighe as a vagrant. He very frankly stated to the magistrate that he was an escaped prisoner and briefly outlined his story to the judge.

Then he was committed to the Raymond street jail until Thursday next. By that time the authorities will have heard from the officials of the reformatory at Concord.

DR. LOUGEST
Has Had More Experience in the Treatment, and Made More Great Cures of Difficult, Protracted and Chronic Diseases and Weaknesses of Men Than Any Other Living Specialist
Dr. Lougest's treatment has been tested on more than twenty thousand (20,000) young, middle-aged and old men, who, as the results of errors or excesses, were tortured by the woes of nervous debility or decay. It has never yet failed, even in the worst cases, to bring back manly power, remove every trace or symptom of weakness, build up the physical and mental health, and prepare man anew for the duties and pleasures of both married and single life.
Lost Manhood, sexual weakness, effects of youthful indiscretions, nervous debility, pimples and blotches, hair falling out, loss of memory and energy, impotence, rheumatic pains, discharges and all private diseases quickly and permanently cured by an original and never-failing treatment. Blood poison, ulcers, stricture, varicocele and diseases of the kidneys, bladder and blood cured in the shortest possible time, without the use of mercury or hindrance from business. Dr. Lougest's treatment for the complete cure of Stricture and all unnatural discharges is the most wonderful of modern times. No matter how long the discharge has continued nor how many self-styled specialists have failed to relieve, let alone cure, Dr. Lougest will positively guarantee to stop the discharge entirely within three days by means of his New Method Treatment. This treatment removes Stricture, positively without pain, detention from business or the use of obnoxious or injurious medicines. No Experiment! No Failure! Nine-tenths of all the long standing discharges, strictures and weaknesses of men are caused by the experiments of the many inexperienced and self-styled specialists of the present day.
Many a man who has been fooled by the "Pay When Cured" racket, knows that it is the last and only resort of a dying-out pretender to get a patient into his clutches. Beware of such schemes. Don't be deceived by misleading statements such as these seemingly charitable offers.
Don't entrust your lives to anyone not qualified by years of experience to treat you. Don't even step your foot across the threshold of an office run by inexperienced, irresponsible, illiterate pretenders. You had better save your money and let your disease take its own course than be practised and experimented upon and in the end lose both your money and life.
Dr. Lougest's offices occupy the entire building of five floors at 313 Columbus avenue, and they are supplied with every known means and device that science, skill, knowledge and money can provide that will aid in determining the exact location and nature of these diseases and effecting their cure promptly and thoroughly, and by the same sure methods as are used in the most Celebrated Paris Hospitals, which invariably result in

DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Man Shot Down Woman Who Refused to Elope

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—Henry F. Edson, 30 years old, living in West 92d street, shot and killed Mrs. Fannie Pullen, 35 years of age, of West End avenue today and then shot and killed himself. The shooting occurred at Edson's residence.

The murderer and suicide was Henry Townsend Edson, aged 39 years, who was the son of former Mayor Franklin Edson and a brother of Dr. Cyrus Edson. He is said to have been insanely jealous of the woman and wanted her to go away with him. The shooting occurred in the presence of Dr. David O. Edson, the suicide's brother, his wife, Mrs. Henry T. Edson, and a baggage mover, Thomas Wood.

The families of Henry Townsend Edson and Dr. Edson, have lived together in the 92nd street house for a number of months. Today Henry T. Edson was to vacate and leave the city for a short time. According to the police and Woods, the furniture man, Edson had begged Mrs. Pullen to elope with him.

Dr. Edson told his brother he should be ashamed to make such a proposal in the presence of his wife. Townsend Edson became wildly excited and could not be calmed. He kept entreating Mrs. Pullen to leave the house and go to another state, but she refused.

When Woods entered the house, he says he saw Townsend Edson point his revolver toward Mrs. Pullen and heard him say to her:

"You must go with me. If you don't elope with me, I'll see that you go with me anyway."

Mrs. Pullen was standing facing him, her hands over her face. Then Townsend fired two shots in quick succession. The first struck Mrs. Pullen in the right side of the forehead, and the second bullet ploughed through the left cheek. Mrs. Pullen, as the first shot was fired, started to run. She had almost reached the dining room door when she fell. Edson then turned the revolver on himself, firing two shots. The first went through his head, the second entered the left breast near the heart. He dropped to the floor, his head falling across the dead woman's feet. Both died almost instantly.

Mrs. Henry T. Edson fainted and was attended by Dr. Edson who had witnessed the shooting.

Recently, Henry T. Edson had quarrelled with his wife and finally decided he would leave her. Wood, the furniture mover, was called, and began packing up bric-a-brac, preparatory to taking it to a storage house. Edson had sent for Mrs. Pullen, who was a friend of the family and she came to the house not knowing what was wanted. Wood was busy in another room and Edson and his wife, Mrs. Pullen an Dr. Edson were seated about the dining room table. Edson is said to have told his wife he could not live with her any longer and said that it would be better if they separated. This request was refused by Mrs. Edson and the approaching trouble was quieted for the time. Suddenly, it is said, Edson turned to Mrs. Pullen, in the presence of his wife and brother and asked her to go away with him to some other state where they could be happy. The proposal, evidently made in earnestness, although for the first time, came as a blow to the others. Mrs. Pullen indignantly refused the proposal and turned away from Edson. Dr. Edson severely reprimanded his brother for making any such remarks and then left the room with Mrs. Edson. Almost immediately four shots were heard. Rushing back into the room, the two were found lying on the floor, and the room was covered with blood. Dr. Edson rushed out of the house and notified the police.

Captain Nally and Detective Maloney went to the house and later took Dr. Edson and Wood to the station house as witnesses. Dr. Edson was released, and went back to care for Mrs. Edson, the widow, but Wood was detained as he had refused to make any statement. Captain Nally said, until he received permission from his employers.

Mrs. Pullen was the wife of John F. Pullen, an auditor at the Grand Central station. She had two children, a son, Tracton Pullen, 16 years old and a daughter, Mary, 11 years old. Mrs. Pullen and Mrs. Edson had been intimate friends for eleven years. Mrs. Edson had spent considerable time at Mrs. Pullen's home recently and she stayed there for the last few days. Mrs. Edson after spending last night at the Pullen house, was about to go out this morning, when the janitor of the 92d street house arrived with a note from Edson asking Mrs. Edson, his wife, and Mrs. Pullen to come to the house to see him. This they decided to do.

Henry Townsend Edson was an officer of St. Michael's Episcopal church of which the Rev. Dr. John C. Peters is rector.

Coroner Jackson, after a thorough examination of the rooms, made the following brief statement:

"The evidence from my investigation shows that the murder and suicide were premeditated. I have found letters and other papers in Edson's possession in the house that show that he had had a love affair."

When asked if the "love affair" was with Mrs. Pullen, the coroner said he could not answer, but spoke as if it was not.

HE WAS ARRESTED

Thos. Callahan Shouldn't Have Gone to Court

Jennie McClusky was in police court today charged with abandoning her 14-months-old child in Adams street last May.

Thomas Callahan, the father of the child, was an interested spectator in court and had he known just how the wheels of justice would turn he would have given the courtroom a wide berth.

He was recognized, and while he interested himself in other matters going on in court a warrant was being sworn out against him for bastardy. He never had asked for or done anything for the child.

When placed under arrest he said he was willing to marry the girl. She was willing to marry him but Judge Hadley decided he would order Callahan for the grand jury in the sum of $400. Had Callahan kept away from the court room his freedom would not have been interfered with.

THE JURY BOX

Four Names Drawn by Aldermen Today

A speedily called special meeting of the board of aldermen was held at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon for the purpose of drawing four jurors for the September session of the superior court to be held at Lowell.

At the appointed hour Aldermen Miskella, Casey, Derby, Gallagher, Hill and Molloy were on hand and the chairman called to order with a quorum present.

The chairman appointed Alderman Derby to draw the names of four jurors from the box and the drawing resulted as follows:

Isadore Turcotte, 32 Mammoth Road, bookkeeper.

Nelson Palm, 25 Fay street, gardener.

Frank H. Howard, 17 Abbott street, carpenter.

Edward Flynn, 96 Crosby street, butcher.

Chairman Miskella called attention to the fact that it is near time to select the polling places of the city and as wards five and six are without regular polling places he thought it time for the introduction of order for the appointment of a committee on polling places.

He then read the order calling for the appointment of a committee of three aldermen to act as a committee to designate the polling places. The order was adopted and Aldermen Molloy, Casey and Hill were appointed.

BOTH WILL RECOVER

LILLIAN O'HARE AND CLARE AUGUSTA ARE PROGRESSING.

Lillian O'Hare, aged 11 years and Clare Augusta, aged 20 years, who were injured in two of the local mills more than a month ago, are progressing at the Lowell hospital. While at their work they were caught in one of the machines and their scalps nearly torn from their head.

"I wore my hair pinned up at my neck and tied with a black ribbon," said Lillian O'Hare to the reporter yesterday. "I can't remember how it happened, only that there was an awful grinding pain—I thought I was dying; then everything seemed to grow dark, and when the mist fell away, I was on my way to the hospital."

"Yes," said the nurse, "Lillian was just as composed as Clare. She, too, walked into the operating room, talking very fast, talking all the time, but in every way conscious of what she was saying."

They know that they will live, for the doctors have told them that the delicate, and until a few years ago unknown operation of skin grafting will undoubtedly be successful.

The grafting in both cases had to be done so quickly that Dr. Simpson, the superintendent, took the required amount of skin from the limbs, and has since repeated the operation with marked success. The process is so slow and difficult that it is impossible for him to predict when recovery will be complete.

THEIR PLATFORM

Democrats Object to Corruptive Rule

By Associated Press to The Sun

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 2.—The democratic state convention was called to order by State Chairman Hall at 12.20 today. Following the reading of the formal call for the convention, Chairman Hall announced that William J. Brennan of Pittsburg had been selected temporary chairman by the executive committee. Mr. Brennan accepted the position in a brief speech.

The standing committees were appointed and the convention took a recess to allow the committees to dispose of the business referred to them.

THE PLATFORM ADOPTED.

"The organized democracy of Pennsylvania calls upon all Pennsylvanians to unite with it in a supreme effort to rid our commonwealth of that selfish, extravagant, corrupt and debasing rule which still control its affairs.

"We repeat the charges elaborated in the platform of our last state convention and reaffirm that to the pledges and to the candidates of the democratic party alone can the people of our state turn for deliverance from the evils under which they suffer.

"Not one pledge made by the republican machine as a condition of its continuance in power has been kept. Today we witness the astonishing spectacle of almost the entire republican press of the state and country denouncing the governor for his approval of the Grady-Sailus libel law, the product, as they declare, of the worst motives and purposes of the republican machine. This law, they charge, was deliberately intended by its authors and promoters as an assault on the freedom of the press.

"To the repeal of this measure can safely count upon the vote and effort of every democratic member of the legislature.

We denounce the republican organization for its repeated and persistent disregard of its pledges to give the state a fair ballot law, and we demand the enactment of a law which shall insure a free and equal secret ballot.

"We deplore the continued existence of labor troubles and express the hope that through concessions, moderation and fair dealing early adjustments may be reached. While we concede to capital and to employers the utmost protection guaranteed by the constitution and the laws, we also declare it to be our conviction that labor has the right to the protection which comes through organization and union.

CHICOPEE, Mass., Sept. 2.—The agent from the Dover, N. H., cotton mills, who is seeking to secure employes to work in the mills which he represents, has again visited Secretary J. S. Grobowski of the Textile Workers' union of Chicopee Falls, but Mr. Grobowski informed the Dover agent that as the local mills are now, he is in no position to offer any assistance to the Dover mills. The agent from the Dover mills waited upon Secretary Grobowski about ten days ago, at which time Mr. Grobowski offered to assist him in securing employes providing the Cudcomee manufacturing company's mill did not resume work. The mills are now operating on a full time schedule, however, and the Poles seem willing to remain at the falls.

WALL STREET GOSSIP.

By Associated Press to The Sun

10.10 a. m.—Opening prices showed slight declines on a small volume of business. St. Paul opened off 5-8 and then rallied 1-2 and Pacific Mail and Chicago Terminal pfd. were down a point. A rise of 1-4 in United States Steel was the only important exception to the downward tendency.

11 a. m.—The opening declines measured the extent of the selling movement. Subsequent dealings developed a better tone for the active stocks and the slight losses were recovered. Weakness prevailed in a number of minor stocks. Colorado Fuel losing 2 1-2, and Smelting, Consolidated Gas, Pressed Steel Car pfd. and Grass Twine pfd. a point.

Noon. The general movement of prices was quite unimportant. There was a slight rise which did not hold. Atchison and Pittsburg & C. gained 1-2. People's Gas lost 1-2 and Consolidated 2. Bonds were irregular.

1 p. m. Railway stocks held well, despite the neglect and additional sharp declines in the specialties. Anaconda declined 3 points, Metropolitan Street Railway 2 1-2, Peoples Gas 2 1-2, General Electric 2 and St. Paul and Omaha 1 1-2. North American advanced 2 and New York, Chicago & St. Louis second pfd. 6.

2 p. m. Large buying orders appeared in Atchison and the stock advanced 1 1-2. The general market hardly made any response to the rise outside of Rock Island which gained a good fraction. Metropolitan Street Railway recovered 1 1-4.

WITNESS HELMER

Gave Description of Brakes and Cars

THE PROSECUTION OF RAILROAD OFFICIALS CONTINUES

Frederick Evans Read the Company's Records

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 2.—In the trial of the officials of the North Jersey street railway company, accused of manslaughter in connection with the Clifton avenue grade crossing accident, the first witness today was Frederick Helmer, the repair man at the Clifton avenue car sheds, whose testimony was a technical description of the cars and brakes.

Frederick Evans, former secretary of Vice-president Hobart and now secretary of the public service corporation, was called upon to produce the books containing the by-laws of the North Jersey street railway company. From this the prosecutor read selected sections on the duties of directors and officials showing how the various duties are delegated from one to another, but they all are responsible for the carrying out of the rules of the company.

After Prosecutor Ryker had finished reading extracts from the by-laws of the company, he told the witness, Mr. Evans, to refer to the company's books for the year preceding the date of the accident and tell who were present at the several meetings of th executive committee of the board of directors. An investigation of the books showed that the members of the committee under indictment were at nearly all the meetings.

Mr. Riker then offered the minutes of the executive committee in evidence. Mr. Riker then proceeded to show the positions held by the indicted men on the date of the accident, but counsel for the defence said they would admit all that and the calling of witnesses was resumed, further testimony as to the accident being presented.

W. K. McFarlane, former chief engineer of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad, was called to tell what he knew about contracts made between the Morris & Essex railroad and the North Jersey Street Railway company for the placing of derailing switches. The witness admitted that he had objected to the plan of placing a derailing switch at the Clifton avenue crossing, but it would have been interlocked with thes ignal system of his railroad and would have held up trains whenever a trolley car crossed the tracks.

SOLD AT AUCTION

ASSETS OF DEFUNCT BROADWAY NATIONAL BANK.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—The final step was taken today in the tedious liquidation which followed the business crash in this city in 1900. The remaining assets of the defunct Broadway National bank, which could not be disposed by the receiver, were sold at auction at noon by Francis Penshaw, who closed out paper having a face value of $240,000 for $2700. The assets included about ninety separate items, of which about $130,000 was in notes, $100,000 in bonds, and the remainder in stock.

The Broadway bank failed in December, 1900, together with the John P. Squire company corporation, pork packers, a dozen allied companies and numerous other concerns. The bank held $155,000 of the Squire paper and was closed by the comptroller of the currency in consequence.

Directly and indirectly, the crash led to failures involving liabilities of upwards of $20,000,000. The large amount of doubtful paper afloat in the city at the time was instrumental in tional bank, and the imprisonment of the failure of the unsound Globe Naits former president.

IN COLLISION

STEAMER WHITNEY STRUCK GUNBOAT SCORPION.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The Metropolitan line steamer H. M. Whitney, bound for Boston, was in collision in the East river today with the gunboat Scorpion. The two vessels struck at a point in the river well toward the Brooklyn shore.

The Scorpion struck the Whitney on the starboard bow and drove two holes in the vessel, one about seven feet above the water line and the other about two feet above. The hole on the top was a large one and penetrated almost through to the port side. The Whitney put back to her pier, where she discharged her freight and passengers. She will be taken to the Erie basin for repairs.

The Scorpion had a large hole stove in her bow. She proceeded to the navy yard for repairs.

AMERICAN COLLEGES

TEACH SEDITION SAYS THE TURKISH MINISTER.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—The Turkish minister at Washington is reported to have declared that American colleges in Turkey teach sedition and hostility to the government. Rev. James L. Barton, D. D., foreign secretary of the American board, today said:

"I have personally visited no less than six of these colleges with whose administration I am personally acquainted. I also know the presidents of other American colleges in Turkey. These institutions do not allow any sedition or disloyalty within their walls. Both teachers and students are summarily dismissed when suspected of agitating such views. This has been the invariable custom from the foundations of the schools.

"It would be a most short-sighted policy to do otherwise, even if the administrators of these American schools felt so inclined. They would have everything to lose and nothing whatever to gain.

"American institutions in Turkey are loyal in their teaching and not abusive of the privileges granted them by the Turkish government."

BIG GOLF CONTEST

For Championship at Glen Cove, N. Y.

By Associated Press to The Sun

GLEN COVE, N. Y., Sept. 2—There was considerable interest taken in the play today when play was resumed for the national amateur golf championship. Over 100 golfers were early on the course and few of the 128 contestants in the first round defaulted.

The first pair started was E. A. Downey, Apawamis, New York, and George Coulle, of the Philadelphia country club, and the other pairs quickly followed.

E. W. Judd of Oil City, Pa., who was to have started first with C. D. Thompson of Pittsburg, won by default, as the latter failed to appear. Charles B. Corey of Boston, also won by default.

A small gallery followed the former champion, Walter J. Travis, who drove off with William S. Exsher of the Allegheney club of Pittsburg. A few minutes later Louis N. James of Chicago, the present national champion, stepped to the tee. His opponent was Archibald Graham of Paterson N. J., and the former New Jersey champion. This was expected to be one of the best matches of the day. Another good draw was that of Devereaux Emmett of Garden City and Max Behr of Morris county, N. J. In addition to Judd and Corey, these men were their way into the second round through the non-appearance of their opponents.

Paul Maruky, Garden City; C. B. Fownes, Highland Golf club, Pittsburg; Frank C. Talmage, Hillside, Philadelphia; N. J. Parker Wright, Buffalo Country club.

A large crowd was on hand to see the Travis-Foster play. Travis won the sixth hole and then led by 4 holes. William L. Hicks of the local club led Alfred L. Norris of Dyker Meadow, Brooklyn, by three on the sixth green and Archie Reid of St. Andrews was 2 down to the Bostonian, George F. Willett. G. A. Grinston of Pittsburg led R. S. Whitney, New Haven, by two holes and Joseph Lynch of Lakewood won five of the first six holes from Matthews Murray, of Englewood Golf club. Price Collier of Tuxedo led Josiah Mowry of Morristown by two holes at the sixth green. Max Behr of Morristown beat Devereaux Emmett of Garden City by 2 up and 1 to play.

Harold Wilcox of Montclair was given his match by default from James H. Snowden of Oil City, Pa.

Louis N. James of Chicago, the national golf champion, was beaten in the first round by Archibald Graham of the North Jersey club, Paterson, N. J. Graham won by 4 up and 2 to play. The first six holes were halved and then Graham won the next three. James won the eleventh hole and it was the only one he won in the match. Graham was the New Jersey champion two years ago.

DESTROY BRIDGES

Vigorous Work Authorized by Porte

By Associated Press to The Sun

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 2.—According to government advices Colonel Jankoff, the insurgent leader, who, with a strong following, is operating southward of Demotyka, has been entrusted with the task of destroying the larger bridges of the railroad running from Dedeagatch on the south coast, to Kuleli-Burgas, south of Adrianople over the Maritza and Arda rivers, so as to cut off communication with Adrianople from the south and delay the troops who are on their way to the threatened city. The government believes it has taken measures which will bring about a speedy and, it is hoped, decisive battle with the insurgent forces commanded by Colonel Jankoff. The police officials were in constant communication with the authorities at Adrianople throughout Monday formulating plans to master the situation in the vilayet.

The crowds which witnessed last night's illuminations here in honor of the anniversary of the accession of the sultan, were not so large as usual.

The police recently have been exercising great severity towards the Mussulmans suspected of inciting trouble in the disturbed villages and has arrested and banished large numbers. While the Russian squadron was in Iniada bay no less than 142 Mussulmans were expelled on account of their unconcealed hostility to Russia.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 2.—The Bulgarian agent at Uskub reports that notwithstanding the porte's promises on the occasion of the Russian demonstration in Iniada bay to dismiss 24 officials accused of malpractices by the Russian and Austrian consuls, only nine of them have been dismissed, while some of the others have been given higher posts.

LIPTON'S DENIAL

Of Rumors Concerning His Captain

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Persistent rumors were abroad last night and this morning that Sir Thomas Lipton had made two importnt assertions:

First:—That if there was any chance for Shamrock III. to win, he would depose Capt. Wringe and put the yacht under control of Mate Bevis, and, second, that Shamrock was found too long after her speedy trials and that in bringing her up to the proper measurement, she had been stripped so much as to lose her speed.

Sir Thomas was told of these rumors this morning and he said with unmistakeable emphasis:

"I am going to reiterate most strongly what I have said repeatedly. I have no criticism to make of Captain Wringe. He has done his best for me. If I should build another boat and come over here again, the captain of it would be Mr. Wringe and let that be his commendation. These stories came from people who visit me on the Erin and make their own criticisms. If I don't dissent they go away and say that I practically assent to the view they themselves have asserted.

"Now as to the second rumor, I will not deny it. It is not worth denying. Shamrock was built for me, in good faith, fully as much so as was Reliance for Mr. Iselin. Up to the time of the first race, I thought, and others thought with me, including many experts, that I had a fine boat. Reliance is better. I could not know that before the race, or else why race? I have perfect faith in my designer, my captain, and my crew and we have all done and are still doing our best. I hope this may settle this vexatious controversy. Of course, I cannot stop criticism, but I do wish that adverse criticism of my fellow-workers and my boat made by outsiders would not be credited to me because I stand by and do not make vociferous dissent."

OBJECT TO MACHINERY

FIFTY WORKMEN WENT OUT ON STRIKE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

SALEM, Mass., Sept. 2—Fifty workmen employed at the D. D. Lefavor shoe company's factory in this city in the capacity of pullers-over, struck today because they objected to the introduction of machinery into their department. The strikers are Greeks, Armenians and Poles. The factory has a large number of orders on hand at this time, and if the concern is unable to secure workmen to fill the places of the strikers the factory may be crippled. A member of the company said today that because they were unable to hire enough men in the department to do the work it was found necessary to put in the machinery. There is no grievance, however, he said, over the wages or hours of work.

SHOOTING TOURNEY

OPENED TODAY AT SEA GIRT, NEW JERSEY.

By Associated Press to The Sun

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 2—The most elaborate shooting tournament, employing the rifle, revolver, carbine and pistol, this country has ever known, opened here today. All the big states are well represented, as are the army, navy and the marine corps. Shooting in all the individual competitions, with the exception of the Wimbledon cup and the president's watch, was in order. As in these competitions re-ntries were allowable, the results will not be known until the close of the meet.

The conditions for shooting are by no means favorable, because of a haze that partly obscured the targets.

COTTON EXPORTS

Sec. Hester Makes Interesting Report

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 2.—The totals of Secretary Hester's annual report of the cotton crop of the United States were promulgated yesterday. They show receipts of cotton at all United States ports of the year 7,724,104 against 7,679,290 last year; overland to northern mills and Canada 1,057,363 against 1,103,952; southern consumption taken direct from the interior of cotton belt 1,920,072 against 1,897,127, making the cotton crop of the United States for 1902-'03 amount to 10,727,539 against 10,680,680 bales last year and 10,393,422 the year before. The report shows that cotton mills including woolen mills that have used cotton have consumed a total of 2,000,729 bales, but of this 80,657 were taken from ports and included in port receipts. This shows that the mills of the south have used up 62,900 bales more than during 1901-'02 and 37,798 more than during 1900-'01.

Secretary Hester reports the exports for the year as follows:

To Great Britain 2,851,528 against 3,035,497, a decrease of 183,969. To France 785,679, against 745,969, an increase of 39,710; to continental European ports 3,039,958 against 2,859,344, an increase of 180,614; to British North America 123,677 against 122,261, an increase of 1416; the total export foreign, including British North American amounting to 6,800,843 against 6,763,071, an increase of 37,772. He states that Japan and China took of the past crop 135,408 bales against 169,243, a decrease of 33,835.

MORE COUNSEL FEES

AWARDED TO MRS. RICH BY JUSTICE BLANCHARD.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Justice Blanchard yesterday awarded to Mrs. Nancy Rich $250 additional counsel fee to enable her to defend the appeal taken by her husband, William N. Rich, a wealthy jeweller, in his suit against her for absolute divorce.

Mr. Rich named a young Princeton student who was a frequent caller at the Rich home.

Some months ago the suit was tried before a jury, and a verdict was rendered in favor of the wife.

"At that time," said A. H. Hummel, "the court allowed Mrs. Rich $30 a week alimony. Mr. and Mrs. Rich had until then resided at 21 East Seventy-first street. But after his defeat Mr. Rich moved his family to cheaper apartments in a hotel to humiliate his wife who is a refined woman and has been accustomed to a life of luxury. Indeed, it is well known that Mr. Rich's household expenditures until the time of the trial amounted to from $12,000 to $20,000 a year.

"And now Mr. Rich is taking his 12-year-old son out nights and to the race track, evidently to make a tout of him."

Mr. Rich's lawyer said that the court order allowing Mrs. Rich $30 a week made no provision that the husband was also to furnish a home and food and clothing for her.

"And yet Mr. Rich has done all this. And the reason he removed to a hotel was for the sake of comfort. At the old home there was but one dining room, used in common, and Mr. Rich said his wife used to make his life a hell on earth. Now he can eat wherever and whenever he pleases."

After granting the $250 for counsel fee, Justice Blanchard referred the question of an increase of alimony to Justice Davis, who had granted the original alimony.

GARB OF A MONK

Donned by Suspicious Character at Fitchburg

By Associated Press to The Sun

FITCHBURG, Mass., Sept. 2.—The police of this city are searching for a man representing himself as a monk from Galway, Ireland, who has been soliciting funds in this section of the state.

According to the police, the man they are looking for is six feet tall, has grey hair and is apparently 60 years old. He was dressed like a priest and represented himself to be in search of funds to maintain a seminary at Galway.

The attention of the police was called to the man by a resident who said he had been solicited for funds and was suspicious that everything was not as represented by the alleged monk.

Chief of Police Tinsley telephoned to Rev. D. F. Feehan, pastor of St. Bernard's church and learned that the so-called monk had failed to impress any of the clergy there that he was what he claimed to be.

Police Officer William E. Hackett met the stranger and told him that Chief Tinsley wanted to see him, but the man absolutely refused and said he would not go to the station unless he went as a prisoner. The officer had not received instructions to arrest the man. The alleged monk professed his innocence of any illegal act and promised to leave town at once. The police watched out-going trains and have not seen him go. The officers have also kept watch of two other men who they say they believe came to Fitchburg with him.

PRESIDENT'S GUESTS

SENATOR BEVERIDGE DISCUSSED FEDERAL APPOINTMENTS.

By Associated Press to The Sun

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Sept. 2.—President Roosevelt had as guests at luncheon today, Senator Beveridge of Indiana and one of the latter's constituents, a Mr. Pettit, and Dr. J. H. Finley, who soon is to be installed as president of the College of the City of New York. Senator Beveridge came to see the president about some federal appointments in Indiana and to talk with him about the work of the approaching session of congress. Dr. Findley's call was social.

Later in the afternoon the president received I. N. Stevens, a newspaper editor of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Frank Mead, both of whom desired to discuss with him some western matters. Mr. Mead's mission related particularly to some Indian affairs.

BIG GATHERING

ATTRACTED BY THE REVERE CARNIVAL.

By Associated Press to The Sun

REVERE, Sept. 2.—The fair weather yesterday, made Revere Beach the objective point of many thousand pleasure seekers, attracted by the free outdoor shows of the carnival being conducted this week and next by the business men of the resort. The attendance was beyond all expectation of the managers of the carnival, but the crowd was handled well and the various amusements provided on the sands of the beach went off without a hitch.

People began to arrive at the beach long before 2 o'clock, the time of the first outdoor performance, by Reed and Shaw, called a Roman and Mexican ring act. Next the flying Gordons, a quartet of aerial acrobats, won the plaudits of thousands as they swung about amazingly on trapeze and frames high in the air.

Next came the performance of Prof. Oldrieve, the man who walks on the water.

Then came the feature of the afternoon. Prof. Oldrieve exploded four dynamite bombs in the ocean, and each one sent a hugh volume of water several hundred feet in the air, it seemed.

The effect of the electric illumination of the State boulevard along the beach, for almost a mile, was very fine last evening, for the defects of the first night, caused by the storm's interference, were remedied. At 10 o'clock there were more torpedoes explodd in the water, and calcium light effects gave a pleasing variation to the display. The programme for the evening concluded with a pyrotechnic naval battle, in which the ships engaged were on the sea instead of the land, as was necessary Monday night because of the roughness of the water.

CRUISER CLEVELAND

WAS NOT FAVORED WITH EFFICIENT FIREMEN.

By Associated Press to The Sun

PORTLAND, Maine, Sept. 2.—The trial board which witnessed the official run of the cruiser Cleveland over the Cape Ann course yesterday, was in session today figuring up the tidal corrections and otherwise preparing its report on the trip. There was one accident, the break in the hot air pump and one slow down of something over a minute to let a three-masted schooner, which crossed the line ahead of the cruiser, go by in safety.

The latter delay will be deducted from the elapsed time while the builders must stand the other. Nothing was given out today concerning the work of the board. There was a general understanding that the cruiser, while she reached a speed above the contract limit, for a portion of the run, was not driven at the required rate of 16.50 for the average. It was said here that the work of the firemen hired by the builders was inefficient and that there was no trouble with the ship. If the Cleveland fails she can be accepted at a reduced price.

BOARDER GONE

Manchester's Horse Also is Missing

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW BEDFORD, Sept. 2.—Benjamin Manchester, who lives on the New Bedford and Onset road, just west of the herring weir in Mattapoisett, has lost three star boarders, also $5, a watch and a horse and carriage.

All the losses came at the same time and were the culmination of such a long string of similar experiences that Mr. Manchester came to town yesterday to see a lawyer about it. Mr. Manchester went to Wareham yesterday with Constable Charles F. Nye, to swear out a warrant against one of his boarders, Oliver F. Hapgood, who claims Fall River as his residence.

Mr. Hapgood, who says he is an agent for a firm of nurserymen in Rochester, N. Y., arrived at Mr. Manchester's house last spring and engaged board and lodging there. After a time he went away and when he returned he brought his wife and a baby with him. He is about 25 or 30 years old. He made a hit with Mr. Manchester and soon won his way into the old gentleman's good graces. Hapgood took great interest in the household affairs. He early discovered that certain of the furniture was out of repair and at his suggestion it was sent to New Bedford to be renovated. The furniture has not yet been returned to the Manchester homestead. The carpet was dirty with the use of years and ought to be cleaned, said Hapgood. So the carpet followed the furniture and the Manchesters haven't seen it since.

By and by Hapgood brought his younger brother George to board with him. The income of the Manchesters, however, was not increased correspondingly. In fact, it remained stationary. Two weeks ago Hapgood announced that he was going away. It would only be for a week, however, and would Mr. Manchester kindly let him take his horse and carriage. The rig was Mrs. Manchester's, but her husband let Hapgood take it. He also lent him a watch and $5 for incidental expenses. The week went by, but the Hapgoods and the horse and carriage, to say nothing of the $5 and the watch, came not.

Mr. Manchester was wondering what had happened when be received a letter from Hapgood stating that the horse had broken its leg and was useless in a certain stable in Fall River. Mr. Manchester went to Fall River to see for himself, but the stableman had never heard of the horse with a broken leg. Deeply disconsolate, Mr. Manchester returned to his home to think it all over. The result of his meditations was his visit to Wareham.

When a city official wants a reelection to office he should be ready if called upon to show that he had done something to merit a reelection.

Nothing tests a law or anything else like practical application. Under the new automobile law it is found that any boy who can read and write English can get registered as a chauffeur. That is a defect in the law that should be remedied as soon as possible. As it stands now it is a practical inducement to incompetents to get registered. It is a dangerous law. The oversight here evident in the statute shows the results of hasty legislative work.

THE POLICE TO BLAME.

The local police have all to do with the enforcement of the no-license law. When the police court dock is filled with drunks and the police appear against them the conviction must come home to the minds of the spectators that the police are more to blame than the persons who are there to answer the charge of drunkenness. The police are themselves indirectly to blame; but yet they place the entire blame upon the prisoners. Judge Hadley has repeatedly told the officers that the number of drunks in court gives ample proof of the laxity with which the no license law is enforced. The demonstration given early in the year proved conclusively that the law can be enforced. Why this relaxation on the part of the police?

THE JOINT CAUCUS ACT.

An important question to be passed upon by the voters at the state election will be the adoption or rejection of the act providing for joint party caucuses for all political or municipal parties.

If the act be accepted then thereafter all the ward caucuses of all political parties will be held at the same time and place. From the fact that but one primary is provided for each ward there are serious barriers to the practical working of the act in this city. Few if any of the ward rooms would be big enough to accommodate all.

How could all the voters of ward eight be crowded into the Branch street engine house or how could all the voters of ward seven be provided with voting facilities in the Fletcher street engine house? As for ward four it is well known that the Lyon street ward room is packed to suffocation at every democratic caucus. What would be the condition of affairs if all the republicans of the ward had to assemble there and select their candidates at the same time? The thing is an actual impossibility.

Hence unless provision be made for precinct caucuses, which to our mind seems undesirable, there are insuperable obstacles to the practical working of the act in this city. Consequently it would be the best policy for Lowell voters to reject the act this year. By next year there will be a clearer idea of the law and its effect. Its working in other cities will serve to guide the voters of this city. There is no hurry about adopting the new law. We can get along very well with our present mode of selecting candidates. In the long run it may be superior to the new method provided for by the act to be submitted to the voters in November.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE WATER BOARD.

The eyes of the state are upon us for more reasons than one. The calamitous explosion brought us wide notoriety of a kind that was not at all desirable. But for the explosion we were not responsible, although it spread disaster on all sides.

But immediately after comes an epidemic of typhoid fever that has already cost as many as half a dozen lives. For that epidemic and all the lives it cost the water board is primarily responsible. We have heard the explanation of the water board and most people have accepted it, but in spite of the claim that the source of contamination of our water supply has been shut off, the cases of typhoid continue to appear and the usual percentage of the cases results in death.

There is reason to believe also that the fatalities resulting from the disease are even greater than reported as there are some doctors quite unwilling to let it appear that they lose a typhoid patient. They are ready to assign other causes of death when a typhoid patient succumbs to the disease.

If an individual was run down on the street and killed there would be a great outcry against the guilty party, but here is a case in which as many as half a dozen lives are taken through carelessness or mismanagement on the part of the water board.

The public has demanded that the source of the contamination of our water supply be removed; as still the typhoid cases are becoming more and more numerous. It appears, therefore, that the cause is still operative despite the statement of the water board.

When is the epidemic to be checked? What steps have been taken to prevent a repetition of the breaks which are said to have caused the trouble?

What steps have been taken to ascertain that all the sources of contamination have been removed or cut off? It would seem that there are still undiscovered sources of contamination as otherwise the epidemic would show signs of subsiding. On the contrary, however, the cases of typhoid reported daily show that the progress of the disease is now almost as great as at any time since its first appearance.

The water board is directly responsible for all, the Locks and Canals company indirectly. In cases where through carelessness or mismanagement a loss of life has resulted, the grand jury has indicted the parties for manslaughter.

The Newark, N. J., case is an example that should be followed in other cities for the public good.

If the water board can show that the Locks and Canals company is guilty then let the responsibility rest upon that company, but until this is proven to the satisfaction of the public the board itself will have to bear the responsibility.

What the public demands now is some assurance that the water furnished the people of this city is pure and free from typhoid germs.

The state board of health made an analysis a short time ago; but that did not show that the water was then free from typhoid germs or even from the evidences of sewage. What has been done since by the water board to purify the city water? It seems that more extraordinary steps may be necessary to purify the water and check the epidemic. The pipes have been flushed and that should carry off the contamination if there was no influx of impurities to the city mains. The water board seems to be satisfied that the source of contamination has been effectually shut off. The steady growth and continuance of the typhoid epidemic seems to prove the contrary. Which is right?

A few smallpox cases would spread great alarm, but already the deaths that have resulted from the typhoid epidemic outnumber the deaths in any of the outbreaks of smallpox during the past decade.

It does seem that the water board scarcely appreciates the seriousness of the situation.

WITH A SHOTGUN

A Bold Burglar Was Held Up

MONEY AND LOOT FOUND IN HIS POCKETS

Says He Lives in New York

By Associated Press to The Sun

BROCKTON, Sept. 3.—James E. Sawyer a West Bridgewater constable delivered for safe keeping at the Central police station yesterday afternoon a young man, who is held there charged with daylight burglary at the home of Mrs. Mary Howland, in West Bridgewater.

He gave his name first as John Enway, then said it was Tony Rose. He said he lived at 11 West street, New York, but had no special residence at present.

Constable Sawyer says that George Shipman of West Bridgewater saw the man leave an electric car just before noon and go boldly to the front door of Mrs. Howland's home, unlock it and walk in.

Shipman knew that Mrs. Howland was away, and so got his shotgun and went over to the house on West Center street. The burglar leaped out of the window and Shipman held him up. The man was later turned over to Constable Sawyer, who handcuffed him and brought him here for appearance in the police court today.

When searched the man had $9 in one pocket and $3 and some change in another. He said he got the $9 at West Bridgewater, but the $3 were his. His pockets also contained two gold rings, a gold-plated key chain, attached to a bunch of keys, gold watch and chain, cigar case, bottle of perfumery, gold-bowed spectacles, pair of kid gloves and a book containing a large number of names and addresses of different places.

He said he was 29 years old. He is of dark complexion, 5 feet 1½ inches in height, and has blue eyes. After his arrest the man handed the officer a small box, which he said he found in the house where he was arrested. It contained a pair of sleeve buttons, gold neck chain and a ring. He intimated that he had made another break in West Bridgewater earlier in the day, and that he might have a confederate working in the town.

Officer Crocker of Holbrook has been notified and may try to connect the man with some recent breaks in his town, which are supposed to have been committed by a dark-complexioned man, and it is thought he may be the man who worked so boldly recently in Whitman.

HIS PAPA'S WAD

Albert Dowd Got Away With It

Albert Dowd, the 17-year-old boy who went away with $150 of his father's money while the latter was attending a ball game at Spalding park last Monday, was arrested for the Lowell police in Providence, R. I., yesterday. Inspector Donaldson went to Providence for young Dowd today. In consequence of information received by Lieut. Brosnan, who is acting night captain in the absence of Captain Kew, he decided that young Dowd had gone to Providence and telephoned the police of that place to be on the lookout for him, with the result that his arrest followed. The boy's home is at 393 Mammoth road.

WALTHOUR'S RACE

Caldwell Defeated by the Champion

By Associated Press to The Sun

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 3.—Bobby Walthour defeated Harry Caldwell by one and a half laps last night at the Coliseum in one of the fastest 20-mile motor paced races that has ever been ridden on this track. State records from eleven to eighteen miles were broken by Caldwell but he was beaten in the last mile through losing his pace. Walthour changed motors early in the race with one of the prettiest pick-ups that has ever been made on a bicycle track. Walthour finished the race behind Hunter, who was riding the "Red Devil," on which the rear tire had been worn down to the canvas, causing it to slip on the banks. Both pace maker and rider continued their record-breaking clip with full knowledge of their peril. The 15 miles was reeled off by Caldwell in 18.58.3, a state record, while the 20-mile was in 25.31.2. The two-mile handicap was won by F. Keighley of this city and the five mile open by Marcus Hurley of New York.

AT HIGH SPEED

UNKNOWN AUTO STRUCK AND KNOCKED DOWN MAN.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WORCESTER, Sept. 3.—Israel Rose, 69 years old, an East Brookfield farmer and father of 18 children, was struck by an unknown automobile and fatally injured, near the corner of Main and Tirrell streets, in this city, about 10 o'clock last night.

He was standing on an electric car toward the center of the city, but left it at the corner of Tirrell street to wait for a Spencer-bound car to take him home. As he stepped from behind the car he came directly in front of an auto running at great speed toward Leicester.

The drivers of the automobile did not slacken their speed a particle, but kept on their wild run. Rose was thrown to the stone pavement with tremendous force and received a lacerated scalp wound, and when picked up was unconscious.

He was taken to the City hospital in the ambulance, and the physicians say he is suffering from concussion of the brain.

The identity of the auto and its occupants is unknown, but the police have started a hunt for the men who are responsible for the accident.

THE WHITE HOUSE

HAS BEEN REOPENED TO THE PUBLIC.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—After being closed several weeks, while the interior was being renovated, the White House was again opened to visitors yesterday. A large number of tourists went through the east room and the basement and first floor hallways. The three parlors and state dining room can be seen from the hallways of the first floor, to which visitors are admitted.

The ceilings of the parlors are covered with white cotton cloth so as to protect them during the summer season, and much of the furniture is likewise covered. The piano in the east room has been taken to New York for repairs.

This is the gold-leaf piano presented to the White House by one of the large piano concerns of the country. It was used at musicales and concerts last winter and will be again in use this winter.

N. E. STATISTICS

FIGURES SHOWING THE NATIVE BORN POPULATION.

The latest bulletin of the Boston statistics department contains a compilation from the reports of the twelfth census that shows by states and territories the distribution of New England born and Massachusetts-born population. It appears that there are 3,811,295 native-born persons in New England. Of these, 1,660,223 or 43.56 per cent., were born in Massachusetts. Of the 528,480 persons contributed by New England to other states and territories, 183,194 or 34.66 per cent. were born in Massachusetts. Maine has the largest percentage of persons born within the state and still living there—83.24 per cent. Rhode Island has the smallest—72.70 per cent. New Hampshire has the largest percentage of persons born in other New England states and Maine the smallest, the figures being 20.16 per cent. and 4.61 per cent., respectively. In Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island the largest percentage of the persons born in other states comes from Massachusetts; in Vermont and Connecticut the largest percentage comes from New York; in Massachusetts, from Maine. The total Massachusetts-born white population of this state numbers 1,513,059. Of these, 748,993 are of native parentage and 781,821 of foreign parentage, while 12,265 are classed as colored—the latter designation covering negroes, Chinese, Japanese and Indians. The total New England-born population of Massachusetts is 1,504,423. Of this, 950,138 are of native parentage and 540,696 of foreign parentage. The total American-born population of the state is 1,950,022, comprising 1,032,264 of native parentage and 897,886 of foreign parentage, besides 29,372 classed as colored. Of the states outside of New England, New York furnishes the largest number of Massachusetts residents—a total of 70,220. Pennsylvania comes next, with 11,020. It is notable that 5238 natives of Ohio live in Massachusetts, 4913 natives of Illinois and 1810 of California. In the population of Massachusetts natives of every state and territory of the American Union, together with the District of Columbia, and also of Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines, are included. The smallest contribution to our population is made by Alaska, which is represented by nine persons born there. Next come the Philippines with eleven persons.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling has decided that for purposes affecting deserters from the United States navy, the Spanish war ended December 10, 1898, the date of the signing of the treaty of peace. This conclusion disagrees with a ruling of the war department to the effect that the war was not closed for a demonstration purpose in that department until April 11, 1899, the date of the exchange of ratifications of the treaty.

Discourses on Ways and Means of Having the Good Times Usually Enjoyed Only by Girls Born With a Silver Spoon. Raps Higher Education. Praises Country Life -:-

THE poor envy the rich for many reasons, but to my mind the one great advantage the latter have is the power of leading healthful, strength giving, wholesome, well rounded lives—that is, if they choose to do so, which they unfortunately often do not. The man or woman of money has the great advantage of being able to live much in the open air and of enjoying all the year round sports which are events to other people—horseback riding, hunting, polo upon marriage and who hopes for a little home of her own and a reasonable amount of society, be it exalted or otherwise.

For instance, if you cannot afford both it is better to have a girl taught dancing than Greek. She will forget the Greek after the first year of her married life (if not before), and if she is a bad dancer she will be forever out of things and will miss at least a third of the good times going. A good dancer is always at her ease and is bound to and long cruises on beautiful yachts to foreign shores and over wind swept oceans.

The girl with money can improve herself in a thousand ways. If she is born homely, with a poor complexion or a scrawny neck, these can be remedied by costly treatment and massage. She cannot help being graceful because from her earliest years she has graceful examples set before her, she learns suavity from her French nurse and dainty posings in the smart dancing class she attends from babyhood. She is not allowed to grow sallow over problems which confront hard working girls nor dim her eyes with too much study. She has just enough book knowledge to enable her to carry on a conversation, and the rest is obtained by travel and association with clever people—the very best knowledge in the world. Then, too, she knows the thousand and one things so much more necessary than mere book learning. She can sail a boat, help lead a cotillion, play golf, ride to hounds, drive a four-in-hand, shoot, swim and tennis, not to speak of ordering an intricate household. Above all she starts in life fearless, independent and with a sound brain in a sound body.

Useless Book Knowledge.

But cannot the girl with moderate means imitate her in some respects, or rather cannot the parents of the girl

Bound to be a social success.

in moderate circumstances follow the same idea, for they have the ordering of that girl's life? If you and I will look upon our girlhood we can count the money which was wasted on teaching us useless things—things that now bring us neither profit nor pleasure. The higher education is all very well for certain girls, but it is a poor education for the average one. The girl I mean who does not look with scorn be a social success. She is a woman her husband is proud to take around, for although a man may not care for that sort of thing himself he does not particularly like to see his wife a wallflower.

A course of massage treatment of a skinny neck -treatment which will enable its owner to wear a dinner gown and look attractive in in the evening, is far preferable to the ability to converse about social economy or higher mathematics.

I certainly am not in favor of anything which is useless—education or anything else.

Even the girl who makes her own way in the world, who has to earn her bread and butter—not to speak of jam—may come in on this. (Dear me, how slangy I am getting!)

She can play golf.

I know of one girl, a schoolteacher, who has given herself horseback lessons and singing lessons, both great sources of enjoyment to herself and her friends. Another girl has divided her wages in three parts, one for living expenses, one for necessary clothes, the third for self improvement. Most girls spend it all for clothes.

And Why the City?

Then, too, there is this to be considered: Why live in a city cooped up in any sort of a small, dark apartment for the sake of sleeping and eating next to the Greatroxes and the Van Dollars, who never in the world bother their heads about one, when one can live in a pretty little suburb, enjoy real healthy country life, golf, driving, etc., for the same price one pays for the stuffy little apartment in town.

The sentiment in favor of suburbs is rapidly growing. The Saturday half holiday, the better rapid transit accommodations, and, above all, the gay yet wholesome suburban society life are responsible for this. In former times to live in the suburbs meant to be buried alive. Now it is no such thing. People of moderate means can have a better time in a small suburb or town than they can in the city. Golf and country clubs are responsible for this, and it is a fact that in many cases the owners of town sites have actually paid for the erection of a country club in order to attract residents. So, you see, it has become an important and recognized factor.

We are certainly learning to live, to enjoy existence in the English and the French manner, and not to gallop through it eating indigestible food served in any old way, living in overcrowded and badly ventilated houses and going through life ignoring all its finer points, as foreigners have accused us of doing.

The Glorious American Girl.

The anaemic, stoop shouldered, peevish, overdressed American girl has disappeared. In her place stands a splendid athletic, wholesome young creature, and suburban and out of door life is largely responsible for her.

I have a prophetic feeling that the time will come when women will have their own athletic and their own yacht clubs. Why, if you please, cannot two women go off for a summer vacation on a catboat or a small yacht without losing any of their womanliness? Men have such a jolly time that way. Last week I went aboard a little yacht on which two men had cruised around all summer, merely running in for a few days in the harbor of a yacht club, the courtesy of any number of clubs being always extended to a man belonging to one good one. The little boat was fitted with everything one could desire, and there was a delightful afterdeck, where the owner and his chum could sit and enjoy their cigars as their yacht swept along through the blue summer seas. That I do call a vacation—not this stuffy hotel life, with its gossip, its overdressing and its dearth of any real enjoyment.

A splendid, wholesome young creature.

PATENT LEATHER PRECEPTS.

Patent leather shoes and boots need special care to keep them nice. When they are fresh and new they should be wiped after every wearing and put away in some place, secure from dust, where the air is neither too hot nor too cold. Extremes of temperature injure the leather. When the shoes begin to show signs of wear they should be wiped with a sponge and warm water, and, after being carefully dried, should be brushed over lightly with patent leather varnish sold for the purpose. Remember never to put patent leather near the fire, for the heat is very likely to crack it.

BEAUTIFUL CHINA.

One of the most attractive dinner sets seen in the displays of summer china is royal dresden copied from a very old design. The sole decoration is a single rose spray in the middle of each piece. A most realistic rosebud tops the covers of the sugar bowls, tea and coffee pots and the smaller covered dishes.

THE SOCIAL WAR OF A DUCHESS

IT appears that Constance Edwina Cornwallis-West, known as Shelagh Cornwallis-West before her marriage to his grace Hugh Richard Arthur Grosvenor, second duke of Westminster, variously likewise earl and marquis of this, that and the other, has set her little head and her English foot against the further social recognition of American women in British society, has snubbed them even to the point of very un-high bred rudeness.

Shelagh, Shelagh, why did you do it?

You should have no particular grudge against American ladies. You yourself have a good enough position. Your husband has an income of $5 a minute, so 'tis said. While you are not nearly so beautiful or fascinating as many of the American women in London society, it is said that you know how to dress almost as well as they do, which is to your credit. It is true that, just on the eve of your marriage to 'is grace, 'is grace was served with a summons to appear in an unpleasant lawsuit brought by an enraged member of the British military, but then that has dropped out of mind; you got your big blond duke safe enough and should not have become soured against us, particularly as no American woman had anything to do with that unpleasant law case. You got your dukelet. True, it is more than possible that if the dukelet had been very poor instead of very rich he would have chosen for his wife not you, but the daughter of some healthy, hard working American billionaire, a girl who could get him out of bankruptcy, support him handsomely, brace him up and stand behind him while he took his seat in the house of lords and finally established, to go along with his strawberry leaf title, a really noble family line. She would have done this all by virtue of her strong, clean, working people's blood.

Duchess of Westminster.

But it did not happen. Your dukelet is rich because his grandfather, the first duke, increased his fortune by methods akin to those in vogue among plebeian American money "magnets," as they are sometimes called. He knew how to juggle his income returns with the best of them, that first duke. I have read a letter of his to a newspaper protesting hotly against the "wild guesses" as to the amount of his income that were published sometimes. He said report made him out more than twice as rich as he was. But the fact remains that he never would tell exactly how rich he was. A recent English writer confesses: "In these days there is always something peculiarly fascinating about the possession of great wealth." Just so.

Was it because she is so radiantly beautiful that you began your assault on American women by cruelly snubbing sweet, innocent Gladys Deacon in your husband's box at the Chester races? You are not nearly so beautiful or so "stylish" as Miss Deacon, not nearly so handsome and fascinating as your own mother was when she belonged to the "Prince of Wales' set;" but then you are good looking enough and well dressed enough not to display jealousy toward American ladies. Worst of all, you let your husband display the same rudeness to the sweet American girl when Colonel and Mrs. Cornwallis-West brought Miss Deacon to the Westminster stand at the races—even though Cornwallis-West is your own brother and a gallant soldier and a gentleman. You are young, but then you are older than your husband, and you ought to have toned him down by this time to observe at least common courtesy and good manners.

You have much to learn, Shelagh. The sooner you learn it the better for yourself. Know, first of all, you cannot possibly hurt American ladies socially. You are bucking against the hard wall on when you attempt it. Already you begin to get your "come uppance." That ball of yours, which was to be the social event of 1903 and to which you omitted to send invitations to every American woman in London society whom you dared leave out—did you not on that account receive a direct social slap in the face from your king, Albert Edward himself? He declined to attend your ball at all; the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the king's brother and sister-in-law, also refused to attend, and the actual reason was that you had snubbed American ladies who are the friends of royalty.

When he was only Prince of Wales, Albert Edward was noted for his tactfulness and genuine kindness of heart. He was too well bred to manifest toward persons entitled to respect the rudeness you and your husband were guilty of at the Chester races and your ball. How did you feel when, at that ball, your biggest lion was a young lady who had been an actress on the variety stage? It was nothing against the young lady; quite the contrary. But after all it wasn't quite like having the king and the Duke of Connaught among your guests, was it?

The good will Albert Edward showed to Americans socially when he was Prince of Wales he manifests still in the larger national field, and the American people appreciate it. There is a dream among thinkers who dwell in the United Kingdom on your side of the water, those in our great republic this side of the Atlantic, those, too, who inhabit the great continent of far away southwestern seas: among these, I say, there is a dream that English speaking peoples, united in the common ideas of human brotherhood, will be called to hold the vanguard of human civilization itself against the destructive forces even now making inroads on it. The English speaking peoples, Americans, Irish, Scotch, Canadians, English, Australians; all of them form the most powerful, most intelligent, most prosperous brotherhood ever united by common ties of kinship and the love of liberty, law and order. Human destiny itself, upward moving, glorious, demands that they go forward together, upholding one another's hands, brotherly. And you think you'll stop it by administering your infantile snub to a couple of American ladies in London society!

Heaven have mercy on your soul! Heaven broaden you to a comprehension of that larger, fuller, sweeter wisdom which radiates ever from the soul of true womanhood!

What's the good, Shelagh?

You can't do it. Your own kin and fellow countrymen will rise up against you. If American women have in British society a vogue that you are jealous of, who are to blame for it but Englishmen themselves, sprigs of young nobility who came over here and, with tears in their eyes, as it were, besought rich American girls to marry them and keep them out of the poorhouse, or at least relieve them from the necessity of shipping as table waiters on the transatlantic steamers. There be sons of British lords who are that very thing today, Shelagh.

Whether the millionaire American girls did well to take the noblemen is neither here nor there. Considering how women like you have sometimes treated our American lad es when they have thus rescued your Englishmen from the bankruptcy court, if not worse, it would probably have been just as well if they had stayed on their own side of the water and married just chivalrous, plain American husbands. But something must perhaps be forgiven to the natural jealousy the attractive American girl arouses in the British feminine breast.

Or is it because you don't like your brilliant and brainy American sister-in-law, young Cornwallis-West's wife, that you thus leap into the arena with a war whoop against all American women? Who knows? But, finally, I permit myself to commend to your consideration two general propositions. The first—one who attempts to stir up race prejudice is an enemy to civilization. The second—it is the mark of crassest, most ignorant provincialism to hold one's own town superior to other people's towns. See?

PAPER NAPERY AND TABLEWARE.

Everything in the shape of doilies, casserole frills and sherbet cups is now made of paper. They are as dainty as possible and are made to imitate the beautiful Tenerife work, Mexican drawn work and all lace patterns in the most wonderful manner. Despite their fragile appearance they are proof against liquids and do not get soggy. Salad and ice cream cases come in a variety of pleasing forms, and it is possible to carry out a color scheme with trifling expense.

For children's parties these paper dishes, supplemented by paper napkins, will relieve the anxious hostess of much apprehension in regard to breakage. For picnics they are invaluable. Not only do they save the bother of packing up and carrying home dishes, but they add materially to the beauty of the occasion.

FOR WOMEN CYCLERS.

Lady Marjorie, in the Cycle, says:

"I should like to ask all my friends to cultivate a pleasant, cheerful expression when cycling. So many girls when learning pucker their brows and look so terribly anxious and uncomfortable that when the ordeal of their initiate is over the strained look upon their faces becomes a habit and is very difficult to overcome. Keeping the eye fixed rigidly upon the front wheel or looking anxiously ahead for troubles in the way of approaching vehicles, hills, etc., educates this habit.

"Sit up and smile and look happy. You will find how much more you will enjoy your ride and with what a different aspect your friends will look upon cycling as a woman's pastime."

AN ILLITERATE ANTI.

A man opposed to woman suffrage sent to The Woman's Journal a document setting forth his principles in the following remarkable grammar and spelling:

"When arguelng the right of Woman's Suffrage you claime that Women ought to have a right to vote because she payes taxes. Allow me to inform you that Women do not pay taxes. A person tax is Poll tax (and this alone men have to pay). Taxes on property, is property, tax and the property pays it. If women ar allowed to vote they ought to pay Poll tax, to be equil with men. From one who is in favor of women attending to their buisness which is household dutis, and men attending to theirs."

THE BREATHING FAD

IT is not all a fad, or even half a fad.

Scientists agree that the air contains in itself the elements of human food, if man only knew how to extract them and combine them properly. It is believed, too, that the sun's rays convey to earth the germs of all life—that they are in the atmosphere. The more air we can breathe, therefore, and the purer it is, the more of both life and nourishment we shall draw into us. Hence the meaning is easily comprehended of Eleanor Kirk's famous saying, "Eat some air."

It is not enough to breathe as the quadrupeds do. We who have intelligence can improve on them, can develop and increase the power, health, endurance and beauty of our bodies till they are the fit housing of immortal souls. There is a breathing to be learned that will of itself help lift us to the plane of constant joy and elasticity.

The crown of womanhood is perfect health. To gain this we should use all the means at our command. Fortunately the essential materials to this end were also wisely ordained to be the cheapest, and they are air and water. The frequent bathing of the body and the habit of drinking plenty of water form an important part of the beginning of wisdom toward getting perfect health. Next undoubtedly comes habitual deep breathing, thorough aeration of the blood. You cannot have this and wear tight corsets or any confining bands about the waist. It is impossible. Let me give you the process of breathing for health, not merely for animal existence.

Have all your clothing entirely loose. Then begin and fill yourself with air, slowly, slowly. Make no effort to swell your body. It will swell itself if you just let it. Do not make any effort to breathe with your nostrils. The nostrils are merely passages to let the pure air in and the exhausted air out. The breathing effort itself should be made from the very center of your body.

Note how the great, splendid bulk of air you take in raises your chest and enlarges it. This is the true lifting of the chest you read so much about. After you have noted how the long, deep breath lifts your chest to a beautiful fullness, resolve to yourself that henceforth you will make yourself habitually carry your chest in that noble, elevated manner and then do it. The lifted chest must be kept so by the muscles about the waist, which some women allow to sag and weaken in so disgraceful a manner.

After you have slowly drawn in all the air you can hold—and you must feel as though your whole body is full of air from your toes up—then proceed to exhale. Do this slowly, taking fully as much time to exhale as you did to inhale. This is an important point in breathing instructions, that we shall exhale a breath as slowly as we inhale it. Oriental teachers enjoin this specially on their disciples.

Acquire the habit of breathing as above and you will wonder at the excellent results that follow. Have the air always the purest you can get. Half of the colds, grips and pneumonia attacks would be avoided if people ventilated their sleeping rooms properly. Immortal human beings ought at least to provide for themselves as good ventilation as turfmen provide for a race horse. It will help you much to think always that when you breathe deeply and fully you are taking in food in its purest form, which is the actual fact. Remember this and nourish yourself duly.

When you are very weary and nerveless, try the effect of the following breathing process: Have your clothing entirely free. Lie flat upon your back, out straight, every muscle in your body relaxed. Especially let the muscles around your forehead, eyes, mouth and the base of the brain lie so loose that you are not conscious of them. After having thus relaxed, begin and breathe slowly and fully from the lowest point of your body, at the very tip of the spine. Think of the breath as being drawn to this point while you inhale. Then exhale slowly and think of a nerve current as passing from the tip of your spine up the spinal cord into your brain. If you do this and note carefully you will feel an actual vibratory sensation quivering at the base of your brain and up into your head and eyes. Practice this breathing five to ten minutes at a time, especially after you are done work in the evening, and you will find it exceedingly restful and life giving. MARY GOULD LYTLE.

THE DUCHESS OF SUTHERLAND AS A COMMERCIAL TRAVELER.

The Duchess of Sutherland, who is gifted with a spirit which never wearies of doing good, showed her enthusiasm for improving the condition of the highland crofters in a characteristic fashion during a recent visit to Russia. She took with her several trunks filled with samples of the tweeds made by the Scottish peasantry, whom she and other ladies are so anxious to serve. Then she sent round to the tailors and invited them to inspect the goods and give orders for them. In this way she expects to open up a new market and thus benefit those whom she is desirous of helping in the best possible way—by enabling them to help themselves.

WHAT PRICE WEDDING?

We have grown up with the idea of different classes of funerals. In Paris the same sort of thing is done with regard to weddings, and the result strikes one as decidedly peculiar. People who wish to take one another "for better, for worse" can do so in one of ten different classes. A first class wedding costs $115, the second class runs into $95, while the nuptial knot may be tied in the tenth class for $1.20. "Why should two people spend even a dollar to be made thoroughly miserable for life?" is what a cynic said. Happily the world is not made up of cynics.

FALCONRY.

One of the fads of the fashionable society woman in England is falconry, and this old fashioned sport has quite superseded the joys of hunting, shooting and fishing. It is a very expensive amusement. A perfectly trained hawk costs about $600. The Duchess of Marlborough is particularly interested in this picturesque sport, one of its great advantages being that it can be followed all the year round.

NEW CAR LINE

Will Connect Lowell With Manchester

AND MANCHESTER WITH THE SEA

Connects With Pelham Line at Hudson

A new electric car line is in process of construction which will connect with the Pelham-Hudson line near Hudson and make direct connection with Manchester and the other cities and towns in the contemplated route.

The new route will thus give Manchester people a direct trip by trolley to the sea.

It is understood that another road connecting Manchester with the Hudson & Pelham line, by a more direct route, is under contemplation but the road now in process of construction appears to have met with the favor of the railway people, probably because it goes through a more thickly populated country. The road-bed of this new line has been built mostly through private land, thus insuring speed and comfort.

With the increased traffic that will follow the new road, it is thought that a double track will be built between Pelham and Nashua.

The Electric Railway Employes' Mutual Relief association is planning a lively winter season.

A new entertainment committee has been appointed as follows: E. E. Blaisdell, C. C. Gabrielle, Mose Sweeney, Otis Giles and Pearl Atwood. Mr. Atwood was also appointed to the investigating committee in place of E. Webber, who has left town.

MILLIONAIRE'S SON

SAYS PAWN TICKET IS HIS ONLY ASSET.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.- Charles Emil Rubsamen of Passaic, N. J., a son of the late Charles L. Rubsamen, who amassed a fortune of several millions in the silk business, owes Mrs. Grace M. Fredericks of 107 West 103d street, this city, $680.47 for board and lodging for himself and a woman and for borrowed money. The young man pleads his inability to settle the bill.

Mr. Rubsamen was examined in supplementary proceedings by Mrs. Fredericks' lawyer, William P. Burr of 35 Nassau street. He said his total assets were one pawn ticket, representing a watch and chain given to him last Christmas by his mother and pawned next day. The ticket he had turned over to his brother Ernest.

Rubsamen has a wife and four children in Passaic, but contributes nothing to their support. The brother, who holds the pawn ticket, says Charles owes him at least $2,000.

DOG SUFFOCATED

THIEVES KILL ANIMAL AT BRIDGEWATER AND RIFLE HOUSE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BRIDGEWATER, Sept. 3—The house on South street, occupied by Justin Hill, was entered by burglars yesterday during the absence of the family, and a sum of money secured.

The thieves found a hound that the family had left at home. The dog was hitched to a hogshead which was used as a kennel, and this the thieves turned over on the animal and suffocated him.

STAY OF LIFE

AGED DOG HAS MADE A GREAT FIGHT.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WINSTED, Conn., Sept. 3.—After persistent but unsuccessful efforts to kill him, a bulldog belonging to Jeremiah Falvey of the Cyclone Hill district, has been granted another stay of life.

Because of its advanced age the dog became a nuisance to Mr. Falvey's mother, and a few weeks ago she engaged Benjamin Morgan to kill it. Morgan fired a dozen shots at the dog, but only one took effect, that passing through the ear. The dog was then given some poisoned meat and buried in a lot some distance in the rear of the Falvey house.

To the surprise of Mrs. Falvey, the dog reappeared the following day.

Yesterday Falvey took the dog out in a boat in the lake, tied a rope around its neck, and after fastening a large stone to the other end of the rope, threw the dog, rope and stone into the water.

Falvey had arrived home and was telling his mother that he bet the bulldog would return again when sure enough the dog came walking into the dooryard with the cord still around its neck.

Mrs. Falvey has now decided to keep the dog till it dies a natural death.

POLO NOTES.

Walter E. Petty, manager of the Muncie polo team, has his team made up for the season of 1903-04, and as it is made up mostly from the members of the champion Lowell team for two years, there is little doubt but that Muncie will land the pennant.

Eddie Higgins, of Providence, will play first rush, while his partner will be "Bob" Hart. Fred Jean will captain the team and play at centre, while little Tommy Holderness will be at his old position at half back. Davy Cusick, the champion club swinger, will occupy a position in front of the cage.

In regard to the make-up of the team, the Muncie Star has the following:

Polo fans of Muncie could have asked Manager Petty to do but little better. Each of the five men signed has played in this city and have a host of admirers and friends here. Their ability to play polo and play it in championship form is unquestioned. With five such men Muncie ought to head the rakewalk next season. All that is necessary is the development of team work. With Fred Jean, the famous center who led the champion Lowell team to victory for two seasons, to captain this team, it will soon be working like a clock.

It is hardly necessary to mention the players individually. Eddie Higgins won a home in Muncie two years ago when his brilliant work brought the fans to their feet in every game. There is hardly a faster man in the game. "Bobby" Hart will make a good mate. He is fast, has the weight and can drive at the nets from any direction.

Fred Jean is in a class by himself as a middleman. Wherever he has played the followers of the game have accorded him the honor of being the peerless player of all players. As a half-back Tommy Holderness is little but he is mighty. For two years he played half-back on the champion Lowell team. Dave Cusick will receive a royal welcome back to Muncie. The flaxen-haired boy played a brilliant game before the basket last year under adverse circumstances. The defense of the team before him was not as strong as it should have been. Cusick worked like a Trojan in every game and kept at the head of the goal tenders with ease.

The announcement of the line-up will make the fans doubly anxious to see the season reopen. Manager Petty will be congratulated in getting the team that he has signed for next year, according to his telegram.

CYCLE NEWS

It remained for the giant from the hills of Old New Hampshire to smash the hour record, completing over fifty miles in the sixty minutes, and but for the fact that his pacing machine went to the bad during the latter part of the race he would have ground out over 51 miles during the hour. He rode on an average of a 1.12 clip for every mile, but prior to the 46th mile he was going at the rate of 1.10. His fastest mile was the 45th which he covered in 1.09 3-5, but the 46th was the fatal mile, his time for that one being 1.33. This was due to the fact that his machine got out of order and he went several laps unpaced. It was hard luck for Harry after working so hard, but there is little doubt but that he will cover the 51 miles or possibly 52 before the end of the season.

The same Harry Caldwell who was scheduled to appear at the local coliseum to meet Walthour, but who had to cancel his engagement after two postponements, will meet George Leander, the six-day champion, at the coliseum track tomorrow. Leander is going good, having defeated Lawson and Stinson at Providence on Monday night.

Tonight Bobby Walthour, who rode circles around Stinson, will meet Gussie Lawson, the terrible Swede, in a fifteen-mile motor paced race at the coliseum in Lakeview avenue. Nelson was supposed to meet Lawson, but owing to the former's illness Walthour was substituted.

On Saturday night the winners of the two previous nights will meet and the wise ones have picked Walthour and Caldwell as the winners. If the above named riders win their races the race on Saturday night will be one of the best that can be billed.

In the second game New Bedford had all the better of it as regards hitting, but Harrison kept them scattered and at the end of the ninth inning the score was tied 2 to 2. NO ERRORS FOR FALL RIVER.

By Associated Press to The Sun

HAVERHILL, Sept. 3.—Fall River defeated the home team in an errorless game today by superior batting. The visitors started out strongly on Dupee but after the fifth inning could do nothing against him until the ninth. The locals scored entirely on home runs by Kelley, Calhoun and O'Brien. DIAMOND NOTES.

It kind of looks as if the pennant would float o'er the Lake.

Manager Patsey Donovan of the St. Louis National League club was a spectator at yesterday's game. Manager Donavon was favorably impressed with the work of the Lawrence team and said that the New England league patrons were seeing as good baseball as any minor league in the country furnished.—Lawrence Sun.

Tom McCarthy made a great stunt with New Bedford Tuesday. In the first game he got one Hit and by the second, three hits. He accepted five chances without an error and made three runs.

Nashua has the series with Manchester, having won nine out of the fifteen games. Lowell won three and lost one game to Manchester, while Gokey won four and lost one. Morrissey pitched five games against Nashua, winning two and losing three. The last four games played have been victories for Nashua.

The Manchester Union gives this account of the trouble:

In addition to the wretched exhibition given by the local players, Mr. Kerins, umpire, rendered a few decisions that were poor, but which were of the same caliber that he has been handing out since his appearance in this city. The appearance of such a man as Kerins on a ball field is enough to take the pluck out of any ball team. On two or three occasions yesterday Kerins allowed the visitors to kill time by throwing the ball about the diamond.

Again in the second inning, when Whiting jostled him about the diamond, and poked him in the ribs, he wanted to fight, and had it not been for the interference of the players there would have been a slugging match instead of a ball game.

The row started as the result of Kerins calling a ball on Hafford, which it was plain to see struck him on the elbow. The ball bounded back to the stand. Hooker was on first base, and he went to second and continued to third. Whiting and the umpire had engaged in conversation and the other players were also taking a hand. Cote threw the ball to Rapp, who did not see it, and Hooker came in. In the meantime Whiting rushed at Kerins and poked him in the ribs. Kerins ordered him off the grounds, and Whiting threw his glove at him, hitting him in the head. Kerins then rushed at Whiting, when the police came into evidence and put a stop to the proceedings. Whiting was benched, and Leith took his place. Whiting's conduct was uncalled for, but Kerins should have shown that he was running the game, and not attempt to give an exhibition of a fight.

In the second inning Kane had his finger hurt, and he retired in favor of Murray, who came in from center field. Graham went to center and Morrissey to right, and in this way the Manchesters finished out the game.

After the game Kerins made a monkey out of Whiting before many spectators. He went into the hotel where both teams were and told Whiting that if the latter was desirous of showing his ability as a scrapper, he would accommodate him forthwith, and would go any place with him that he might designate. Whiting promptly quit.

WILL GO TO JURY

Supreme Court Decides on McDermott Case

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—The suit for $10,000 damages for personal injuries brought by Margaret Irene McDermott against the Boston Elevated company will be submitted to a jury. The supreme court yesterday sustained exceptions taken by the plaintiff to the ruling of the superior court on motion of the defendant that for want of due care the plaintiff could not recover. The ruling was made at the close of the evidence for the plaintiff at the trial sometime ago.

The plaintiff, aged six years, was on her way to school at the time of the accident at the intersection of Highland avenue with Cherry street, Somerville. Several of her playmates had crossed the street and she followed but as she reached the track the car came along, knocking her down.

The court says: "The plaintiff was properly on the crosswalk where foot travelers crossing Highland avenue at that point would be and had a right to rely on the presumption that the servants of the defendant, knowing the use of the walk by children going to the Burns school, would pay that regard to those lawfully in the street at that place which reasonable care and diligence required. It might be found that it would be childlike and natural for her to follow her companions and to pay no close attention to surrounding conditions. For these reasons it can not be said as matter of law that the plaintiff's failure either to look and ascertain if a car was coming, or to listen for the ringing of the gong, or to fully appreciate the possibility that cars passing the crossing would run at such speed that she might be struck before she passed over the track, was contributory negligence. Upon the evidence a jury could find that the plaintiff was in the exercise of such care as might be expected of the ordinary prudent child of her age, and there must be a new trial."

AS A REWARD

JOHN D. DICKIE MADE JANITOR OF NEW COURT HOUSE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

LAWRENCE, Sept. 3.—The statement that John D. Dickie had been appointed by the county commissioners to the position of janitor of the new court house here occasioned much comment here yesterday. The question is asked if this is not a reward for Dickie's work in the last contest for the republican nomination between Commissioner Sawyer and Joseph E. Buswell of Methuen.

Dickie was a zealous worker for the former, and it is said took a prominent part in securing a portion of the delegates here for the candidate from the lower end of the county. The salary will be $1000, according to the report.

PARTNER ARRESTED

SAMUEL BEEGEL HAS RETURNED TO HIS WIFE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Samuel Beegel, until recently a manufacturer of trunks, was sued some time ago by his wife for a separation and left town, as he sets forth in law papers filed in the supreme court yesterday, on the advice of his partner, Abraham Goldenblum, so as to escape paying alimony to his wife. Beegel returned to town a few weeks ago and affected a reconciliation with his wife. He asserts that he then discovered that his partner had, during his absence, sold out their business—the Eagle Trunk & Bag company.

Yesterday Steur & Hoffman, in behalf of Beegel, made an application to Justice Blanchard, in special term, part 1, of the supreme court, to have a receiver appointed for the assets, outstanding accounts and effects of the copartnership conducted by Beegel & Goldenblum, pending the determination of a suit which Beegel has begun to compel Goldenblum to account to him for his share of the proceeds of the sale of the business.

Beegel sets forth in his complaint that his partner, in violation of their copartnership agreement and without his consent and against his wishes, sold and disposed of the entire stock and business of the copartnership and has since repeatedly refused to account to him the plaintiff—for his share of the profits.

DESIGNING SCHOOL

FALL RIVER WILL HAVE ONE WORTH $100,000.

By Associated Press to The Sun

FALL RIVER, Sept. 3 The announcement was made yesterday that William Lindsay of London, Eng., would present the city of Fall River with a building to cost, with equipment, $100,000, to be used as a school of draughting and designing in connection with the Bradford Durfee Textile school, now practically ready for dedication and occupancy.

The donor was born, raised and educated in this city. In recent years he has made a large fortune in London. The building will adjoin the textile school on Elm street, and will be known as the William Lindsay school in honor of the donor's father, who was for many years a leading manufacturer and treasurer of the Westmore mills.

SECURITIES GONE

Well Known Clubman and $560,000 are Missing

By Associated Press to The Sun

BALTIMORE, Sept. 3.—Society and club circles were greatly exercised yesterday by the announcement that William T. Tucker, connected with the firm of Tucker, Smith & Co., and a member of the Maryland, Baltimore and Elkridge clubs, had disappeared, and that $560,000 in securities of the estate of his father, the late Wesley A. Tucker, is missing.

The securities had been deposited by his mother in a box in the vaults of the Mercantile trust and deposit company.

Tucker left Baltimore six weeks ago. Recently his mother was summoned from Europe by cable. She returned by the next steamer and, accompanied by one of her daughters, Mrs. George H. Glover of New York, and an officer of court having jurisdiction over the estate, went to the deposit company. It was necessary to break open the strong box as the mother did not have the key.

Then the startling revelation came that there was a defalcation amounting to $560,000, and that of all the property existing when given over to the care of William T. Tucker there was only $93,000 left.

It appears that Mrs. Tucker had absolute faith in her son and refused to credit stories of his dissipation, and was deaf as well to suggestions that the estate be taken out of his hands.

The implicit confidence placed in him is demonstrated by the fact that he was authorized to open the safe deposit box alone, an exceptional privilege.

Tucker, who is 35 years old, had been plunging in stocks. Two women figure in his escapades. One went to Central America with him, but returned later.

Recently he was defendant in a suit brought by Miss Sarah C. Morris of Baltimore, who demanded $41,000 damages. Of this amount she declared that $2400 had been loaned by her to Tucker. She asked $25,000 for breach of promise and $10,000 for alleged assault.

To recover the $2400 suit was brought for $6000.

The woman who is said to have accompanied Tucker to Central America is said to have lived in South Baltimore. Acquaintances of Tucker do not even know her name and had never heard of her until recently.

The trust company was not in any way identified with the estate. Tucker was co-trustee with his mother.

It was a rule of the company to advise against co-trustees granting authority to each other to open safe deposit boxes which they jointly held unless both were present. When Mrs. Tucker and her son gave notice of their arrangement, the management of the trust company advised against it, and has since adopted a rule by which no boxes can be rented to co-trustees under such terms.

Tucker was under no bonds, and there is no evident chance of recovering any of the losses to the estate. There is possibility of suit against a brokerage house which represented him in the sale of securities belonging to the estate, but no decision has been reached on this point.

The young man is understood to have left a written confession. It is also stated that he told the woman who went with him to Central America when they arrived there, that he was short in his accounts with the estate, and this caused her to return to Baltimore.

Information of Tucker's whereabouts was received by the family through this source.

In connection with the discovery of the shortage and disappearance of Tucker it is recalled that he was for a short time trustee of the estate of the late H. C. Smith. He held this place about a year, but heirs of the estate objected to him, and insisted that a corporate trusteeship be substituted. It was then arranged to place the Smith estate in the hands of the Safe Deposit and Trust company.

Mr. Smith was a partner of the late Wesley A. Tucker in the firm of Tucker, Smith & Co. William T. Tucker is the only surviving son of Wesley A. Tucker. The estates of Wesley A. Tucker and H. C. Smith were worth about $650,000 each.

RECEIVER NAMED

Misapplication of Funds is Claimed

STREET RAILWAYS ASKED FOR SETTLEMENT

Creditors for $300,000 Assented to

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—Rufus B. Dodge of Worcester was yesterday appointed receiver of the Pinehurst park and the Overlook hotel properties, which have been run in connection with the Worcester & Southbridge street railway company.

The railway company went into the hands of receivers Saturday. The appointment of Mr. Dodge was made by Chief Justice Mason in the equity session of the superior court on application of the two railway receivers, Charles M. Thayer of Worcester and John A. Hall of Southbridge, who, by order of the court, are not only receivers for the Worcester company, but also for the Worcester, Rochdale & Charlton Depot street railway company.

The park and hotel properties were pleasure resorts to which the cars of the company were run. They were purchased and improved, it is claimed, with the money of the company by Wilford A. Bailey, while he served as treasurer of the corporation.

The court gave a brief hearing on the motion of receivers Hall and Thayer for the appointment of a receiver for the park and hotel. Mr. Hall said he and Mr. Thayer had concluded after an investigation of the affairs of the company that part of the money used for building and improving Overlook and Pinehurst had been raised on notes of the Worcester & Southbridge street railway company. They supposed it was the purpose of Treas. Bailey to take in and manage the properties in connection with management of the company. But before the step could be taken the collapse came, preventing Mr. Bailey from carrying out his intention. The receivers claim an equitable interest in the properties.

The hotel is in Charlton and the park is a picnic ground a short distance outside of Worcester. There is a hotel in the park, which is well furnished.

The court was informed that attachments were threatened and unless the properties were placed in the hands of a receiver they would be greatly injured.

Creditors representing claims for more than $300,000 assented to the appointment of Mr. Dodge as receiver. His bond was fixed at $50,000.

CAUSE OF THE MOVE

CLAIMED FUNDS OF STREET RAILWAY WERE MISAPPLIED.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WORCESTER, Sept. 3—The rumors regarding the misapplication of the funds of the Worcester & Southbridge and the Worcester, Rochdale & Charlton Depot street railway companies by ex-Treasurer Wilford A. Bailey, which have been in circulation for the past few days, were borne out last night by a statement by Charles M. Thayer, one of the receivers of the companies, after the appointment of Rufus B. Dodge as receiver for the Pinehurst park and Overlook hotel properties had been announced.

While these two ventures have been run in connection with the street railway companies they have been developed by Mr. Bailey and stand in the name of Charles N. Hamilton, a young lawyer in the office of Charles M. Thayer, who used to be Mr. Bailey's counsel before the trouble developed. Mr. Bailey has claimed that the two properties were being promoted by the Worcester & Southbridge development company, which was made up of 15 wealthy men, but the identity of these men remains a mystery, he having refused repeatedly, it is said, to tell who they were.

The investigation of the affairs of the street railway companies, it is stated, shows there is something wrong with the funds, and Mr. Thayer told the court, according to his statement to a correspondent, that the receivers think that money raised for the street railway has been put into Overlook and Pinehurst properties.

The receivers of the street railway companies believe the companies are equitably entitled to this money, but just how much is not known, and they asked for the receiver to guard their interests as well as the interests of the other creditors. They do not know what their rights are in opposition to Mr. Bailey's creditors, and they want the matter straightened out.

Mr. Dodge filed his bond for $50,000 last night and took possession of the park and hotel today. When asked what he intended to do with them he said he might run them until the end of the present summer season, because he understands they are being well patronized.

CIGARETTE SELLING

FOUND TO BE A COSTLY BUSINESS.

By Associated Press to The Sun

FRANKLIN, N. H., Sept. 3.—The war on sellers of cigarettes to minors continued yesterday, when three more local dealers appeared to answer to the complaint. Antonio Franchi and Fred Massa pleaded not guilty, but Judge Clifford found against them and each paid fines of $10 and costs of $4.62. James J. Cunningham, proprietor of the Ocean Wave cafe, pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $10 and costs of $4.62.

UNDER A CARPET

RELATIVES FOUND MORE THAN $6000.

By Associated Press to The Sun

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 3—Mrs. Elizabeth J. Foye, who died at her home here several weeks ago, was known to be well off financially, but no trace of her money was found until this week. Her relatives made a thorough search and succeeded in unearthing more than $6000.

Under a carpet they found a large amount, and an old stovepipe yielded considerable more silver and bills. The relatives think there is still much more money left, and are making a systematic search of the old house. Mrs. Foye was considered very peculiar, and resided alone for years.

$10,000 STAKE

Was Won by Speedy Star Hal

5000 PEOPLE GATHERED TO SEE THE RACE

The Finish Was a Close One

By Associated Press to The Sun

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 3—A record-breaking crowd of 5,000 people, attracted by the supreme contest of the grand circuit meeting here—the $10,000 stake for 2.11 class pacers—gathered yesterday at Narragansett park and saw Star Hal, a brown horse owned by W. L. Snow of Hornellsville, N. Y., capture the race and the purse in three straight heats. Seven horses faced the starter, King Direct being favorite, with Elastic Pointer second choice. Before the horses had reached the first quarter Star Hal took the pole and led a procession to the head of the stretch, where he was overhauled by Miss Williams and King Direct, the latter driven by Geers. The finish saw the three horses so nearly abreast that the judges' decision was necessary to convince the crowd that Star Hal was the winner. King Direct fought for supremacy through the entire second heat, but he was obliged to take second place to Star Hal, who won by a narrow margin in 2:05¼, the fastest time made during the day.

The card of the day consisted of four races and the unfinished 2.19 trot of Tuesday in which Navidad and Cole Direct each had two heats to their credit. Navidad took the deciding heat and the race in masterly fashion.

Caspian, the favorite in the 2.25 trot, captured the first two heats without difficulty and the third after a struggle with Texas, who forced him to cover the mile in 2.11¼. The 2.16 trot with 10 starters and the 2.13 pace with 12, furnished the surprises of the day, outsiders winning both. In the latter race Frank Wilson, the favorite, was drawn after he had gone two miles, because of illness. Johnny Wiseman, a Wilkes horse owned in Concord, N. H., after coming sixth in the first heat, got the next two and the race in driving finishes with Rockport and Knox's Gelatine Lad.

His praise of Mayor Johnson of Cleveland as the democratic standard bearer in Ohio was received with marked demonstration. Immediately after the meeting, Mr. Bryan left for New York and announced that he would be in Ohio again next month to make a number of speeches in support of the democratic ticket.

29 LIVES LOST

Explosion on Board an Austrian Steamer

BULGARIANS ARE BLAMED FOR THE AFFAIR

Boat Was Sailing Towards Constantinople

By Associated Press to The Sun

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3.—Three explosions occurred yesterday on the Austrian steamer Vaskapu soon after leaving the Bulgarian port of Burgas en route for Constantinople, by which 29 persons perished. The vessel caught fire and had to be beached.

A telegram conveying this news was received by the agent here of the Hungarian Levant line, to which the Vaskapu belongs. The telegram said the Vaskapu has been destroyed in the Black sea.

The captain and officers of the steamer and six of her crew were killed, a total of 29 lives being lost.

The Vaskapu sailed from Varna, Bulgaria, and after calling at Burgas was steaming through the Black sea to Constantinople, when three explosions took place on board.

The deck of the vessel took fire and she had to be run ashore at Misivria bay, 18 miles north of Burgas, where she is still burning.

The Vaskapu belonged to the Hungarian Levant steamship company of Fiume, Austria, and has been engaged in the Black Sea service. She was built in Newcastle in 1891 and was a steamer of 1076 tons. She was 260 feet long and 36 feet beam and a depth of 16.9 feet.

REPORT DENIED

That There Was Uprising in Macedonia

THOUSANDS OF BULGARIANS CONFRONTED WITH FAMINE

An Eight Hour Fight at Smilovo

By Associated Press to The Sun

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 3—The report published by the Dnevnik of a general rising in Northern Macedonia is denied both in official and revolutionary circles. Well informed persons, however, assert that the report was correct, but that its premature publication disarranged the plans of the revolutionists and, therefore, it is denied.

According to rebel reports from Manastir thousands of Bulgarians in that vilayet are confronted with famine in addition to Turkish persecution. Peasants who are continuously arriving from Monastir complain of the attitude of Hilmi Pasha and the Turkish atrocities.

The news is published here of an eight hour fight which occurred at the village of Smilovo Aug. 26 between 500 insurgents and eight battalions of Turkish troops supported by artillery. Thirty-five insurgents are reported to have been killed, while 60 Turks were killed or wounded. On the following day the Turks returned and burned the village. Seven other villages in the neighborhood are said to have also been burned by the Turks.

According to a Macedonian dispatch Aug. 30, the Bulgarian insurgents sustained a serious reverse at Smilovo Aug. 28, when 100 of them were said to have been killed, while the Turkish losses were insignificant.

CONANT'S SALE

OF THE J. H. BURKE & CO., ESTATE YESTERDAY.

Conant & Co., had a very successful auction sale of eighteen parcels of real estate, the property of J. H. Burke & Co., yesterday. The sale was conducted under an agreement for the dissolution of partnership and was in every way successful, the attendance being large and the prices obtained higher than were anticipated.

The bidding was fast and sharp enough, upon everything but the vacant land. The six parcels of renting property brought $24,555, or $2727 more than their assessed value. The vacant lands did not bring their assessed values. We append herewith the full list of the properties, the purchasers of the same, and the prices that were realized. The Critchett land in Dracut brought $165, and its purchaser was C. E. Guthrie. Druggists say they have never handled a medicine that gave such universal satisfaction.

Paw Paw gives new life and strength to the stomach so that it digests everything that goes into it; its effect upon the nerves is marvellous, it seems to relieve them of all strain and irritation. For insomnia it is proving a great blessing, as scores of people declare that Paw Paw soothes and quiets the nerves so that one can enjoy a good night's rest and get up in the morning feeling strong and refreshed.

Professor Munyon especially asks every weak and debilitated person to try his Paw Paw remedy. He says it makes old folks feel young and weak folks feel strong. That it will take away all need and desire for alcoholic stimulants. Alcoholic drink lifts but lets you fall. Paw Paw lifts and holds you, it gives exhilaration without intoxication.

(On sale at all druggists. Price $1.00 (pint bottle). Paw Paw Pills 25c a bottle.

OFFICERS CHOSEN

By the Army of the Philippines

By Associated Press to The Sun

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 3.—The National Society of the Army of the Philippines yesterday elected the following officers:

President, Gen. Charles King, Wis.; first vice president, Col. J. W. Pope, Colo.; Secretary, E. A. Fowle, Missouri; treasurer, J. E. White, Illinois; chaplain, Captain James M. Mailey, Nebraska.

Aside from the election of officers, the feature of the day was the parade which was participated in, not only by the Philippine veterans, but by the local G. A. R. posts. The reunion came to a close yesterday with a campfire at the People's church. Gov. Van Zant made an address on behalf of the state, and Gen. Irving Hale, retiring president of the Army of the Philippines, responded. Gen. Hale said:

"The society is founded on a just war, humanely waged, with honest administration and a glorious result to all concerned, in the most unique experience in the history of the nation.

"A year ago we were smarting from mosquito-like attacks on the army of the Philippines by fellow-patriots and statesmen in this country—some from sincere but mistaken motives of humanity and others from political demagogery, using the army as a club to beat the administration in facing its duty and responsibility in the Philippines. But the army found valiant defenders in its commander-in-chief, the president, the secretary of war and the great majority of the people. Today the mosquitoes are practically exterminated, as the American people have always eradicated unjust traducers of the American soldiers in the performance of his duty.

"Investigation has proved that the improprieties committed in the Philippines were remarkably few under the provocation and that the army, in the face of maddening hardships and difficulties and exasperating treachery and savagery, has conducted a war so humane in general that it has astonished the observers of foreign nations and even the Filipinos themselves. Whether or not the constitution technically follows the flag, that flag wherever it floats has brought and always will bring humanity, justice, civilization and good government.

THE CANDIDATES

Ticket Named by Pennsylvania Democrats

By Associated Press to The Sun

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 3.—The democratic state convention yesterday nominated the following ticket by acclamation:

Auditor General: Senator Arthur G. Dewalt, of Lehigh county.

State treasurer, Senator Joel H. Hill of Wayne county.

Judges of the superior court, Ex-Judge Calvin Reyburn, of Armstrong county and John A. Ward of Philadelphia.

The platform adopted is briefer than the usual democratic declaration of principles and is devoted entirely to state issues. The greater part of it deals with the last legislature and its work and the conduct of the state government.

The convention was well attended for an "off-year" in state politics.

SEEN AND HEARD

Four wagons loaded with stoves passed through Market and Prescott streets yesterday and one man exclaimed: "There goes a few gentle reminders of the coal famine."

The spacious and well appointed residence now being constructed at the corner of Chase and Westford streets will be occupied by the owner, Mr. Bean, the Chelmsford street fruit dealer.

A dog with a wild eye and a tail that he tried to chase caused somewhat of a panic at the corner of Market and Central streets yesterday afternoon. The majority of those who watched him chase his tail thought the dog was mad. A newsboy was the first to holler "mad dog," and in less time than it takes to tell it the dog had the street to himself. Men, women and children vacated the place in a hurry. When the dog tired of chasing his tail he lay down on the sidewalk and slept as sweetly innocent as though nothing had happened. It evidently didn't occur to him that he had been causing heart failure.

The sidewalks in different parts of the city are being repaired. This would hardly fit in as a news item but we do like to say that piles of sand here and rocks there when you're in a hurry to get somewhere is a deep nuisance. The repairs, however, are needed and the inconvenience that the good citizen suffers while the work is going on is soon forgotten and the smoothness of the new sidewalk is much appreciated.

Some of the most prominent business men in the city were witnesses in a larceny case in police court Wednesday. They were men that had been caught by two young fellows who represented themselves as collecting agents for Freight Handlers' union of the Boston & Maine railroad. In summing up Judge Hadley told the prominent business men that they ought to be more cautious about paying out money. "Inquire into the situation before you pay the money," said his honor, and the prominent business men looked just a little bit sheepish.

Letter to J. J. KERWIN, Lowell, Mass.:

Dear Sir:—As your business is to get people into and out of trouble, suppose you consider their paint; it makes 'em almost as much trouble as money, except of course matrimony.

They buy poor paint a good deal: they don't mean to; they don't know any better; they buy without thinking. Bad paint isn't good. It looks good enough for a year; then begins to get rusty; but changes so slowly, one don't notice it.

Looking isn't all. The business of paint is to keep a house dry inside, the wood and iron of it; keep it from rotting and rusting. Takes good paint to do it.

Good and bad paint are sold at one price or about that. One can't go by the price at all; as with lawyers, the price has nothing to do with goodness or badness; and costs are worse yet; the painter and sheriff come in for their share.

But the probability is that a man, who paints Devoe, will come out on top.

Yours truly,

F. W. DEVOE & CO.

PORTER OF A HOTEL WENT TO SLEEP.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Hermann Schwartz, a porter on the 19th floor of the American tract society building, went to sleep on a narrow ledge, less than three feet across, and 260 feet above the street, yesterday.

A crowd gathered on the street below to watch him as he lay snoring 13 floors above the sidewalk.

Finally someone notified Supt. Roberts of the tract building, and he sent his head porter up there. The window was raised and the porter and Roberts seized Hermann by the collar and dragged him inside the window.

"What's the matter?" gasped Herman, as he landed inside the office with a thump. "So long's my work is done, can't I take a nap?"

Now Hermann is looking for another job.

MADE EVERY BANANA JUMP OUT OF ITS SKIN.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—John Marchi and F. M. Stanelo occupy the basement at 10 Commercial street as a banana ripening conservatory. The cellar is heated by a gas stove, and last night at 6 Marchi lighted the gas in the stove, twirled the plump, green bunches about a bit, and went home.

There was a little, imperceptible leak in the gas pipe. The stove worked steadily, the bananas stretched their skins in the tropical heat, and the tiny little leak spread out the thinnest hair streak of combustible gas.

The gas crept to the top of the cellar as long as there was room, then it was forced lower and lower until it met the stove.

That was at 9 p. m. and the explosion came at exactly the same second.

It was loud enough to scare the dwellers in Eliot street, two blocks below. It blew out the cellar door and bolsted it up the steps on to the sidewalk. It got the Marchi Stanelo partition in the cellar active, but two boys put that out with a cupful of water.

A passing citizen pulled in an alarm from box 15, but the fire was out when the department arrived.

The force of the explosion was sufficient to blow out the window of the Park sausage and provision company on the ground floor and to blow out the front of the front door. The door still held by the top hinges, however.

The curious thing about the explosion was that it skinned all the bananas in the cellar.

PLAYED "ROBBER"

JOHNNY LANGER CAME NEAR BEING HANGED.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Johnny Langer, 6 years old, was sentenced to be hanged until he was dead, in Union Hill, yesterday, for being a "robber."

Had not his mother arrived on the scene at an opportune moment the child would probably have paid the penalty.

Johnny's playmates, about a dozen of them, all under 12 years old, had already strung him up by a clothes line attached to the top of a grocery wagon, and his body hung limp and almost lifeless.

The boys had been playing "cops and robbers," and Jimmy was one of the "robbers."

"I had been to the grocery store," said the mother, "and was returning home when several children ran toward me shouting, 'O, Mrs. Langer, they're hanging Johnny.'

"I was horrified upon reaching the wagon to see that the boys had a clothesline tied about my child's neck. And they were just pulling away at it as if it was fun. It's lucky I was there, or I am sure he would have been choked to death. I wouldn't tell my husband about this for worlds. I'm sure he'd murder some of those kids if I did."

FELL FROM BRIDGE

FRANK JONES, AGED 12, DROWNED WHILE FISHING.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BRAINTREE, Sept. 3.—Frank Jones, the 12 year old son of Mrs. Jennie Jones of Hancock street, was drowned in the paper mill pond at South Braintree just before noon yesterday.

The Jones boy, in company with another lad named Ralph Blanchard, were fishing at the pond, but at different points. The Jones boy sat on a small bridge, and it is supposed he slipped off.

Blanchard says he did not see Jones fall and the first he knew his companion was missing was when he found Jones' cap and fishing rod floating in the water.

A searching party recovered the body about two hours after the alarm was given. The body was viewed by Medical Examiner J. C. Fraser of Weymouth.

14,000 TROOPS

Will Take Part in Big Encampment

By Associated Press to The Sun

JUNCTION CITY, Kas., Sept. 3.—The plans for the big camp at Fort Riley during the maneuvres show that it will be one of the most spectacular ever planned. The 14,000 troops that are to participate will be encamped on the Republican river flats just north of Junction City in the form of a gigantic fan, which will have the apex near the bluffs half a mile farther north of the town. At the apex of the camp will be the headquarters of the commanding general and his staff.

On the ribs of the fan will be encamped in regimental formation, the various regiments and battalions of cavalry, infantry, engineers and signal corps, and the batteries of artillery composing the division of maneuvres. Streets will divide the camps and form, when tents are pitched, the ribs of the fan.

This form of encampment will enable the commanding general to be at all times within easy communication with all parts of the camp. An extensive line of water pipes will be laid at the camp site before the arrival of the troops.

The space between the headquarters of the commanding general and the camp of the various organizations will be large enough for a review of the troops that will be assembled on the reservation for the maneuvres.

GUILTY OF CONTEMPT

ASSISTANT STATE ATTORNEY SENTENCED TO JAIL.

By Associated Press to The Sun

CHICAGO, Sept. 3. Frederick L. Barnett, assistant state attorney, must spend ten days in the county jail and pay a fine of $50 for contempt of court unless he successfully appeals from a decision of Judge Kavanaugh yesterday afternoon.

He is accused of contempt in having assisted in causing the arrest of Walter B. Hoyt, a playwright, after he had been freed on habeas corpus.

Hot times took place between Judge Kavanaugh and Mr. Barnett Tuesday and yesterday in a new habeas corpus hearing for Hoyt, and after the court had again freed the playwright he sentenced Mr. Barnett.

Thomas J. Howard, a detective, and Louis Houlton, messenger for the governor of Ohio, were each committed for 10 days. Mr. Barnett and the other defendants gave notice of appeal and a bond for their appearance today.

Judge Kavanagh declared in an oral opinion that the defendants had shown an "open, wilful and flagrant defiance of the court." He declared the writ of habeas to be the highest right in this country.

JOHN H. BOOTH

ONCE FIGURED IN A CELEBRATED CASE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 3.—John H. Booth of Meriden, who has confessed to robbing the International silver company of thousands of dollars' worth of bullion silver, the police yesterday recognized as the man who was arrested just 40 years ago in connection with the robbery of the Townsend bank of this city of $50,000 in cash and bonds.

Though alleged at that time to have received from Cashier Jeremiah Townsend, who robbed the bank, $6000 of the booty, nothing was ever proved against Booth. Cashier Townsend was sent to state prison and Booth was released.

Booth at the time of the bank robbery lived with his sister, Mary Booth, in this city. Afterward he removed to Meriden and lived with his family until his recent arrest.

FRAUD RAMPANT

Charge Made by Republican Congressman

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 3.—Representative Frank Wachter of Maryland declares the entire federal service is honeycombed with corruption and incompetency, and he proposes to introduce a resolution for the investigation of every department of the government at the next session of congress.

"Every one who has been brought in to close contact with the departments knows these things," he said, "and it is time that we had a general housecleaning."

Wachter is a republican and was recently defeated for the office of mayor of Baltimore. In addition to the postal scandal and the Indian land frauds, involving another department and agricultural officials, it is charged that there was a collusion between the coal contractor and the inspectors, and the department of justice has several officials who are accused of complicity in the Indian land frauds.

Customs scandals and irregularities in the letting of contracts have been mentioned often in connection with the treasury department, including the customs scandal in Porto Rico.

The charge has been made that the war and navy departments were controlled by cliques for their personal benefit.

Crowley was unmarried and the funeral will be in charge of the Foresters.

$250,000 SUIT

Son of Millionaire Dolan the Defendant

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Argument in a legal motion yesterday before Justice Blanchard in special term, part 1, of the supreme court, disclosed the fact that about a year ago Clarence W. Dolan of Philadelphia, who is a son of Thomas Dolan, the street car line promoter and wealthy manufacturer, was sued by Josephine Martin for $250,000 for breach of promise of marriage. The argument, which for the first time made public the fact that young Mr. Dolan had been sued for breach of promise of marriage, also disclosed that he settled the suit by paying Miss Martin's counsel $7500.

The facts came out in connection with an application which David Hirschfield, now counsel for Miss Martin, made to Justice Blanchard for the issuance of an order adjudging Delbel C. Hanson, counsel for the plaintiff in her suit against Mr. Dolan for alleged breach of promise, to be in contempt of court for the alleged failure to pay Miss Martin $568 which she asserted he had failed to turn over to her and which she said she was entitled to as part of her share of the $7500 which Mr. Dolan paid to settle her suit.

American Boat Got Over Starting Line First

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—With a fog heavier than on any previous morning and but a five or six mile wind from the northward, the conditions this morning for the fourth attempt this week to sail the third of the series of the international yacht races, were far from ideal. With all, however, there was more wind than on the three previous days, when all attempts at a race were futile and there were hopes that the fog would lift and wind would increase in velocity as it blew from a favorable quarter.

At 7 o'clock the fog could not be penetrated beyond 100 feet, but in less than two hours there were indications of its lifting. The wind still held true and at 8.55 was reported officially at Sandy Hook at five miles. The sun, too, began to break through the mist and it then began to clear rapidly. Soon it was possible to see half a mile or more, blue skies were in evidence, and the prospects of a race were more encouraging than on any previous day this week.

At 8.45 o'clock Captain Wringe and Captain Barr gave orders not to make sail until the dropping fog lifted further. Captain Barr said there would be a great clearance of the fog before he would think of risking Reliance outside of the hook.

At 9.15 o'clock, however, Reliance crew began putting up their stay sail and jib in stops and Shamrock followed shortly after.

At 9.30 Reliance started for the lightship in tow, raising her mainsail as she went. At that time the wind, according to the official observer, had dropped to three miles an hour from the northeast.

Sir Thomas Lipton's guests arrived about 9.35 on the Fletcher and for the first time saw Shamrock III making preparations to leave. Shamrock left in tow at 9.38 with only her foresails in stops.

When the yachts reached the lightship, the wind had hauled around to the southeast and was blowing about five miles an hour. It was clearing gradually but the fog was still so heavy that at 10.35 the committee boat Navigator signalled a postponement of the start until later in the day.

QUICK SEWER WORK

Middlesex Street Job Beats the Record

A 2200 Feet Sewer Laid in Less Than Two Months at Two-Thirds of Its Estimated Cost

The sewer committee will meet tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, and act upon new work, as the work laid out some time ago will be finished next Wednesday and the money appropriated all spent.

A gang of 120 sewer employes are at present putting the finishing touches on the Middlesex street sewer and will finish the job next Wednesday.

Supt. Beals is proud of the department's work on the Middlesex street sewer and from all accounts he has reason to be. The work on the sewer was begun on July 14, and on Sept. 9 it will be finished. It is 2200 feet long and 1600 feet is of brick, while the remaining 600 feet is laid with 15-inch pipe. It will be the quickest sewer job on record and will be done for two-thirds of the estimated cost. The city engineer's estimate was $17,000 and the job completed will cost $12,000.

THE RELIEF FUND

IS NOT YET UP TO FIFTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS

The relief fund for the Riverside park sufferers has not yet reached $15,000, remaining at $14,937.56. The committee hopes that the public will continue their generous offerings, as they would like to see the figures aggregate $20,000.

ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE

MAY HOLD UP SALUTE BILLS AGAIN.

The committee on accounts will meet at city hall tomorrow afternoon at 1.30 o'clock to inspect and approve bills for the month of August.

Among the bills will be that of the military companies for the Fourth of July salutes ordered by the mayor. The committee held up the bills and asked his honor to appear before them and explain the bill. His honor did not appear but sent a letter and the committee at its last meeting read the letter but adjourned without taking action upon the bill. It will not be surprising if the committee finishes its meeting tomorrow without reference to the matter, thus allowing the bill to go over for another month.

MICHAEL GRAHAM.

THOMAS ALTIMUS.

Wives of Convicted Men Hear Sentence Pronounced

The wives and parents of Michael J. Graham and Thomas Altimus, the young fellows who succeeded in getting "easy" money from a score of prominent business men in this city, by representing themselves as collecting agents for the Freight Handlers' Association of the Boston & Maine railroad, were in police court today and heard the young men sentenced to the common jail, Altimus for ten months and Graham for eight months. An appeal was taken and they were ordered in $700 each for their appearance before the superior court.

The young men were tried yesterday on the charge of larceny. The real title of their offence was "obtaining money under false pretences," but that offence and all others of a similar nature now come under the head of larceny.

Graham, so far as the police could learn, had no previous police record, and there was but one offence, that of larceny, standing out against Altimus. J. Joseph Hennessey appeared for them, and inasmuch as they were found guilty of larceny on eleven counts they were fortunate in getting away with such light sentences.

The situation in this case was decidedly sad and pathetic. The wives of the men were shocked beyond expression when they came face to face with the predicament in which their husbands had placed themselves. They believed that the young men were engaged in honest pursuits, and their faith in them was not one whit stronger than was the confidence of their parents. Both young men belong to highly respectable and well-to-do families living in North Cambridge. The women left the court room screaming when sentence was pronounced upon their husbands.

GRADE CROSSINGS

Committee Will Report to Aldermen

RECOMMENDING PETITION TO SUPERIOR COURT

For Appointment of Grade Crossing Commission

The special committee of the city council on the abolition of grade crossings will meet tomorrow evening with City Engineer Bowers at City Hall, to discuss their recent tour of inspection and formulate a report to the board of aldermen.

It is probable that the committee will ask the aldermen to petition the superior court for the abolition of certain local grade crossings and in that event the superior court will grant the petition and appoint a commission consisting of three men to attend to the work of making the changes, the commission having full and final charge of the work. The commissions in such cases are generally composed of one man representing the city, one representing the railroad, and a third selected by the first two. This commission consults the plans of the city engineer and if it finds it necessary has plans of its own drawn. The work is then done at the city's expense, but the city is later reimbursed. The city stands 10 per cent. of the cost, the railroad 25 per cent. and the state 65 per cent. The last grade crossing to be removed in this city was that at Pawtucket street.

THE CITY STREETS

Are Giving Employment to Many Men

LARGE FORCE IN STREET DEPARTMENT

Pavers Working Day and Night

The street department is busy these days and is much in evidence as it is doing considerable work on the principal streets.

Two crews of pavers are working day and night on the sidewalks of the principal streets making much needed repairs. The sidewalks were certainly in a miserable condition when the department tore them up.

With the new brick sidewalks will undoubtedly come several granolithic sidewalks in front of the larger places of business.

The crews are at work macadamizing on Fulton and Bellevue streets and Varnum avenue, while the different carpenters are building fences on Varnum avenue to replace those taken down when the street was widened. Edgestones are also being laid in Varnum avenue.

There are gangs at work scraping streets while two gangs of sweepers are at work on the paved streets, together with 40 sparrow men.

Thus it will be seen that the street department is running full blast at present.

CUT HIS THROAT

Ernest Harmon of Chase Avenue Attempted Suicide

Ernest J. Harmon, a man about 50 years of age and residing at 45 Chase avenue, Pawtucketville, this morning during a temporal aberration of mind made an attempt on his life by jabbing a dull scissors in his neck. Despite the fact that medical aid was promptly summoned he was in a very weak condition when taken to St. John's hospital. His condition grew rapidly worse and at the time of going to press there was little hope for his recovery.

Harmon was employed in the street department of the city, having for a number of years been stationed in Merrimack street sweeping the street. He was an honest and industrious man and has a wife, two sons, Charles M. and Ernest N., and a daughter Etta J.

For the past two or three months Harmon had been complaining and seemed to be very despondent, having little or nothing to say at home and was always very moody. His wife and members of the family had advised him to visit a physician, but he refused to do this and at the mention of a doctor being called he at times became almost frantic. He seemed to have a horror for doctors and at different times believed that the members of his family were trying to have him sent to an hospital. Time and time again when no reference whatsoever had been made to a doctor or hospital he would start from one of his despondent spells and emphatically state that he would not go to the hospital.

While he seemed to be all right physically it was decided that it would be better for him to attend to his duties in order to have something to keep him from becoming despondent, for while at work he seemed to be in good spirits, but just as soon as work was over and he had nothing to occupy his mind he became despondent. At times it seemed as though he was improving in spirits, but he would again lapse into low spirits and have little or nothing to say.

It was thought that during some of his despondent fits he might attempt to take his life and on account of this several revolvers which were in the house were put away where he could not get at them as were his razors and other dangerous articles.

Last night he returned home from work at his usual time and after eating supper sat around and retired early. About 3 o'clock this morning he left his bed and went down stairs. His wife and daughter who have been constantly on the alert, hearing him getting up, followed him down stairs and prevailed upon him to go back to bed again.

He finally consented and going up stairs went back to bed and stayed there until about 4 o'clock, when he again rose and descending to the floor below put on his shoes and taking a pair of old, dull scissors went through the kitchen into the shed and out into the garden, where he jabbed the dull prongs into his throat.

The first his wife knew of the affair was when she heard loud cries, and rushing down stairs had just reached the rear door when she saw her husband in his night attire coming towards the house.

He had both his hands to his throat and upon seeing his wife, cried: "I've done it, Mary! I've done it!" His wife was horrified with fear and arousing the other members of the house made her husband as comfortable as possible until the doctor who was summoned could arrive.

Dr. Alonzo G. Bennett was the physician summoned and he was prompt in arriving, but immediately upon seeing the condition of the man he telephoned for the ambulance. When the ambulance arrived Harmon was removed to St. John's hospital.

HAD RELIGIOUS MANIA.

Harmon was a well-known character in and about city hall and at the municipal building the news of his rash act was learned with regret though it did not occasion much surprise as it has been known for some time that Harmon was suffering with mental trouble though physically well and able to do his work.

His mania appears to have been of a religious nature and for the past few years he has been laboring under the delusion that he was not doing enough good to his fellowmen. He religiously refused to accept a cent of money for working on Sunday, always stating that money earned on Sunday was the Lord's money and should go to the Lord. Hence, whenever he had to work on the Sabbath, invariably he gave the money received to some church or religious society.

One day last winter he went into Lang's drug store opposite city hall after receiving his pay and made several purchases of medicine, stating that he knew some poor people who were ill but who had no money to buy medicine. The clerk at the drug store also presented him with some and he went away happy. Later he appeared at the city dispensary and gave a bottle of the medicine to Clerk Mason instructing him to give it to some poor person who might call there.

Among the paupers who call at the office of the overseers of the poor for aid is an old and decrepid woman who made regular visits from Belvidere to the office last winter. She is bent over and walks with great difficulty and one day she attracted the attention of Harmon, who was sweeping in Moody street. He stopped her and inquired all about her condition and then told her that though he was a poor man himself, he would like to help her and instructed her to call around the following Friday, pay day. The old woman was on hand and Harmon upon receiving his pay, gave her a part of it. After that he gave the woman money regularly every week.

THOUGHT HE OWED THE CITY.

But it was an imaginary debt to the city that bothered Harmon most and it was his principal thought all day yesterday. It seems that every Saturday night at 11 o'clock a gang of men leave the city stables and go through the principal streets picking up papers so that the streets will be presentable for the early churchgoers. Each man has a certain territory to cover and when he has finished his territory his work is done and he receives a full day's pay. Some nights the work would be done in four hours, five hours or even eight hours, but generally they finished up within five hours and received eight hours' pay for the work. Harmon was one of these men and when the eight hour law for city employes went into effect he became much interested in it and did much talking about it, though no one paid any attention to him.

Finally a few months ago Harmon went before Mr. Beals one day and informed him that he had been cheating the city for some time. "I have been working five and six hours and have been drawing eight hours' pay for it," said he. "I have been doing wrong and I want to pay back what I owe. I have $15 in the bank and that is the amount that I owe, so I think I will give it to the city treasurer."

Supt. Beals tried to convince him that he was all right and owed nothing, but poor Harmon was sure that he had been cheating, and after that he pestered the superintendent, stopping him wherever he saw him to ask him to accompany him to the city treasurer while he paid over the money.

A few days ago Supt. Beals made an arrangement with City Treasurer Stiles whereby the treasurer was to take the money if Harmon presented it and then place it in a bank in trust for him.

Yesterday morning Harmon met Supt. Beals on the street and informed him that the police were on his track and that he was going to give himself up after he paid the city treasurer the $15. The superintendent talked with him until the hallucination had left him and then Harmon returned to his work.

Supt. Beals deeply regrets Harmon's act. In conversation with The Sun reporter he said: "Harmon was one of the most faithful workers I ever had under me. He was working all the time. He had been weak-minded for some time but was able to do his work at all times. I sincerely hope the poor fellow will recover."

THAYER-BROOKS

Brilliant High Noon Wedding at Newport

TRINITY CHURCH CROWDED WITH SOCIETY PEOPLE

The Floral Decorations Were Elaborate

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 3.—The wedding of Miss Gladys Jeralys Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Mortimer Brooks, to Mr. Eugene V. R. Thayer, Jr., took place at Trinity church at high noon today and was a society event interesting the entire colony, the church being filled and there being a very large crowd at the reception held at the home of the bride's parents at the foot of Bellevue avenue.

The guests began to arrive at the church well in advance of the time for the ceremony and the streets were crowded with people and carriages for blocks around.

The bridal party arrived at the church a trifle before noon. The bride proceeded down the aisle, resting upon the arm of her father, who later gave her away. She was attended by the Misses Marion Fish, Constance Livermore, Anne Thayer, Adelaide Thayer, Adelaide Randolph and Fannie Iselin as bridesmaids and the ushers were Messrs. Reginald Brooks, Delancey Jay, Philip Livermore, Theodore Douglass Robinson, Charles E. Perkins, Jr., George Fairchild, Hugh Minturn, George Snow, Reginald Beardman and J. L. Saltonstall.

At the altar the party were met by the groom, who was attended by James Jackson of Boston as best man.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Ernest J. Dennen, assistant rector of the church, assisted by Rev. Sherrard Billings, rector of Groton school.

The floral decorations of the church were elaborate, one of the leading society florists having been engaged in the preparations for the final arrangement for more than a week. The color scheme was white and green with a spring-like tinge given by pink flowers. The interior of the church with its elaborate colonial interior design lent itself admirably to the decorators' art. At the entrance chairs and flowers were massed in great banks and the aisles were turned into avenues with tall tree borderings, great bunches of white roses topping the trees which were further dressed in liberal white satin bows. Four score of these trees were required. The chancel was massed with palms and garlands of white roses and the altar was banked with the same Carlsruhe of white roses, lilies of the valley and orchids interwoven with green to cover the altar rail. Upon the cream walls of the church hung garlands of green and along the balconies garlands of green and pink were made into ribbons of pink. In every available niche lilies were piled, while the lectern pulpit with its sounding board was dressed in pink and white flowers.

The bride was attired in a rich Parisian gown of white satin trimmed with old point lace and she wore the lace veil worn by her mother upon the occasion of her marriage. The maids were white organdie crepe and picture hats.

The bride carried a shower bouquet of white orchids and the maids carried pink roses, the "showers" being of small pink roses.

The gentlemen wore boutonnieres of lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony the wedding party and guests were driven direct to "Rosecliff," the big estate of the bride's father, for the reception. Here the florist had repeated in the hall over a bower of white rose and lilies of the valley, so that a background of palms and one other elaborate flower work in the dining room halls and tents the latter having been erected for the serving of the wedding breakfast, during which two orchestras supplied continuous music.

The couple sped away from their friends after the reception informally and called upon their wedding tour, the itinerary of which is of course not announced.

HIS FAITHFUL DOG

Died Because He Couldn't Live

AND HIS MASTER WENT ON A SPREE

Best Friend He Had in the World

Clarence H. Sprague of North Chelmsford was in police court today and pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with drunkenness. Judge Hadley decided that a few days in jail would do Clarence all the good in the world and he ordered him in the sum of $.00 until Tuesday morning. "I appeal," said Maurice. He then proceeded to tell the court a pitiful tale about a faithful dog of his that lay down and died a few days ago. Clarence is a married man but he told Judge Hadley that the dog was the best friend he had in the world. "The dog's death started me drinking," he said, and the court told him that the sorrow occasioned by the death of man or beast could not be drowned by drink. "He was a corking good dog, though," said Maurice as he resumed his seat in the dock.

FOR KEEPING LIQUOR.

Joseph Corcoran, charged with the illegal sale of liquor, was fined $100. He appealed.

LIQUORS FORFEITED.

When it came to forfeiting liquors in police court today three men bobbed up and claimed certain packages that had been confiscated by the police. John Murch claimed a case of beer and a quart of whiskey that had been taken from his room. James H. Carmichael appeared for him and the court allowed John to have the case and the quart.

When the liquor seized at the Old Middlesex Tavern when it was raided by Capt. Kew and a posse of officers a week or so ago were declared forfeited today, William R. Vining, a brother to the proprietor of the tavern, and Alvin J. Preston stepped up and submitted claims for two cases of beer.

Owing to the absence of Capt. Kew the government asked for a continuance for one week. Judge Hadley told the men who claimed the beer that if the evidence was not sufficient to support their claims they would be liable to the commonwealth for a bill of costs.

THE ARMY STAFF

MAY REALIGN THE DIFFERENT DEPARTMENTS.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The Post says the general staff of the army is considering the advisability of realigning the departments to conform to changes in the transportation situation.

It is possible, says the Post, that one or more departments will be created. The department of the east, for example, may be divided into two, the new one to be designated either as the department of the south or the gulf. Kansas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory may be taken from the department of Missouri and combined into one department.

Another proposition even of more interest to the country that is being considered by the general staff is the rehabilitation of numerous forts and posts in various parts of the country, but mainly in the west, which have practically been abandoned for several years. Now that the army consists of nearly 70,000 men it is discovered that the posts which have been in repair are not numerous enough to accommodate the troops comfortably. It is not improbable that in this necessity some new posts will have to be established.

MICHAEL O'BRIEN.

Petty Thief and His Pal Were Sentenced Today

In police court Michael O'Brien and Maurice Jacobs, who were found guilty of the larceny of certain trousers and dog collars, yesterday, were sentenced by Judge Hadley today. O'Brien to eight months in the common jail and Jacobs to six months at the same institution. Deputy Welch communicated with the Somerville police by telephone this forenoon and learned that O'Brien had been arrested in that city for the larceny of $1c July 22 and that he was known in Somerville and Boston as a petty thief.

Jacobs had once been arrested for larceny. His case went to the superior court and he was placed on probation.

ALL FOUND GUILTY

Tammany A. C. Men are Convicted

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3. Nine defendants were arraigned before Judge Williams in the Roxbury court yesterday on the charge of illegally carrying on and promoting a boxing match at the Tammany A. C. two weeks ago. The men were Representative Daniel Donahey, John Mack, David Leahy, George Lyon, Robert Armstrong, John Thomas A. John F. Doyle, Harry Sanborn and Sandy Ferguson, and each was found guilty on two counts.

Capt. Hanley and Sergt. O'Neil of division 10 conducted the examination of Mack and Hon. Charles H. Dunn appeared for the defendants.

Sergt. O'Neil testified that on the evenings of Aug. 26 he received from Chelsea to the effect stating that two tickets be reserved for him. A gentleman from another station was with him when he telephoned and a messenger boy was sent to get the tickets. Two officers from division 11 used the tickets.

Later he and Patrolman Stillings called at the club and the gentleman paid Donahey $5 for the tickets at the college marker. Patrolman Stillings and Lyon corroborated Sergt. O'Neil and said he was a member of the club, but had never received a membership card. When he joined the club a few weeks ago he filed an application and while he had been in the club house several times he had never seen a membership card. When he applied for admission he stated that he was a police officer.

Special Officer Kibby testified that he went to Chelsea with the sergeant and heard him testify. He attended the exhibition in the evening. While he is not a member of the club he has been there several times and has seen the membership cards. He has also seen them produced by others. For admission when there was an exhibition.

John Crowley, a lad of 17 boy, testified that he sold two tickets to Officer Sergt. O'Neil, who gave him $5 for two tickets. He did not have membership books and was given the tickets. Patrolmen Wise and Shannon of division 11 testified that they were admitted to the club on the tickets supplied by Donahey. Capt. Hanley testified that he had referred to the case on the night of Aug. 26.

None of the officers took the witness stand and after the conclusion of the evidence Mr. Dunn made his argument. He said that nothing was shown to prove that the clients had acted in connection with the box-keepers, and, therefore, could not be held responsible. Judge Williams then found each defendant guilty on two counts and fined them $25 on each charge, or appeal to the Superior Court.

Daniel Donahey, one of the accused, is a member of the board of aldermen from Ward 7.

A prominent club woman, Mrs. Danforth, of St. Joseph, Mich., tells how she was cured of falling of the womb and its accompanying pains.

"Life looks dark indeed when a woman feels that her strength is sapping away and she has no hopes of ever being restored. Such was my feeling a few months ago when I was advised that my poor health was caused by prolapsus or falling of the womb. The world corroded like a knell to me. I saw that my sun had set, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to me as an elixir of life; it restored the lost forces and built me up until my good health returned to me. For four months I took the medicine daily and each dose added health and strength. I am so thankful for the help I obtained through its use." CHURCH AND CARRIAGE FACTORY SAVED

Haverhill and Amesbury Sent Help

FIRE STARTED IN THE WALKER FACTORY

The Whole Town Was Threatened

By Associated Press to The Sun

MERRIMAC, Mass., Sept. 3.—Fire, which at one time seemed to threaten the whole town, caused a damage of $25,000 at the wooden factory of the Walker Carriage company here, today. The absence of wind made it possible for the local fire department, aided by divisions of the Amesbury and Haverhill departments, successfully to cope with the fire and prevented it from reaching adjoining buildings. The Baptist church and the Pease Carriage factory building were in danger, and it was only by the hardest kind of work on the part of the firemen that the structures were saved.

The Walker establishment was located on Mechanic street in the center of the town. It is a large, roomy wooden structure, three stories in height with a large wing in the rear. It was here that the fire was discovered by a citizen shortly before six o'clock. An alarm was sounded immediately; the whole town was aroused and all available men at once proceeded to check the progress of the flames. To this end the steamer and hand engine of the town were brought into service and an effective bucket system of throwing water on the building was employed. The inflammable nature of the structure made it easy for the fire to spread and the probability of a serious conflagration led to the asking of Haverhill and Amesbury to send apparatus. Haverhill dispatched a steamer and hose wagon and Amesbury a hose wagon. By the time this combined department had got to work, the large wing of the factory was burning furiously and nearby structures were threatened. The firemen, however, confined the blaze to the wing of the building. This contained the blacksmith shop, the body-makers room and the trimming room. The entire building was damaged by smoke.

The Walker company came here from Amesbury in July, purchasing and refitting the old Stevens factory. The first shipment of goods was made only yesterday. The fire of today is a serious blow to the concern. There is, however, a partial insurance. A score of men employed in the body-makers' room lost all their tools.

The Walker company is composed of James L. Walker and his son.

GLIDDEN'S TRIP

An Interesting Account of His Automobile Ride

Charles J. Glidden, who with Mrs. Glidden is making an extended automobile trip, writes as folows from Sweden:

SKELEFTEA, Sweden, Aug. 13, 1903. (Latitude 64 deg. 54 min.)

Fifth day north of Stockholm—120 miles in five hours. Population of city 2000.

We have now reached a parallel of latitude equal to the highest that could be obtained in Norway. The noted building here is the church of which the famous apostle of Lapland, Per Hogstrom, was pastor in 1809.

More of the heavy grades were encountered today and successfully climbed, with the usual precautions. A 30 per cent. grade can be imagined by recalling the grade of Corey Hill, Brookline, which is about 15 per cent., with an excellent surface.

The peasants seemed to realize the difficulty in ascending some of these grades, as in a number of instances a crowd of them were standing at the top, and when the car successfully bowled over the summit of the hills loud was the applause.

A pleasing and touching incident occurred at the outskirts of this town. A number of citizens and ladies had gathered and as we neared them a beautiful Swedish flag was hoisted to a masthead, amid cheers and the waving of handkerchiefs.

The authorities turned the road over to us today and we had clear sailing on an excellent surface the entire distance, only passing the mail coach, thus enabling us to make this a record drive for Sweden at an average speed of 24 miles per hour.

LULEA, Sweden, Aug. 14, 1903 (Lat. 65 deg. 35 min.)

The little flag episode of yesterday induced us this morning to mount our Swedish and American flags on a small pole which Mrs. Glidden carried, and we waved them at the crowds. The enthusiasm was greater than ever. As we are nearing the Lapland district the advice given in a Swedish touring club book may be interesting to note:

"The Lapps are not savages; have been to school like other people. Don't give them tobacco, kind treatment and behavior toward them will pay better. Don't compliment the Lapp girls nor ask a Lapp how many reindeer he possesses, which is equivalent to asking a man how much he is worth."

The horses are attached to the vehicles by only two hitches. It is amusing when we turn the sharp corners to see how rapidly one can be taken out of the shafts and into the woods, while the occupants of the cart vacate it.

The roads continue good. Two ferries were crossed today—at Pitsund and at Lulea. The boats were small but of sufficient size to carry us. En route here we passed through the town of Pitea (2000 population), one of the oldest in Sweden and part of which is built upon the island of Pitholm.

Lulea has a population of 8000 and is the largest city in northern Sweden. Removed from its original site, seven miles down the river it has a $100,000 church and is an important ore shipping port during six months in the year. During the other six months the gulf is frozen two feet deep. The iron ore is practically on the surface at Gellivare and there are extensive mines 100 miles northwest, owned by the government. During the winter this ore is carried on the railroad to Narvik, Norway, an open port. Nearly 1,000,000 tons of ore are exported annually and it is considered the best iron produced.

The character of the hotels are changing somewhat. Tonight, after a 105 mile drive (6 hours) in the rain on a fair to bad road, we are located in the Gastgifvaregard, an institution for travellers supplied by the government, neat and clean and with wholesome food.

HARPARANDA, Sweden, Aug. 15.—(Latitude 65.50). This, the most northern town in Sweden, with a population of 1600, is located at the extreme northern end of the gulf of Bothnia, opposite which, and across the river Torne, is the Russian-Finland town of Torneo. Winter in this section extends from Nov. 15 to My 15, with an average snow level of six feet. On Dec. 22 the sun shines less than one hour, only three-quarters of the orb being visible.

The drive here of 110 miles, over bad roads, occupied six hours and covered nearly all points of the compass, the route full of curves and undulations. We only gained 15 minutes of latitude, but we went eastward nearly two full degrees of longitude.

Our progress continues to be bulletined at every point, and the usual crowds greet and cheer us as we pass.

KOMMIS, Sweden, near Lapland, and Russian Finland frontiers, Aug. 16, 1903 (Lat. 69 deg. 33 min.; E. lon. 23 deg. 31 min.).

We carried the American flag in the first automobile (16 horse-power Napier) to cross the Arctic circle today. Our drive has been continuous from the Massachusetts Automobile club house, Boston, excepting waterways. The passengers were Charles J. Glidden, Mrs. Glidden, Charles Thomas, engineer, of London, and August Langell, interpreter.

The motor car and its passengers will be transported by steamer to Frederickshaven, Jutland, the most northern point in Denmark (a six days' sail on the gulf of Bothnia and Baltic sea), and our drive continued toward Copenhagen, Berlin, Vienna, Paris and Liverpool. During our entire journey thus far nothing whatever has happened to the motor car. This is truly a remarkable record for any kind of a mechanical invention and thoroughly demonstrates the reliability of the car as well as the tires, which are now in a fair condition and good for many miles' drive.

Our Swedish drive of 1540 miles to this point was through 500 cities, towns and settlements. No ragged clothed children nor beggars have we seen and not over five cases of intoxication. Great kindness is shown to all dumb animals, and in only one instance, and that under trying conditions, have we seen a horse struck.

The haying season is at its height and the entire family is to be seen working in the fields. The harvest commences in September and by the end of the month the preparations for the long nights are completed, except the filling of the woodsheds to meet a low continuous temperature registering 40 below zero. During the long winter some of the men cut wood, others lie about, smoking, taking care of their stock, remaining indoors, sleeping more hours than they are awake.

On our drive north of Harparanda, we passed many settlements of Finns. The Lapps at this season are herding reindeer in the mountains a few miles westward. The reindeer at all times of the year feed on dry moss, nothing else. They are valued at 30 kroner ($8) each. A Lapp is fairly well to do if he owns from 200 to 300, but a few very wealthy ones own from one to three thousand. The reindeer is used as a draught animal and for food, its horns for spoons, bones for needles and hides for coats, gloves and bed clothing.

Russia this year has driven out into Sweden 10,000 Finns. The government of Finland has been until recently in the people's own hands. The Finnish soldiers were removed to central Russia, and government officials dismissed and Russians put into all offices. All the Finns who expressed dissatisfaction at the regime have been ordered out of the country. Sweden gains by the expulsion, as the Finns are a law-abiding, industrious people. They were much interested in the automobile and appear a more intelligent class than the Lapps. The older Finns do not speak the Swedish language, but the children who attend school talk Swedish and are rapidly improving themselves.

Only one foreigner besides ourselves has registered at the Harparanda hotel for three years and he was a journalist from Paris.

The drive to the circle from Harparanda and return, 125 miles, was accomplished on a bad reindeer in 10 hours. At Matarengi, 15 miles from the circle, we took aboard the car the postmaster of the district, to whom at the circle Mrs. Glidden presented the American flag carried from Boston. He gave us a document, of which the following is a copy:

"NORRA, POLCIRKELN DEN.

16 Aug., 1903.

"Undertecknad erkenner harmed emottagit af Herr Charles J. Glidden of Boston, Mass., U. S. A., en Amerikans flagga hvilken samma forde med sig i sin automobil som detta var den forsta automobil som pasarat norra polsirkeln vill jag bevara somma flagga som ett minne (tecnad).

"A. MARTINELL.

"Postmastare i of vertornea."

Translated, this is as follows:

"NORTH POLAR CIRCLE.

Aug. 16, 1903.

"The undersigned acknowledge to have received from Mr. Charles J. Glidden of Boston, Mass., U. S. A., an American flag which he brought with him in his automobile. As this was the first automobile to pass the Arctic circle I will keep this flag as a souvenir.

"A. MARTINELL.

"Postmaster of Upper Tornea."

On our return from the circle the streets of Harparanda were filled with people, who loudly applauded the success of our undertaking in driving the first automobile the entire length of Sweden and across the Arctic circle.

ROBBER CAUGHT

Found Lying Across Railroad Tracks

By Associated Press to The Sun

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Sept. 3.—The sheriff has secured a prisoner under unusual circumstances. He is believed to be wanted in Placer county for stage robbery. He was found lying across the railroad track at Barstow unconscious from a terrible blow on top of the head. He evidently had been placed there to be cut to pieces by the west bound overland train. In his pockets was found a mask and the card of "M. J. Bailey," of the Silverton, Cal., waiters' union. The man was found on the track several hours after the theft of a Wells-Fargo treasure box and it is believed by the police that he participated in and that he was later struck on the head by his partners in the crime and left for the train to end their work.

PARKS WILL LEAD

Will Ride at Head of Labor Day Parade

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Samuel Parks will ride at the head of the Labor parade next Monday, and there is a strong probability that William S. Devery, who has been his friend, will ride beside him. That the man who has just come from prison will be the grand marshal of the parade was decided at a meeting of the United Board of Building Trades yesterday.

Eight other walking delegates, who will act as aids to Parks, will be on horseback. They are: Timothy McCarthy, who was indicted with Parks; Richard Carvel, M. Goldnets, J. Mullaney, P. O'Neil, Wm. Fife, Frederick Leman and James Alnslow. Parks' organization, the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's union, will have the right of line.

Parks was forced to take to his bed yesterday. To the reaction coming after his release from Sing Sing prison and the excitement attending his welcome by his labor union friends was added a return of his malarial trouble and a decided increase in his temperature.

When asked how many men would be in line Labor Day, Parks said: "If there had not been all this trouble in the ranks, there would have been 100,000 men, but now I don't suppose there will be more than 25,000 or 30,000."

He did not seem to realize that when he said this he was admitting that 70,000 must have deserted from the faction which he leads.

When questioned about a report that he had said he had under way a new plan which would turn the tables on the employers he said: "Wouldn't I be foolish, if I had any such plan, to talk about it so that the bosses would learn all about it and be warned?"

The bas relief when found was already packed for dispatch abroad. It is expected that other precious objects which recently disappeared will be recovered.

FIRE ON BROADWAY

Vellieux's Cash Market Badly Gutted

A lively blaze started in Vellieux's public cash market in Broadway shortly after eight o'clock last night, which necessitated the ringing in of an alarm from box 39. The local department responded promptly, and through their efforts the fire was placed under control before very much damage was done.

The fire was first discovered by Matthew Mitchell, who rushed down Broadway to where Sergt. John B. Crowley was standing, and the latter broke in the door of the store and removed what books and papers he could find to a place of safety. In the meantime an alarm from box 39 at the corner of Fletcher and Broadway was pulled in.

When the department arrived on the scene the appearance of the blaze was suggestive of a stubborn battle, but after a stream of water and a few lines from the Central chemical company had been directed onto the flames the fire was checked in short order. The interior of the building suffered to a great extent from fire, while Mr. Vellieux's stock was damaged by smoke and water. The stock is insured in the agency of Frank M. Brogan.

J. A. Green, the owner of the building, stated last night that the damage to the building would amount to over $200, and the proprietor of the store stated that a similar amount would just about cover his loss. Both losses are covered by insurance. The origin of the blaze is unknown, and of course the innocent rat and the sulphur-headed sticks have another charge to answer for.

Frank M. Brogan had the insurance.

Nocturnal marauders with an eye to clotheslines visited the premises of Mrs. Bridget Lawler at the corner of High and Andover streets a few nights ago and relieved two clotheslines of considerable weight. Complaints by those whose lines have been stripped have been made at police station and the police are looking for the thieves.

DR. LOUGEST

Has Had More Experience in the Treatment, and Made More Great Cures of Difficult, Protracted and Chronic Diseases and Weaknesses of Men Than Any Other Living Specialist

Dr. Lougest's treatment has been tested on more than twenty thousand (20,000) young, middle-aged and old men, who, as the results of errors or excesses, were tortured by the woes of nervous debility or decay. It has never yet failed, even in the worst cases, to bring back manly power, remove every trace or symptom of weakness, build up the physical and mental health, and prepare man anew for the duties and pleasures of both married and single life.

Lost Manhood, seminal weakness, effects of youthful indiscretions, nervous debility, pimples and blotches, hair falling out, loss of memory and energy, impotence, rheumatic pains, discharges and all private diseases quickly and permanently cured by an original and never-failing treatment. Blood poison, ulcers, stricture, varicocele and diseases of the kidneys, bladder and blood cured in the shortest possible time, without the use of mercury or hindrance from business. Dr. Lougest's treatment for the complete cure of Stricture and all unnatural discharges is the most wonderful of modern times. No matter how long the discharge has continued nor how many self-styled specialists have failed to relieve, let alone cure, Dr. Lougest will positively guarantee to stop the discharge entirely within (3) three days by means of his New Method Treatment. This treatment removes Strictures, positively without pain, detention from business or the use of obnoxious or injurious medicines. No Experiment! No Failure! Nine-tenths of all the long standing discharges, strictures and weaknesses of men are caused by the experiments of the many inexperienced and self-styled specialists of the present day.

Many a man who has been fooled by the "Pay When Cured" racket, knows that it is the last and only resort of a dying-out pretender to get a patient into his clutches. Beware of such schemes. Don't be deceived by misleading statements such as these seemingly charitable offers.

Don't entrust your lives to anyone not qualified by years of experience to treat you. Don't even step your foot across the threshold of an office run by inexperienced, irresponsible, illiterate pretenders. You had better save your money and let your disease take its own course than be practised and experimented upon and in the end lose both your money and life.

Dr. Lougest's offices occupy the entire building of five floors at 313 Columbus avenue, and they are supplied with every known means and device that science, skill, knowledge and money can provide that will aid in determining the exact location and nature of these diseases and effecting their cure promptly and thoroughly, and by the same sure methods as are used in the most Celebrated Paris Hospitals, which invariably result in

Man Shot Down Woman Who Refused to Elope

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 2—Henry F. Edson, 30 years old, living in West 92d street, shot and killed Mrs. Fannie Pullen, 33 years of age, of West End avenue today and then shot and killed himself. The shooting occurred at Edson's residence.

The murderer and suicide was Henry Townsend Edson, aged 29 years, who was the son of former Mayor Franklin Edson and a brother of Dr. Cyrus Edson. He is said to have been insanely jealous of the woman and wanted her to go away with him. The shooting occurred in the presence of Dr. David O. Edson, the suicide's brother, his wife, Mrs. Henry T. Edson, and a baggage mover, Thomas Wood.

The families of Henry Townsend Edson and Dr. Edson have lived together in the 92nd street house for a number of months. Today Henry T. Edson was to vacate and leave the city for a short time. According to the police and Woods, the furniture man, Edson had begged Mrs. Pullen to elope with him.

Dr. Edson told his brother he should be ashamed to make such a proposal in the presence of his wife. Townsend Edson became wildly excited and could not be calmed. He kept entreating Mrs. Pullen to leave the house and go to another state, but she refused.

When Woods entered the house, he says he saw Townsend Edson point his revolver toward Mrs. Pullen and heard him say to her:

"You must go with me. If you don't elope with me, I'll see that you go with me anyway."

Mrs. Pullen was standing facing him, her hands over her face. Then Townsend fired two shots in quick succession. The first struck Mrs. Pullen in the right side of the forehead, and the second bullet ploughed through the left cheek. Mrs. Pullen, as the first shot was fired, started to run. She had almost reached the dining room door when she fell. Edson then turned the revolver on himself, firing two shots. The first went through his head, the second entered the left breast near the heart. He dropped to the floor, his head falling across the dead woman's feet. Both died almost instantly.

Mrs. Henry T. Edson fainted and was attended by Dr. Edson who had witnessed the shooting.

Recently, Henry T. Edson had quarrelled with his wife and finally decided he would leave her. Wood, the furniture mover, was called, and began packing up bric-a-brac, preparatory to taking it to a storage house. Edson had sent for Mrs. Pullen, who was a friend of the family and she came to the house not knowing what was wanted. Wood was busy in another room and Edson and his wife, Mrs. Pullen and Dr. Edson were seated about the dining room table. Edson is said to have told his wife he could not live with her any longer and said that it would be better if they separated. This request was refused by Mrs. Edson and the approaching trouble was quieted for the time. Suddenly, it is said, Edson turned to Mrs. Pullen, in the presence of his wife and brother and asked her to go away with him to some other state where they could be happy. The proposal, evidently made in earnestness, although for the first time, came as a blow to the others. Mrs. Pullen indignantly refused the proposal and turned away from Edson. Dr. Edson severely reprimanded his brother for making any such remarks and then left the room with Mrs. Edson. Almost immediately four shots were heard. Rushing back into the room, the two were found lying on the floor, and the room was covered with blood. Dr. Edson rushed out of the house and notified the police.

Captain Nally and Detective Maloney went to the house and later took Dr. Edson and Wood to the station house as witnesses. Dr. Edson was released, and went back to care for Mrs. Edson, the widow, but Wood was detained as he had refused to make any statement. Captain Nally said, until he received permission from his employers.

Mrs. Pullen was the wife of John F. Pullen, an auditor of the Grand Central station. She had two children, a son, Trafton Pullen, 16 years old and a daughter, Mary, 11 years old. Mrs. Pullen and Mrs. Edson had been intimate friends for eleven years. Mrs. Edson had spent considerable time at Mrs. Pullen's home for months and also stayed there for the last few days. Mrs. Edson after spending last night at the Pullen house, was about to go out this morning, when the janitor of the 92d street house arrived with a note from Edson asking Mrs. Edson, his wife, and Mrs. Pullen to come to the house to see him. This they decided to do.

Henry Townsend Edson was an officer of St. Michael's Episcopal church of which the Rev. Dr. John C. Peters is rector.

Coroner Jackson, after a thorough examination of the rooms, made the following brief statement:

"The evidence from my investigation shows that the murder and suicide were premeditated. I have found letters and other papers in Edson's possession in the house that show that he had had a love affair."

When asked if the "love affair" was with Mrs. Pullen, the coroner said he could not answer, but spoke as if it was not.

TEACH SEDITION SAYS THE TURKISH MINISTER.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 2—The Turkish minister at Washington is reported to have declared that American colleges in Turkey teach sedition and hostility to the government. Rev. James L. Barton, D. D., foreign secretary of the American board, today said:

"I have personally visited no less than six of these colleges with whose administration I am personally acquainted. I also know the presidents of other American colleges in Turkey. These institutions do not allow any sedition or disloyalty within their walls. Both teachers and students are summarily dismissed when suspected of agitating such views. This has been the invariable custom from the foundations of the schools.

"It would be a most short-sighted policy to do otherwise, even if the administrators of these American schools felt so inclined. They would have everything to lose and nothing whatever to gain.

"American institutions in Turkey are loyal in their teaching and not abusive of the privileges granted them by the Turkish government."

HE WAS ARRESTED

Thos. Callahan Shouldn't Have Gone to Court

Jennie McClusky was in police court today charged with abandoning her 14-months-old child in Adams street last May.

Thomas Callahan, the father of the child, was an interested spectator in court and had he known just how the wheels of justice would turn he would have given the courtroom a wide berth.

He was recognized, and while he interested himself in other matters going on in court a warrant was being sworn out against him for bastardy. He never had asked for or done anything for the child.

When placed under arrest he said he was willing to marry the girl. She was willing to marry him but Judge Hadley decided he would order Callahan for the grand jury in the sum of $400. Had Callahan kept away from the court room his freedom would not have been interfered with.

THE JURY BOX

Four Names Drawn by Aldermen Today

A speedily called special meeting of the board of aldermen was held at 2.30 o'clock this afternoon for the purpose of drawing four jurors for the September session of the superior court to be held at Lowell.

At the appointed hour Aldermen Miskella, Casey, Derby, Gallagher, Hill and Molloy were on hand and the chairman called to order with a quorum present.

The chairman appointed Alderman Derby to draw the names of four jurors from the box and the drawing resulted as follows:

Isadore Turcotte, 32 Mammoth Road, bookkeeper.

Nelson Palm, 25 Fay street, gardener.

Frank H. Howard, 17 Abbott street, carpenter.

Edward Flynn, 96 Crosby street, butcher.

Chairman Miskella called attention to the fact that it is near time to select the polling places of the city and as wards five and six are without regular polling places he thought it time for the introduction of order for the appointment of a committee on polling places.

He then read the order calling for the appointment of a committee of three aldermen to act as a committee to designate the polling places. The order was adopted and Aldermen Molloy, Casey and Hill were appointed.

LILLIAN O'HARE AND CLARE AUGUSTA ARE PROGRESSING.

Lillian O'Hare, aged 14 years and Clare Augusta, aged 20 years, who were injured in two of the local mills more than a month ago, are progressing at the Lowell hospital. While at their work they were caught in one of the machines and their scalps nearly torn from their head.

"I wore my hair pinned up at my neck and tied with a black ribbon," said Lillian O'Hare to the reporter yesterday. "I can't remember how it happened, only that there was an awful grinding pain. I thought I was dying; then everything seemed to grow dark, and when the mist fell away, I was on my way to the hospital."

"Yes," said the nurse, "Lillian was just as composed as Clare. She, too, walked into the operating room, talking very fast, talking all the time, but in every way conscious of what she was saying."

They know that they will live, for the doctors have told them that the delicate, and until a few years ago unknown operation of skin grafting will undoubtedly be successful.

The grafting in both cases had to be done so quickly that Dr. Simpson, the superintendent, took the required amount of skin from the limbs, and has since repeated the operation with marked success. The process is so slow and difficult that it is impossible for him to predict when recovery will be complete.

THEIR PLATFORM

Democrats Object to Corruptive Rule

By Associated Press to The Sun

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 2.—The democratic state convention was called to order by State Chairman Hall at 12.26 today. Following the reading of the formal call for the convention, Chairman Hall announced that William J. Brennan of Pittsburg had been selected temporary chairman by the executive committee. Mr. Brennan accepted the position in a brief speech.

The standing committees were appointed and the convention took a recess to allow the committees to dispose of the business referred to them.

THE PLATFORM ADOPTED.

"The organized democracy of Pennsylvania calls upon all Pennsylvanians to unite with it in a supreme effort to rid our commonwealth of that selfish, extravagant, corrupt and debasing rule which still control its affairs.

"We repeat the charges elaborated in the platform of our last state convention and reaffirm that to the pledges and to the candidates of the democratic party alone can the people of our state turn for deliverance from the evils under which they suffer.

"Not one pledge made by the republican machine as a condition of its continuance in power has been kept. Today we witness the astonishing spectacle of almost the entire republican press of the state and country denouncing the governor for his approval of the Grady-Sabin libel law. He avoided, as they declare, of the worst features and purposes of the republican machine. This law, they charge, was deliberately intended by its authors and promoters as an assault on the freedom of the press.

"To the repeal of this measure can safely count upon the vote and effort of every democratic member of the legislature.

We denounce the republican organization for its repeated and persistent disregard of its pledges to give the state a fair ballot law, and we demand the enactment of a law which shall insure a free and equal secret ballot.

"We deplore the continued existence of labor troubles and express the hope that through concessions, moderation and fair dealing early adjustments may be reached. While we concede to capital and to employers the utmost protection guaranteed by the constitution and the laws, we also declare it to be our conviction that labor has the right to the protection which comes through organization and union.

Grobowski of the Textile Workers' union of Chicopee Falls, but Mr. Grobowski informed the Dover agent that as the local mills are now, he is in no position to offer any assistance to the Dover mills. The agent from the Dover mills waited upon Secretary Grobowski about ten days ago, at which time Mr. Grobowski offered to assist him in securing employes providing the Chicopee manufacturing company's mill did not resume work. The mills are now operating on a full time schedule, however, and the Poles seem willing to remain at the falls.

10.10 a. m. Opening prices showed slight declines on a small volume of business. St. Paul opened off 5-8 and then rallied 1-2 and Pacific Mail and Chicago Terminal pfd. were down a point. A rise of 1-4 in United States Steel was the only important exception to the downward tendency.

11 a. m.—The opening declines measured the extent of the selling movement. Subsequent dealings developed a better tone for the active stocks and the slight losses were recovered. Weakness prevailed in a number of minor stocks. Colorado Fuel losing 2 1-2, and Smelting, Consolidated Gas, Pressed Steel Car pfd. and Grass Twine pfd., a point.

Noon—The general movement of prices was quite unimportant. There was a slight rise which did not hold. Atchison and Pittsburg C. C. gained 1½. People's Gas lost 1¾ and Consolidated 1.

Bonds were irregular.

1 p. m. Railway stocks held well, despite the neglect and additional sharp declines in the specialties. Amalgamated declined 3 points, Metropolitan Street Railway 2⅛, Peoples Gas 2¼, General Electric 2 and St. Paul and Omaha 1½. North American advanced 2 and New York, Chicago & St. Louis second pfd. 6.

2 p. m. Large buying orders appeared in Atchison and the stock advanced 1½. The general market hardly made any response to the rise outside of Rock Island which gained a good fraction. Metropolitan Street Railway recovered 1¼.

WITNESS HELMER

Gave Description of Brakes and Cars

THE PROSECUTION OF RAILROAD OFFICIALS CONTINUES

Frederick Evans Read the Company's Records

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 2.—In the trial of the officials of the North Jersey street railway company, accused of manslaughter in connection with the Clifton avenue grade crossing accident, the first witness today was Frederick Helmer, the repair man at the Clifton avenue car sheds, whose testimony was a technical description of the cars and brakes.

Frederick Evans, former secretary of Vice-president Hobart and now secretary of the public service corporation, was called upon to produce the books containing the by-laws of the North Jersey street railway company. From this the prosecutor read selected sections on the duties of directors and officials showing how the various duties are delegated from one to another, but they all are responsible for the carrying out of the rules of the company.

After Prosecutor Ryker had finished reading extracts from the by-laws of the company, he told the witness, Mr. Evans, to refer to the company's books for the year preceding the date of the accident and tell who were present at the several meetings of th executive committee of the board of directors. An investigation of the books showed that the members of the committee under indictment were at nearly all the meetings.

Mr. Riker then offered the minutes of the executive committee in evidence. Mr. Riker then proceeded to show the positions held by the indicted men on the date of the accident, but counsel for the defence said they would admit all that and the calling of witnesses was resumed, further testimony as to the accident being presented.

W. K. McFarlane, former chief engineer of the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad, was called to tell what he knew about contracts made between the Morris & Essex railroad and the North Jersey Street Railway company for the placing of derailing switches. The witness admitted that he had objected to the plan of placing a derailing switch at the Clifton avenue crossing, but it would have been interlocked with the signal system of his railroad and would have held up trains whenever a trolley car crossed the tracks.

SOLD AT AUCTION

ASSETS OF DEFUNCT BROADWAY NATIONAL BANK.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—The final step was taken today in the tedious liquidation which followed the business crash in this city in 1900. The remaining assets of the defunct Broadway National bank, which could not be disposed by the receiver, were sold at auction at noon by Francis Peabshaw, who closed out paper having a face value of $240,000 for $2700. The assets included about ninety separate items, of which about $130,000 was in notes, $100,000 in bonds, and the remainder in stock.

The Broadway bank failed in December, 1900, together with the John P. Squire company corporation, pork packers, a dozen allied companies and numerous other concerns. The bank held $175,000 of the Squire paper and was closed by the comptroller of the currency in consequence.

Directly and indirectly, the crash led to failures involving liabilities of upwards of $20,000,000. The large amount of doubtful paper afloat in the city at the time was instrumental in fional bank, and the imprisonment of the failure of the unsound Globe Natts former president.

STEAMER WHITNEY STRUCK GUNBOAT SCORPION.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The Metropolitan line steamer H. M. Whitney, bound for Boston, was in collision in the East river today with the gunboat Scorpion. The two vessels struck at a point in the river well toward the Brooklyn shore.

The Scorpion struck the Whitney on the starboard bow and drove two holes in the vessel, one about seven feet above the water line and the other about two feet above. The hole on the top was a large one and penetrated almost through to the port side. The Whitney put back to her pier, where she discharged her freight and passengers. She will be taken to the Erie Basin for repairs.

The Scorpion had a large hole stove in her bow. She proceeded to the navy yard for repairs.

DESTROY BRIDGES

Vigorous Work Authorized by Porte

By Associated Press to The Sun

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 2.—According to government advices Colonel Jankoff, the insurgent leader, who, with a strong following, is operating southward of Demotyka, has been entrusted with the task of destroying the larger bridges of the railroad running from Dedeagatch on the south coast, to Kulell-Burgas, south of Adrianople over the Maritza and Arda rivers, so as to cut off communication with Adrianople from the south and delay the troops who are on their way to the threatened city. The government believes it has taken measures which will bring about a speedy and, it is hoped, decisive battle with the insurgent forces commanded by Colonel Jankoff. The police officials were in constant communication with the authorities at Adrianople throughout Monday formulating plans to master the situation in the vilayet.

The crowds which witnessed last night's illuminations here in honor of the anniversary of the accession of the sultan, were not so large as usual.

The police recently have been exercising great severity towards the Mussulmans suspected of inciting trouble in the disturbed villages and has arrested and banished large numbers. While the Russian squadron was in India bay no less than 142 Mussulmans were expelled on account of their unconcealed hostility to Russia.

LIPTON'S DENIAL

Of Rumors Concerning His Captain

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Persistent rumors were abroad last night and this morning that Sir Thomas Lipton had made two importnt assertions:

First:—That if there was any chance for Shamrock III. to win, he would depose Capt. Wringe and put the yacht under control of Mate Bevis, and, second, that Shamrock was found too long after her speedy trials and that in bringing her up to the proper measurement, she had been stripped so much as to lose her speed.

Sir Thomas was told of these rumors this morning and he said with unmistakeable emphasis:

"I am going to reiterate most strongly what I have said repeatedly. I have no criticism to make of Captain Wringe. He has done his best for me. If I should build another boat and come over here again, the captain of it would be Mr. Wringe and let that be his commendation. These stories came from people who visit me on the Erin and make their own criticisms. If I don't dissent they go away and say that I practically assent to the view they themselves have asserted.

"Now as to the second rumor, I will not deny it. It is not worth denying. Shamrock was built for me, in good faith, fully as much so as was Reliance for Mr. Iselin. Up to the time of the first race, I thought, and others thought with me, including many experts, that I had a fine boat. Reliance is better. I could not know that before the race, or else why race? I have perfect faith in my designer, my captain, and my crew and we have all done and are still doing our best. I hope this may settle this vexatious controversy. Of course, I cannot stop criticism, but I do wish that adverse criticism of my fellow-workers and my boat made by outsiders would not be credited to me because I stand by and do not make vociferous dissent."

OBJECT TO MACHINERY

FIFTY WORKMEN WENT OUT ON STRIKE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

SALEM, Mass., Sept. 2—Fifty workmen employed at the D. D. Lefavor shoe company's factory in this city in the capacity of pullers-over, struck today because they objected to the introduction of machinery into their department. The strikers are Greeks, Armenians and Poles. The factory has a large number of orders on hand at this time, and if the concern is unable to secure workmen to fill the places of the strikers the factory may be crippled. A member of the company said today that because they were unable to hire enough men in the department to do the work it was found necessary to put in the machinery. There is no grievance, however, he said, over the wages or hours of work.

OPENED TODAY AT SEA GIRT, NEW JERSEY.

By Associated Press to The Sun

SEA GIRT, N. J., Sept. 2—The most elaborate shooting tournament, employing the rifle, revolver, carbine and pistol, this country has ever known, opened here today. All the big states are well represented, as are the army, navy and the marine corps. Shooting in all the individual competitions, with the exception of the Wimbledon cup and the president's watch, was in order. As in these competitions re-entries were allowable, the results will not be known until the close of the meet.

The conditions for shooting are by no means favorable, because of a haze that partly obscured the targets.

COTTON EXPORTS

Sec. Hester Makes Interesting Report

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 2.—The totals of Secretary Hester's annual report of the cotton crop of the United States were promulgated yesterday. They show receipts of cotton at all United States ports of the year 7,724,104 against 7,679,290 last year; overland to northern mills and Canada 1,087,263 against 1,103,952; southern consumption taken direct from the interior of cotton belt 1,920,072 against 1,897,437, making the cotton crop of the United States for 1902-'03 amount to 10,727,559 against 10,680,680 bales last year and 10,393,422 the year before. The report shows that cotton mills including woolen mills that have used cotton have consumed a total of 2,000,729 bales, but of this 80,657 were taken from ports and included in port receipts. This shows that the mills of the south have used up 62,900 bales more than during 1901-'02 and 37,798 more than during 1900-'01.

Secretary Hester reports the exports for the year as follows:

To Great Britain 2,851,528 against 3,035,497, a decrease of 183,969. To France 785,679, against 745,969, an increase of 39,710; to continental European ports 3,039,958 against 2,859,344, an increase of 180,614; to British North America 123,677 against 122,261, an increase of 1416; the total export foreign, including British North American amounting to 6,800,843 against 6,763,071, an increase of 37,772. He states that Japan and China took of the past crop 135,408 bales against 169,243, a decrease of 33,835.

MORE COUNSEL FEES

AWARDED TO MRS. RICH BY JUSTICE BLANCHARD.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Justice Blanchard yesterday awarded to Mrs. Nancy Rich $250 additional counsel fee to enable her to defend the appeal taken by her husband, William N. Rich, a wealthy jeweller, in his suit against her for absolute divorce.

Mr. Rich named a young Princeton student who was a frequent caller at the Rich home.

Some months ago the suit was tried before a jury, and a verdict was rendered in favor of the wife.

"At that time," said A. H. Hummel, "the court allowed Mrs. Rich $30 a week alimony. Mr. and Mrs. Rich had until then resided at 21 East Seventy-first street. But after his defeat Mr. Rich moved his family to cheaper apartments in a hotel to humiliate his wife who is a refined woman and has been accustomed to a life of luxury. Indeed, it is well known that Mr. Rich's household expenditures until the time of the trial amounted to from $12,000 to $20,000 a year.

"And now Mr. Rich is taking his 12-year-old son out nights and to the race track, evidently to make a tout of him."

Mr. Rich's lawyer said that the court order allowing Mrs. Rich $30 a week made no provision that the husband was also to furnish a home and food and clothing for her.

"And yet Mr. Rich has done all this. And the reason he removed to a hotel was for the sake of comfort. At the old home there was but one dining room, used in common, and Mr. Rich said his wife used to make his life a hell on earth. Now he can eat wherever and whenever he pleases."

After granting the $250 for counsel fee, Justice Blanchard referred the question of an increase of alimony to Justice Davis, who had granted the original alimony.

WOMAN IS DEAD

SHE FELL UNDER AN ELECTRIC CAR.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—The young woman who jumped from an electric car, at the South End last night, supposed to be Miss A. Monahan, died at a hospital today. The woman fell and her skull was fractured by contact with the curbstone. A card was found on her bearing the address of an oculist, who said that yesterday he treated the young woman who gave her name as Miss A. Monahan and her address 27 Dover street. No one at the latter address, however, seemed to know a Miss Monahan.

GARB OF A MONK

Donned by Suspicious Character at Fitchburg

By Associated Press to The Sun

FITCHBURG, Mass., Sept. 2.—The police of this city are searching for a man representing himself as a monk from Galway, Ireland, who has been soliciting funds in this section of the state.

According to the police, the man they are looking for is six feet tall, has gray hair and is apparently 60 years old. He was dressed like a priest and represented himself to be in search of funds to maintain a seminary at Galway.

The attention of the police was called to the man by a resident who said he had been solicited for funds and was suspicious that everything was not as represented by the alleged monk.

Chief of Police Tinsley telephoned to Rev. D. F. Feehan, pastor of St. Bernard's church and learned that the so-called monk had failed to impress any of the clergy there that he was what he claimed to be.

Police Officer William E. Hackett met the stranger and told him that Chief Tinsley wanted to see him, but the man absolutely refused and said he would not go to the station unless he went as a prisoner. The officer had not received instructions to arrest the man. The alleged monk professed his innocence of any illegal act and promised to leave town at once. The police watched out-going trains and have not seen him go. The officers have also kept watch of two other men who they say they believe came to Fitchburg with him.

PRESIDENT'S GUESTS

SENATOR BEVERIDGE DISCUSSED FEDERAL APPOINTMENTS.

By Associated Press to The Sun

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Sept. 2.—President Roosevelt had as guests at luncheon today, Senator Beveridge of Indiana and one of the latter's constituents, a Mr. Pettit, and Dr. J. H. Finley, who soon is to be installed as president of the College of the City of New York. Senator Beveridge came to see the president about some federal appointments in Indiana and to talk with him about the work of the approaching session of congress. Dr. Findley's call was social.

Later in the afternoon the president received I. N. Stevens, a newspaper editor of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Frank Mead, both of whom desired to discuss with him some western matters. Mr. Mead's mission related particularly to some Indian affairs.

BIG GATHERING

ATTRACTED BY THE REVERE CARNIVAL.

By Associated Press to The Sun

REVERE, Sept. 2.—The fair weather yesterday, made Revere Beach the objective point of many thousand pleasure seekers, attracted by the free outdoor shows of the carnival being conducted this week and next by the business men of the resort. The attendance was beyond all expectation of the managers of the carnival, but the crowd was handled well and the various amusements provided on the sands of the beach went off without a hitch.

People began to arrive at the beach long before 2 o'clock, the time of the first outdoor performance, by Reed and Shaw, called a Roman and Mexican ring act. Next the flying Gordons, a quartet of aerial acrobats, won the plaudits of thousands as they swung about amazingly on trapeze and frames high in the air.

Next came the performance of Prof. Oldrieve, the man who walks on the water.

Then came the feature of the afternoon. Prof. Oldrieve exploded four dynamite bombs in the ocean, and each one sent a huge volume of water several hundred feet in the air, it seemed.

The effect of the electric illumination of the State boulevard along the beach, for almost a mile, was very fine last evening, for the defects of the first night, caused by the storm's interference, were remedied. At 10 o'clock there were more torpedoes explodd in the water, and calcium light effects gave a pleasing variation to the display. The programme for the evening concluded with a pyrotechnic naval battle, in which the ships engaged were on the sea instead of the land, as was necessary Monday night because of the roughness of the water.

CRUISER CLEVELAND

WAS NOT FAVORED WITH EFFICIENT FIREMEN.

By Associated Press to The Sun

PORTLAND, Maine, Sept. 2.—The trial board which witnessed the official run of the cruiser Cleveland over the Cape Ann course yesterday, was in session today figuring up the tidal corrections and otherwise preparing its report on the trip. There was one accident, the break in the hot air pump and one slow down of something over a minute to let a three-masted schooner, which crossed the line ahead of the cruiser, go by in safety.

The latter delay will be deducted from the elapsed time while the builders must stand the other. Nothing was given out today concerning the work of the board. There was a general understanding that the cruiser, while she reached a speed above the contract limit, for a portion of the run, was not driven at the required rate of 16.50 for the average. It was said here that the work of the firemen hired by the builders was inefficient and that there was no trouble with the ship. If the Cleveland fails she can be accepted at a reduced price.

BOARDER GONE

Manchester's Horse Also is Missing

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW BEDFORD, Sept. 2—Benjamin Manchester, who lives on the New Bedford and Unset road, just west of the herring weir in Mattapoisett, has lost three star boarders, also $5, a watch and a horse and carriage.

All the losses came at the same time and were the culmination of such a long string of similar experiences that Mr. Manchester came to town yesterday to see a lawyer about it. Mr. Manchester went to Wareham yesterday with Constable Charles F. Nye, to swear out a warrant against one of his boarders, Oliver F. Hapgood, who claims Fall River as his residence.

Mr. Hapgood, who says he is an agent for a firm of nurserymen in Rochester, N. Y., arrived at Mr. Manchester's house last spring and engaged board and lodging there. After a time he went away and when he returned he brought his wife and a baby with him. He is about 25 or 30 years old. He made a hit with Mr. Manchester and soon won his way into the old gentleman's good graces. Hapgood took great interest in the household affairs. He early discovered that certain of the furniture was out of repair and at his suggestion it was sent to New Bedford to be renovated. The furniture has not yet been returned to the Manchester homestead. The carpet was dirty with the use of years and ought to be cleaned, said Hapgood. So the carpet followed the furniture and the Manchesters haven't seen it since.

By and by Hapgood brought his younger brother George to board with him. The income of the Manchesters, however, was not increased correspondingly. In fact, it remained stationary. Two weeks ago Hapgood announced that he was going away. It would only be for a week, however, and would Mr. Manchester kindly let him take his horse and carriage. The rig was Mrs. Manchester's, but her husband let Hapgood take it. He also lent him a watch and $5 for incidental expenses. The week went by, but the Hapgoods and the horse and carriage, to say nothing of the $5 and the watch, came not.

Mr. Manchester was wondering what had happened when he received a letter from Hapgood stating that the horse had broken its leg and was useless in a certain stable in Fall River. Mr. Manchester went to Fall River to see for himself, but the stableman had never heard of the horse with a broken leg. Deeply disconsolate, Mr. Manchester returned to his home to think it all over. The result of his meditations was his visit to Wareham.

When a city official wants a reelection to office he should be ready if called upon to show that he had done something to merit a reelection.

Nothing tests a law or anything else like practical application. Under the new automobile law it is found that any boy who can read and write English can get registered as a chauffeur. That is a defect in the law that should be remedied as soon as possible. As it stands now it is a practical inducement to incompetents to get registered. It is a dangerous law. The oversight here evident in the statute shows the results of hasty legislative work.

THE POLICE TO BLAME.

The local police have all to do with the enforcement of the no-license law. When the police court dock is filled with drunks and the police appear against them the conviction must come home to the minds of the spectators that the police are more to blame than the persons who are there to answer the charge of drunkenness. The police are themselves indirectly to blame; but yet they place the entire blame upon the prisoners. Judge Hadley has repeatedly told the officers that the number of drunks in court gives ample proof of the laxity with which the no license law is enforced. The demonstration given early in the year proved conclusively that the law can be enforced. Why this relaxation on the part of the police?

THE JOINT CAUCUS ACT.

An important question to be passed upon by the voters at the state election will be the adoption or rejection of the act providing for joint party caucuses for all political or municipal parties.

If the act be accepted then thereafter all the ward caucuses of all political parties will be held at the same time and place. From the fact that but one primary is provided for each ward there are serious barriers to the practical working of the act in this city. Few if any of the ward rooms would be big enough to accommodate all.

How could all the voters of ward eight be crowded into the Branch street engine house or how could all the voters of ward seven be provided with voting facilities in the Fletcher street engine house? As for ward four it is well known that the Lyon street ward room is packed to suffocation at every democratic caucus. What would be the condition of affairs if all the republicans of the ward had to assemble there and select their candidates at the same time? The thing is an actual impossibility.

Hence unless provision be made for precinct caucuses, which to our mind seems undesirable, there are insuperable obstacles to the practical working of the act in this city. Consequently it would be the best policy for Lowell voters to reject the act this year. By next year there will be a clearer idea of the law and its effect. Its working in other cities will serve to guide the voters of this city. There is no hurry about adopting the new law. We can get along very well with our present mode of selecting candidates. In the long run it may be superior to the new method provided for by the act to be submitted to the voters in November.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE WATER BOARD.

The eyes of the state are upon us for more reasons than one. The calamitous explosion brought us wide notoriety of a kind that was not at all desirable. But for the explosion we were not responsible, although it spread disaster on all sides.

But immediately after comes an epidemic of typhoid fever that has already cost as many as half a dozen lives. For that epidemic and all the lives it cost the water board is primarily responsible. We have heard the explanation of the water board and most people have accepted it, but in spite of the claim that the source of contamination of our water supply has been shut off, the cases of typhoid continue to appear and the usual percentage of the cases results in death.

There is reason to believe also that the fatalities resulting from the disease are even greater than reported as there are some doctors quite unwilling to let it appear that they lose a typhoid patient. They are ready to assign other causes of death when a typhoid patient succumbs to the disease.

If an individual was run down on the street and killed there would be a great outcry against the guilty party, but here is a case in which as many as half a dozen lives are taken through carelessness or mismanagement on the part of the water board.

The public has demanded that the source of the contamination of our water supply be removed; as still the typhoid cases are becoming more and more numerous. It appears, therefore, that the cause is still operative despite the statement of the water board.

When is the epidemic to be checked? What steps have been taken to prevent a repetition of the breaks which are said to have caused the trouble?

What steps have been taken to ascertain that all the sources of contamination have been removed or cut off? It would seem that there are still undiscovered sources of contamination as otherwise the epidemic would show signs of subsiding. On the contrary, however, the cases of typhoid reported daily show that the progress of the disease is now almost as great as at any time since its first appearance.

The water board is directly responsible for all, the Locks and Canals company indirectly. In cases where through carelessness or mismanagement a loss of life has resulted, the grand jury has indicted the parties for manslaughter.

The Newark, N. J., case is an example that should be followed in other cities for the public good.

If the water board can show that the Locks and Canals company is guilty then let the responsibility rest upon that company, but until this is proven to the satisfaction of the public the board itself will have to bear the responsibility.

What the public demands now is some assurance that the water furnished the people of this city is pure and free from typhoid germs.

The state board of health made an analysis a short time ago; but that did not show that the water was then free from typhoid germs or even from the evidences of sewage. What has been done since by the water board to purify the city water? It seems that more extraordinary steps may be necessary to purify the water and check the epidemic. The pipes have been flushed and that should carry off the contamination if there was no influx of impurities to the city mains. The water board seems to be satisfied that the source of contamination has been effectually shut off. The steady growth and continuance of the typhoid epidemic seems to prove the contrary. Which is right?

A few smallpox cases would spread great alarm, but already the deaths that have resulted from the typhoid epidemic outnumber the deaths in any of the outbreaks of smallpox during the past decade.

It does seem that the water board scarcely appreciates the seriousness of the situation.

WITH A SHOTGUN

A Bold Burglar Was Held Up

MONEY AND LOOT FOUND IN HIS POCKETS

Says He Lives in New York

By Associated Press to The Sun

BROCKTON, Sept. 3.—James E. Sawyer a West Bridgewater constable delivered for safe keeping at the Central police station yesterday afternoon a young man, who is held there charged with daylight burglary at the home of Mrs. Mary Howland, in West Bridgewater.

He gave his name first as John Enway, then said it was Tony Rose. He said he lived at 11 West street, New York, but had no special residence at present.

Constable Sawyer says that George Shipman of West Bridgewater saw the man leave an electric car just before noon and go boldly to the front door of Mrs. Howland's home, unlock it and walk in.

Shipman knew that Mrs. Howland was away, and so got his shotgun and went over to the house on West Center street. The burglar leaped out of the window and Shipman held him up. The man was later turned over to Constable Sawyer, who handcuffed him and brought him here for appearance in the police court today.

When searched the man had $9 in one pocket and $3 and some change in another. He said he got the $9 at West Bridgewater, but the $3 were his. His pockets also contained two gold rings, a gold-plated key chain, attached to a bunch of keys, gold watch and chain, cigar case, bottle of perfumery, gold-bowed spectacles, pair of kid gloves and a book containing a large number of names and addresses of different places.

He said he was 20 years old. He is of dark complexion, 5 feet 4½ inches in height, and has blue eyes. After his arrest the man handed the officer a small box, which he said he found in the house where he was arrested. It contained a pair of sleeve buttons, gold neck chain and a ring. He intimated that he had made another break in West Bridgewater earlier in the day, and that he might have a confederate working in the town.

Officer Crocker of Holbrook has been notified and may try to connect the man with some recent breaks in his town, which are supposed to have been committed by a dark-complexioned man, and it is thought he may be the man who worked so boldly recently in Whitman.

WALTHOUR'S RACE

Caldwell Defeated by the Champion

By Associated Press to The Sun

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 3—Bobby Walthour defeated Harry Caldwell by one and a half laps last night at the Coliseum in one of the fastest 20-mile motor paced races that has ever been ridden on this track. State records from eleven to eighteen miles were broken by Caldwell but he was beaten in the last mile through losing his pace. Walthour changed motors early in the race with one of the prettiest pick-ups that has ever been made on a bicycle track. Walthour finished the race behind Hunter, who was riding the "Red Devil," on which the rear tire had been worn down to the canvas, causing it to slip on the banks. Both pace maker and rider continued their record-breaking clip with full knowledge of their peril. The 15 miles was reeled off by Caldwell in 18.58.3, a state record, while the 20-mile was in 25.31.2. The two-mile handicap was won by F. Keighley of this city and the five mile open by Marcus Hurley of New York.

AT HIGH SPEED

UNKNOWN AUTO STRUCK AND KNOCKED DOWN MAN.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WORCESTER, Sept. 3.—Israel Rose, 69 years old, an East Brookfield farmer and father of 18 children, was struck by an unknown automobile and fatally injured, near the corner of Main and Tirrell streets, in this city, about 10 o'clock last night.

He was standing on an electric car toward the center of the city, but left it at the corner of Tirrell street to wait for a Spencer-bound car to take him home. As he stepped from behind the car he came directly in front of an auto running at great speed toward Leicester.

The drivers of the automobile did not slacken their speed a particle, but kept on their wild run. Rose was thrown to the stone pavement with tremendous force and received a lacerated scalp wound, and when picked up was unconscious.

He was taken to the City hospital in the ambulance, and the physicians say he is suffering from concussion of the brain.

The identity of the auto and its occupants is unknown, but the police have started a hunt for the men who are responsible for the accident.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—After being closed several weeks, while the interior was being renovated, the White House was again opened to visitors yesterday. The ceilings of the parlors are covered with white cotton cloth so as to protect them during the summer season, and much of the furniture is likewise covered. The piano in the east room has been taken to New York for repairs.

This is the gold-leaf piano presented to the White House by one of the large piano concerns of the country. It was used at musicales and concerts last winter and will be again in use this winter.

N. E. STATISTICS

FIGURES SHOWING THE NATIVE BORN POPULATION.

The latest bulletin of the Boston statistics department contains a compilation from the reports of the twelfth census that shows by states and territories the distribution of New England born and Massachusetts-born population. It appears that there are 3,811,295 native-born persons in New England. Of these, 1,660,223 or 43.56 per cent., were born in Massachusetts. Of the 528,450 persons contributed by New England to other states and territories, 183,194 or 34.66 per cent. were born in Massachusetts. Maine has the largest percentage of persons born within the state and still living there—93.24 per cent. Rhode Island has the smallest—72.70 per cent. New Hampshire has the largest percentage of persons born in other New England states and Maine the smallest, the figures being 20.16 per cent. and 4.61 per cent., respectively. In Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island the largest percentage of the persons born in other states comes from Massachusetts; in Vermont and Connecticut the largest percentage comes from New York; in Massachusetts, from Maine. The total Massachusetts-born white population of this state numbers 1,543,089. Of these, 748,992 are of native parentage and 781,831 of foreign parentage, while 12,265 are classed as colored—the latter designation covering negroes, Chinese, Japanese and Indians. The total New England-born population of Massachusetts is 1,804,423. Of this, 950,138 are of native parentage and 840,696 of foreign parentage. The total American-born population of the state is 1,950,022, comprising 1,032,261 of native parentage and 897,386 of foreign parentage, besides 20,372 classed as colored. Of the states outside of New England, New York furnishes the largest number of Massachusetts residents—a total of 70,220. Pennsylvania comes next, with 11,030. It is notable that 5238 natives of Ohio live in Massachusetts, 4913 natives of Illinois and 1810 of California. In the population of Massachusetts natives of every state and territory of the American Union, together with the District of Columbia, and also of Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines, are included. The smallest contribution to our population is made by Alaska, which is represented by nine persons born there. Next come the Philippines with eleven persons.

CLOSE OF WAR

CAME ON DECEMBER 10, 1898 SAYS DARLING.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling has decided that for purposes affecting deserters from the United States navy, the Spanish war ended December 10, 1898, the date of the signing of the treaty of peace. This conclusion disagrees with a ruling of the war department to the effect that the war was not closed for a demonstration purpose in that department until April 11, 1899, the date of the exchange of ratifications of the treaty.

Discourses on Ways and Means of Having the Good Times Usually Enjoyed Only by Girls Born With a Silver Spoon. Raps Higher Education. Praises Country Life -:-

THE poor envy the rich for many reasons, but to my mind the one great advantage the latter have is the power of leading healthful, strength giving, wholesome, well rounded lives—that is, if they choose to do so, which they unfortunately often do not. The man or woman of money has the great advantage of being able to live much in the open air and of enjoying all the year round sports which are events to other people—horseback riding, hunting, polo and long cruises on beautiful yachts to foreign shores and over wind swept oceans.

The girl with money can improve herself in a thousand ways. If she is born homely, with a poor complexion or a scrawny neck, these can be remedied by costly treatment and massage. She cannot help being graceful because from her earliest years she has graceful examples set before her, she learns suavity from her French nurse and dainty posings in the smart dancing class she attends from babyhood. She is not allowed to grow sallow over problems which confront hard working girls nor dim her eyes with too much study. She has just enough book knowledge to enable her to carry on a conversation, and the rest is obtained by travel and association with clever people—the very best knowledge in the world. Then, too, she knows the thousand and one things so much more necessary than mere book learning. She can sail a boat, help lead a cotillion, play golf, ride to hounds, drive a four-in-hand, shoot, swim and fence, not to speak of ordering an intricate household. Above all she starts in life fearless, independent and with a sound brain in a sound body.

Useless Book Knowledge.

But cannot the girl with moderate means imitate her in some respects, or rather cannot the parents of the girl upon marriage and who hopes for a little home of her own and a reasonable amount of society, be it exalted or otherwise.

For instance, if you cannot afford both it is better to have a girl taught dancing than Greek. She will forget the Greek after the first year of her married life (if not before), and if she is a bad dancer she will be forever out of things and will miss at least a third of the good times going. A good dancer is always at her ease and is bound to be a social success. She is a woman her husband is proud to take around, for although a man may not care for that sort of thing himself he does not particularly like to see his wife a wallflower.

A course of massage treatment of a skinny neck—treatment which will enable its owner to wear a dinner gown and look attractive in it in the evening, is far preferable to the ability to converse about social economy or higher mathematics.

SALT AND PEPPER MIXTURE BOX COAT.

I certainly am not in favor of anything which is useless education or anything else.

Even the girl who makes her own way in the world, who has to earn her bread and butter—not to speak of jam—may come in on this. (Dear me, how slangy I am getting!)

I know of one girl a schoolteacher, who has given herself horseback lessons and singing lessons, both great sources of enjoyment to herself and her friends. Another girl has divided her wages in three parts, one for living expenses, one for necessary clothes, the third for self improvement. Most girls spend it all for clothes.

She can play golf.

And Why the City?

Then, too, there is this to be considered: Why live in a city cooped up in any sort of a small, dark apartment for the sake of sleeping and eating next to the Greatroxes and the Van Dollars, who never in the world bother their heads about one, when one can live in a pretty little suburb, enjoy real healthy country life, golf, drives, etc., for the same price one pays for the stuffy little apartment in town.

The sentiment in favor of suburbs is rapidly growing. The Saturday half holiday, the better rapid transit accommodations, and, above all, the gay yet wholesome suburban society life are responsible for this. In former times to live in the suburbs meant to be buried alive. Now it is no such thing. People of moderate means can have a better time in a small suburb or town than they can in the city. Golf and country clubs are responsible for this, and it is a fact that in many cases the owners of town sites have actually paid for the erection of a country club in order to attract residents. So, you see, it has become an important and recognized factor.

We are certainly learning to live, to enjoy existence in the English and the French manner, and not to gallop through it eating indigestible food served in any old way, living in overcrowded and badly ventilated houses and going through life ignoring all its finer points, as foreigners have accused us of doing.

The Glorious American Girl.

The anaemic, stoop shouldered, peevish, overdressed American girl has disappeared. In her place stands a splendid athletic, wholesome young creature, and suburban and out of door life is largely responsible for her.

I have a prophetic feeling that the time will come when women will have their own athletic and their own yacht clubs. Why, if you please, cannot two women go off for a summer vacation on a cat-boat or a small yacht without losing any of their womanliness? Men have such a jolly time that way. Last week I went aboard a little yacht on which two men had cruised around all summer, merely running in for a few days in the harbor of a yacht club, the courtesy of any number of clubs being always extended to a man belonging to one good one. The little boat was fitted with everything one could desire, and there was a delightful afterdeck, where the owner and his chum could sit and enjoy their cigars as their yacht swept along through the blue summer seas. That I do call a vacation—not this stuffy hotel life, with its gossip, its overdressing and its dearth of any real enjoyment.

A splendid, wholesome young creature.

PATENT LEATHER PRECEPTS.

Patent leather shoes and boots need special care to keep them nice. When they are fresh and new they should be wiped after every wearing and put away in some place, secure from dust, where the air is neither too hot nor too cold. Extremes of temperature injure the leather. When the shoes begin to show signs of wear they should be wiped with a sponge and warm water, and, after being carefully dried, should be brushed over lightly with patent leather varnish sold for the purpose. Remember never to put patent leather near the fire, for the heat is very likely to crack it.

BEAUTIFUL CHINA.

One of the most attractive dinner sets seen in the displays of summer china is royal dresden copied from a very old design. The sole decoration is a single rose spray in the middle of each piece. A most realistic rosebud tops the covers of the sugar bowls, tea and coffee pots and the smaller covered dishes.

THE SOCIAL WAR OF A DUCHESS

IT appears that Constance Edwina Cornwallis-West, known as Shelagh Cornwallis-West before her marriage to his grace Hugh Richard Arthur Grosvenor, second duke of Westminster, variously likewise earl and marquis of this, that and the other, has set her little head and her English foot against the further social recognition of American women in British society, has snubbed them even to the point of very un-high bred rudeness.

Shelagh, Shelagh, why did you do it?

You should have no particular grudge against American ladies. You yourself have a good enough position. Your husband has an income of $5 a minute, so 'tis said. While you are not nearly so beautiful or fascinating as many of the American women in London society, it is said that you know how to dress almost as well as they do, which is to your credit. It is true that, just on the eve of your marriage to 'is grace, 'is grace was served with a summons to appear in an unpleasant lawsuit brought by an enraged member of the British military, but then that has dropped out of mind; you got your big blond duke safe enough and should not have become soured against us, particularly as no American woman had anything to do with that unpleasant law case. You got your dukelet. True, it is more than possible that if the dukelet had been very poor instead of very rich he would have chosen for his wife not you, but the daughter of some healthy, hard working American billionaire, a girl who could get him out of bankruptcy, support him handsomely, brace him up and stand behind him while he took his seat in the house of lords and finally established, to go along with his strawberry leaf title, a really noble family line. She would have done this all by virtue of her strong, clean, working people's blood.

Duchess of Westminster.

But it did not happen. Your dukelet is rich because his grandfather, the first duke, increased his fortune by methods akin to those in vogue among plebeian American money "magnets," as they are sometimes called. He knew how to juggle his income returns with the best of them, that first duke. I have read a letter of his to a newspaper protesting hotly against the "wild guesses" as to the amount of his revenue that were published sometimes. He said report made him out more than twice as rich as he was. But the fact remains that he never would tell exactly how rich he was. A recent English writer confesses: "In these days there is always something peculiarly fascinating about the possession of great wealth." Just so.

Was it because she is so radiantly beautiful that you began your assault on American women by cruelly snubbing sweet, innocent Gladys Deacon in your husband's box at the Chester races? You are not nearly so beautiful or so "stylish" as Miss Deacon, not nearly so handsome and fascinating an your own mother was when she belonged to the "Prince of Wales' set;" but then you are good looking enough and well dressed enough not to display jealousy toward American ladies. Worst of all, you let your husband display the same rudeness to the sweet American girl when Colonel and Mrs. Cornwallis-West brought Miss Deacon to the Westminster stand at the races—even though Cornwallis-West is your own brother and a gallant soldier and a gentleman. You are young, but then you are older than your husband, and you ought to have toned him down by this time to observe at least common courtesy and good manners.

You have much to learn, Shelagh. The sooner you learn it the better for yourself. Know, first of all, you cannot possibly hurt American ladies socially. You are bucking against the hard wash on when you attempt it. Already you begin to get your "comeuppance." That ball of yours, which was to be the social event of 1902 and to which you omitted to send invitations to every American woman in London society whom you dared leave out—did you not on that account receive a direct social slap in the face from your king, Albert Edward himself? He declined to attend you ball at all; the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the king's brother and sister-in-law, also refused to attend, and the actual reason was that you had snubbed American ladies who are the friends of royalty.

When he was only Prince of Wales, Albert Edward was noted for his tactfulness and genuine kindness of heart. He was too well bred to manifest toward persons entitled to respect the rudeness you and your husband were guilty of at the Chester races and your ball. How did you feel when, at that ball, your biggest lion was a young lady who had been an actress on the variety stage? It was nothing against the young lady; quite the contrary. But after all it wasn't quite like having the king and the Duke of Connaught among your guests, was it?

The good will Albert Edward showed to Americans so fully when he was Prince of Wales he manifests still in the larger national field, and the American people appreciate it. There is a dream among thinkers who dwell in the United Kingdom on your side of the water, those in our great republic, this side of the Atlantic, those, too, who inhabit the great continent of far-away southwestern seas—among these, I say, there is a dream that English speaking peoples, united in the common ties of human brotherhood, will be called to hold the vanguard of human civilization itself against the destructive forces even now making inroads on it. The English speaking peoples, Americans, Irish, Scotch, Canadians, English, Australians, all of them form the most powerful, most intelligent, most prosperous brotherhood ever united by common ties of kinship and the love of liberty, law and order. Human destiny itself, upward moving, glorious, demands that they go forward together, upholding one another's hands, brotherly. And you think you'll stop it by administering your infantile snub to a couple of American ladies in London society!

Heaven have mercy on your soul! Heaven broaden you to a comprehension of that larger, kindlier, sweeter wisdom which radiates ever from the soul of true womanhood!

What's the good, Shelagh?

You can't do it. Your own kin and fellow countrymen will rise up against you. If American women have in British society a vogue that you are jealous of, who are to blame for it but Englishmen themselves, sprigs of young nobility who came over here and, with tears in their eyes, as it were, besought rich American girls to marry them and keep them out of the poorhouse, or at least relieve them from the necessity of shipping as table waiters on the transatlantic steamers. There be sons of British lords who are that very thing today, Shelagh.

Whether the millionaire American girls did well to take the noblemen is neither here nor there. Considering how women like you have sometimes treated our American ladies when they have come rescued your Englishmen from the bankruptcy court, if not worse, it would probably have been just as well if they had stayed on their own side of the water and married just chivalrous, plain American husbands. But something must perhaps be forgiven to the natural jealousy the attractive American girl arouses in the British feminine breast.

Or is it because you don't like your brilliant and brainy American sister-in-law, young Cornwallis-West's wife, that you thus leap into the arena with a war whoop against all American women? Who knows? But, finally, I permit myself to commend to your consideration two general propositions. The first one who attempts to stir up race prejudice is an enemy to civilization. The second—it is the mark of crassest, most ignorant provincialism to hold one's own town superior to other people's towns. See?

ADVANCE FALL COSTUME OF BLUE BROADCLOTH.

PAPER NAPERY AND TABLEWARE.

Everything in the shape of doilies, casserole frills and sherbet cups is now made of paper. They are as dainty as possible and are made to imitate the beautiful Tenerife work, Mexican drawn work and all lace patterns in the most wonderful manner. Despite their fragile appearance they are proof against liquids and do not get soggy. Salad and ice cream cases come in a variety of pleasing forms, and it is possible to carry out a color scheme with trifling expense.

For children's parties these paper dishes, supplemented by paper napkins, will relieve the anxious hostess of much apprehension in regard to breakage. For picnics they are invaluable. Not only do they save the bother of packing up and carrying home dishes, but they add materially to the beauty of the occasion.

FOR WOMEN CYCLERS.

Lady Marjorie, in the Cycle, says:

"I should like to ask all my friends to cultivate a pleasant, cheerful expression when cycling. So many girls when learning pucker their brows and look so terribly anxious and uncomfortable that when the ordeal of their initiate is over the strained look upon their faces becomes a habit and is very difficult to overcome. Keeping the eye fixed rigidly upon the front wheel or looking anxiously ahead for troubles in the way of approaching vehicles, hills, etc., educates this habit.

"Sit up and smile and look happy. You will find how much more you will enjoy your ride and with what a different aspect your friends will look upon cycling as a woman's pastime."

AN ILLITERATE ANTI.

A man opposed to woman suffrage sent to the Woman's Journal a document setting forth his principles in the following remarkable grammar and spelling:

"When arguding the right of Woman's Suffrage you clame that Women ought to have a right to vote because she payes taxes. Allow me to inform you that Women do not pay taxes. A person tax is Poll tax (and this aliens men have to pay). Taxes on property, is property, tax and the property pays it. If women ar allowed to vote they ought to pay Poll tax, to be equit with men. From one who is in favor of women attending to their buisness which is household duels, and men attending to theirs."

THE BREATHING FAD

IT is not all a fad, or even half a fad.

Scientists agree that the air contains in itself the elements of human food, if man only knew how to extract them and combine them properly. It is believed, too, that the sun's rays convey to earth the germs of all life—that they are in the atmosphere. The more air we can breathe, therefore, and the purer it is, the more of both life and nourishment we shall draw into us. Hence the meaning is easily comprehended of Eleanor Kirk's famous saying, "Eat some air."

It is not enough to breathe as the quadrupeds do. We who have intelligence can improve on them, can develop and increase the power, health, endurance and beauty of our bodies till they are the fit housing of immortal souls. There is a breathing to be learned that will of itself help lift us to the plane of constant joy and elasticity.

The crown of womanhood is perfect health. To gain this we should use all the means at our command. Fortunately the essential materials to this end were also wisely ordained to be the cheapest, and they are air and water. The frequent bathing of the body and the habit of drinking plenty of water form an important part of the beginning of wisdom toward getting perfect health. Next undoubtedly comes habitual deep breathing, thorough aeration of the blood. You cannot have this and wear tight corsets or any confining bands about the waist. It is impossible. Let me give you the process of breathing for health, not merely for animal existence.

Have all your clothing entirely loose. Then begin and fill yourself with air, slowly, slowly. Make no effort to swell your body. It will swell itself if you just let it. Do not make any effort to breathe with your nostrils. The nostrils are merely passages to let the pure air in and the exhausted air out. The breathing effort itself should be made from the very center of your body.

Note how the great, splendid bulk of air you take in raises your chest and enlarges it. This is the true lifting of the chest you read so much about. After you have noted how the long, deep breath lifts your chest to a beautiful fullness, resolve to yourself that henceforth you will make yourself habitually carry your chest in that noble, elevated manner and then do it. The lifted chest must be kept so by the muscles about the waist, which some women allow to sag and weaken in so disgraceful a manner.

After you have slowly drawn in all the air you can hold—and you must feel as though your whole body is full of air from your toes up—then proceed to exhale. Do this slowly, taking fully as much time to exhale as you did to inhale. This is an important point in breathing instructions, that we shall exhale a breath as slowly as we inhale it. Oriental teachers enjoin this specially on their disciples.

Acquire the habit of breathing as above and you will wonder at the excellent results that follow. Have the air always the purest you can get. Half of the colds, grips and pneumonia attacks would be avoided if people ventilated their sleeping rooms properly. Immortal human beings ought at least to provide for themselves as good ventilation as turfmen provide for a race horse. It will help you much to think always that when you breathe deeply and fully you are taking in food in its purest form, which is the actual fact. Remember this and nourish yourself duly.

When you are very weary and nerveless, try the effect of the following breathing process: Have your clothing entirely free. Lie flat upon your back, out straight, every muscle in your body relaxed. Especially let the muscles around your forehead, eyes, mouth and the base of the brain lie so loose that you are not conscious of them. After having thus relaxed, begin and breathe slowly and fully from the lowest point of your body, at the very tip of the spine. Think of the breath as being drawn to this point while you inhale. Then exhale slowly and think of a nerve current as passing from the tip of your spine up the spinal cord into your brain. If you do this and note carefully you will feel an actual vibratory sensation quivering at the base of your brain and up into your head and eyes. Practice this breathing five to ten minutes at a time, especially after you are done work in the evening, and you will find it exceedingly restful and life giving. MARY GOULD LYTLE.

THE DUCHESS OF SUTHERLAND AS A COMMERCIAL TRAVELER.

The Duchess of Sutherland, who is gifted with a spirit which never wearies of doing good, showed her enthusiasm for improving the condition of the highland crofters in a characteristic fashion during a recent visit to Russia. She took with her several trunks filled with samples of the tweeds made by the Scottish peasantry, whom she and other ladies are so anxious to serve. Then she sent round to the tailors and invited them to inspect the goods and give orders for them. In this way she expects to open up a new market and thus benefit those whom she is desirous of helping in the best possible way—by enabling them to help themselves.

WHAT PRICE WEDDING?

We have grown up with the idea of different classes of funerals. In Paris the same sort of thing is done with regard to weddings, and the result strikes one as decidedly peculiar. People who wish to take one another "for better, for worse" can do so in one of ten different classes. A first class wedding costs $115, the second class runs into $95, while the nuptial knot may be tied in the tenth class for $1.20. "Why should two people spend even a dollar to be made thoroughly miserable for life?" is what a cynic said. Happily the world is not made up of cynics.

FALCONRY.

One of the fads of the fashionable society woman in England is falconry, and this old fashioned sport has quite superseded the joys of hunting, shooting and fishing. It is a very expensive amusement. A perfectly trained hawk costs about $500. The Duchess of Marlborough is particularly interested in this picturesque sport, one of its great advantages being that it can be followed all the year round.

Bound to be a social success.

NEW CAR LINE

Will Connect Lowell With Manchester

AND MANCHESTER WITH THE SEA

Connects With Pelham Line at Hudson

A new electric car line is in process of construction which will connect with the Pelham-Hudson line near Hudson and make direct connection with Manchester and the other cities and towns in the contemplated route.

The new route will thus give Manchester people a direct trip by trolley to the sea.

It is understood that another road connecting Manchester with the Hudson & Pelham line, by a more direct route, is under contemplation but the road now in process of construction appears to have met with the favor of the railway people, probably because it goes through a more thickly populated country. The road-bed of this new line has been built mostly through private land, thus insuring speed and comfort.

With the increased traffic that will follow the new road, it is thought that a double track will be built between Pelham and Nashua.

The Electric Railway Employes' Mutual Relief association is planning a lively winter season.

A new entertainment committee has been appointed as follows: E. E. Blaisdell, C. C. Gabrielle, Mose Sweeney, Otis Giles and Pearl Atwood. Mr. Atwood was also appointed to the investigating committee in place of E. Webber, who has left town.

MILLIONAIRE'S SON

SAYS PAWN TICKET IS HIS ONLY ASSET.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Charles Emil Rubsamen of Passaic, N. J., a son of the late Charles L. Rubsamen, who amassed a fortune of several millions in the silk business, owes Mrs. Grace M. Fredericks of 107 West 103d street, this city, $680.47 for board and lodging for himself and a woman and for borrowed money. The young man pleads his inability to settle the bill.

Mr. Rubsamen was examined in supplementary proceedings by Mrs. Fredericks' lawyer, William P. Burr of 35 Nassau street. He said his total assets were one pawn ticket, representing a watch and chain given to him last Christmas by his mother and pawned next day. The ticket he had turned over to his brother Ernest.

Rubsamen has a wife and four children in Passaic, but contributes nothing to their support. The brother, who holds the pawn ticket, says Charles owes him at least $2,000.

DOG SUFFOCATED

THIEVES KILL ANIMAL AT BRIDGEWATER AND RIFLE HOUSE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BRIDGEWATER, Sept. 3—The house on South street, occupied by Justin Hill, was entered by burglars yesterday during the absence of the family, and a sum of money secured.

The thieves found a hound that the family had left at home. The dog was hitched to a hogshead which was used as a kennel, and this the thieves turned over on the animal and suffocated him.

STAY OF LIFE

AGED DOG HAS MADE A GREAT FIGHT.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WINSTED, Conn., Sept. 3.—After persistent but unsuccessful efforts to kill him, a bulldog belonging to Jeremiah Falvey of the Cyclone Hill district, has been granted another stay of life.

Because of its advanced age the dog became a nuisance to Mr. Falvey's mother, and a few weeks ago she engaged Benjamin Morgan to kill it. Morgan fired a dozen shots at the dog, but only one took effect, that passing through the ear. The dog was then given some poisoned meat and buried in a lot some distance in the rear of the Falvey house.

To the surprise of Mrs. Falvey, the dog reappeared the following day.

Yesterday Falvey took the dog out in a boat in the lake, tied a rope around its neck, and after fastening a large stone to the other end of the rope, threw the dog, rope and stone into the water.

Falvey had arrived home and was telling his mother that he bet the bulldog would return again when sure enough the dog came walking into the dooryard with the cord still around its neck.

Mrs. Falvey has now decided to keep the dog till it dies a natural death.

LABOR DAY NEWS

How the Parade Will Form

The different divisions of the Labor Day parade will form as follows: 1st division, South street 2nd, Highland street; 3rd and 4th, Thorndike street. Bands will be assigned to the different halls to escort the different unions to the common. The chief marshal, division marshals and aids will meet at 22 Middle street, this evening, to complete arrangements.

BRICKLAYERS' UNION.

The bricklayers' union met last night and decided not to parade on Labor Day because so few of their members are working in town at the present time.

An invitation from the brethren of Haverhill to participate in the labor demonstration at Canobie lake on Labor day, as the guests was read, and it was voted that the invitation be accepted.

POLO NOTES.

Walter E. Petty, manager of the Muncie polo team, has his team made up for the season of 1903-04, and as it is made up mostly from the members of the champion Lowell team for two years, there is little doubt but that Muncie will land the pennant.

Eddie Higgins, of Providence, will play first rush, while his partner will be "Bob" Hart. Fred Jean will captain the team and play at centre, while little Tommy Holderness will be at his old position at half back. Davy Cusick, the champion club swinger, will occupy a position in front of the cage.

In regard to the make-up of the team, the Muncie Star has the following:

Polo fans of Muncie could have asked Manager Petty to do but little better. Each of the five men signed has played in this city and have a host of admirers and friends here. Their ability to play polo and play it in championship form is unquestioned. With five such men Muncie ought to head the cakewalk next season. All that is necessary is the development of team work. With Fred Jean, the famous center who led the champion Lowell team to victory for two seasons, to captain this team, it will soon be working like a clock.

It is hardly necessary to mention the players individually. Eddie Higgins won a home in Muncie two years ago when his brilliant work brought the fans to their feet in every game. There is hardly a faster man in the game. "Bobby" Hart will make a good mate. He is fast, has the weight and can drive at the nets from any direction.

Fred Jean is in a class by himself as a middleman. Wherever he has played the followers of the game have accorded him the honor of being the peerless player of all players. As a half-back Tommy Holderness is little but he is mighty. For two years he played half-back on the champion Lowell team. Dave Cusick will receive a royal welcome back to Muncie. The flaxen-haired boy played a brilliant game before the basket last year under adverse circumstances. The defense of the team before him was not as strong as it should have been. Cusick worked like a Trojan in every game and kept at the head of the goal tenders with ease.

The announcement of the line-up will make the fans doubly anxious to see the season reopen. Manager Petty will be congratulated in getting the team that he has signed for next year, according to his telegram.

CYCLE NEWS

It remained for the giant from the hills of Old New Hampshire to smash the hour record, completing over fifty miles in the sixty minutes, and but for the fact that his pacing machine went to the bad during the latter part of the race he would have ground out over 51 miles during the hour. He rode on an average of a 1.12 clip for every mile, but prior to the 46th mile he was going at the rate of 1.10. His fastest mile was the 45th which he covered in 1.09 3-5, but the 46th was the fatal mile, his time for that one being 1.33. This was due to the fact that his machine got out of order and he went several laps unpaced. It was hard luck for Harry after working so hard, but there is little doubt but that he will cover the 51 miles or possibly 52 before the end of the season.

The same Harry Caldwell who was scheduled to appear at the local coliseum to meet Walthour, but who had to cancel his engagement after two postponements, will meet George Leander, the six-day champion, at the coliseum track tomorrow. Leander is going good, having defeated Lawson and Stinson at Providence on Monday night.

Tonight Bobby Walthour, who rode circles around Stinson, will meet Gussie Lawson, the terrible Swede, in a fifteen-mile motor paced race at the coliseum in Lakeview avenue. Nelson was supposed to meet Lawson, but owing to the former's illness Walthour was substituted.

On Saturday night the winners of the two previous nights will meet and the wise ones have picked Walthour and Caldwell as the winners. If the above named riders win their races the race on Saturday night will be one of the best that can be billed.

MORAN DEFEATED

CHAMPION TOOK THE 25-MILE RACE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

REVERE, Mass., Sept. 3.—Albert Champion defeated James F. Moran in a 25-mile motor paced race at the Revere Beach track last night, creating a new track record for the distance of 24.09 3-5.

The two-mile amateur handicap was won by C. L. Kimball (10 yards), H. A. McKinnon, second (15 yards); P. F. Logan (scratch), third. Time—4.14 2-5.

Ten-mile open—Won by P. F. Logan; C. L. Hollister, second; J. E. Ackorn, third. Time 24.27 4-5.

BASE BALL

EACH TAKES A GAME.

By Associated Press to The Sun

LAWRENCE, Sept. 3.—Lawrence and New Bedford split even in yesterday's double-header, New Bedford winning the second game in ten innings. The locals took the first game 10 to 3, mainly because the visitors played such a ragged game, making as many errors as Lawrence did runs. In the second game New Bedford had all the better of it as regards hitting, but Harrison kept them scattered and at the end of the ninth inning the score was tied 2 to 2. New Bedford scored two more in the tenth on Valdois' error and hits by Gulheen and McCarthy.

FIRST GAME.

Score by innings:—

Lawrence	1	1	2	1	0	2	3	0	x	—	10
New Bedford	1	0	0	0	0	1	1	0	0	—	3

Earned runs—Lawrence 1, New Bedford 2. Two base hits—Gulheen, O'Hara. Stolen bases—Conroy, Coveney 2, Hart, Morrissey, Gulheen. Double plays Valdois, Bernard and Conroy; O'Neil and Runyan. DIAMOND NOTES.

It kind of looks as if the pennant would float o'er the Lake.

Manager Patsey Donovan of the St. Louis National League club was a spectator at yesterday's game. Manager Donavon was favorably impressed with the work of the Lawrence team and said that the New England league patrons were seeing as good baseball as any other league in the country furnished.—Lawrence Sun.

Tom McCarthy made a great stunt with New Bedford Tuesday. In the first inning he got one hit and in the second, three hits. He accepted five chances without an error and made three runs.

Nashua has the series with Manchester, having won three out of five games. Labelle won three and lost one going to Manchester, while Cicley won four and lost one. Merrifield pitched five games against Nashua, winning two and losing three. The last four games played have been pitched for Nashua.

The Manchester Union gives this account of the trouble:

In addition to the wretched exhibition given by the local players, Mr. Kerins, umpire, rendered a few decisions that were poor, but which were of the same calibre that he has been handing out since his appearance in this city. The appearance of such a man as Kerins on a ball field is enough to take the pimp out of any ball team. On two or three occasions yesterday Kerins allowed the visitors to kill time by throwing the ball about the diamond.

Again in the second inning, when Whiting fouled him about the diamond, and poked him in the ribs, he wanted to fight, and had it not been for the interference of the players there would have been a slugging match instead of a ball game.

The row started as the result of Kerins calling a ball on Hafford, which it was plain to see struck him on the elbow. The ball bounded back to the stand. Hooker was on first base, and he went to second and continued to third. Whiting and the umpire had engaged in conversation and the other players were also taking a hand. Cote threw the ball to Rapp, who did not see it, and Hooker came in. In the meantime Whiting rushed at Kerins and poked him in the ribs. Kerins ordered him off the grounds, and Whiting threw his glove at him, hitting him in the head. Kerins then rushed at Whiting, when the police came into evidence and put a stop to the proceedings. Whiting was benched, and Leith took his place. Whiting's conduct was uncalled for, but Kerins should have shown that he was running the game, and not attempt to give an exhibition of a fight.

In the second inning Kane had his finger hurt, and he retired in favor of Murray, who came in from center field. Graham went to center and Morrissey to right, and in this way the Manchesters finished out the game.

After the game Kerins made a monkey out of Whiting before many spectators. He went into the hotel where both teams were and told Whiting that if the latter was desirous of showing his ability as a scrapper, he would accommodate him forthwith, and would go any place with him that he might designate. Whiting promptly quit.

FALL RIVER, Sept. 3 The announcement was made yesterday that William Lindsay of London, Eng., would present the city of Fall River with a building to cost, with equipment, $100,000, to be used as a school of draughting and designing in connection with the Bradford Durfee Textile school, now practically ready for dedication and occupancy.

The donor was born, raised and educated in this city. In recent years he has made a large fortune in London. The building will adjoin the textile school on Elm street, and will be known as the William Lindsay school in honor of the donor's father, who was for many years a leading manufacturer and treasurer of the Weetamoe mills.

WILL GO TO JURY

Supreme Court Decides on McDermott Case

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—The suit for $10,000 damages for personal injuries brought by Margaret Irene McDermott against the Boston Elevated company will be submitted to a jury. The supreme court yesterday sustained exceptions taken by the plaintiff to the ruling of the superior court on motion of the defendant that for want of due care the plaintiff could not recover. The ruling was made at the close of the evidence for the plaintiff at the trial sometime ago.

The plaintiff, aged six years, was on her way to school at the time of the accident at the intersection of Highland avenue with Cherry street, Somerville. Several of her playmates had crossed the street and she followed but as she reached the track the car came along, knocking her down.

The court says: "The plaintiff was properly on the crosswalk where foot travelers crossing Highland avenue at that point would be and had a right to rely on the presumption that the servants of the defendant, knowing the use of the walk by children going to the Burns school, would pay that regard to those lawfully in the street at that place which reasonable care and diligence required. It might be found that it would be childlike and natural for her to follow her companions and to pay no close attention to surrounding conditions. For these reasons it can not be said as matter of law that the plaintiff's failure either to look and ascertain if a car was coming, or to listen for the ringing of the gong, or to fully appreciate the possibility that cars passing the crossing would run at such speed that she might be struck before she passed over the track, was contributary negligence. Upon the evidence a jury could find that the plaintiff was in the exercise of such care as might be expected of the ordinary prudent child of her age, and there must be a new trial."

AS A REWARD

JOHN D. DICKIE MADE JANITOR OF NEW COURT HOUSE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

LAWRENCE, Sept. 3.—The statement that John D. Dickie had been appointed by the county commissioners to the position of janitor of the new court house here occasioned much comment here yesterday. The question is asked if this is not a reward for Dickie's work in the last contest for the republican nomination between Commissioner Sawyer and Joseph E. Buswell of Methuen.

Dickie was a zealous worker for the former, and it is said took a prominent part in securing a portion of the delegates here for the candidate from the lower end of the county. The salary will be $1000, acording to the report.

PARTNER ARRESTED

SAMUEL BEEGEL HAS RETURNED TO HIS WIFE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Samuel Beegel, until recently a manufacturer of trunks, was sued some time ago by his wife for a separation and left town, as he sets forth in law papers filed in the supreme court yesterday, on the advice of his partner, Abraham Goldenblum, so as to escape paying alimony to his wife. Beegel returned to town a few weeks ago and affected a reconciliation with his wife. He asserts that he then discovered that his partner had, during his absence, sold out their business—the Eagle Trunk & Bag company.

Yesterday Steur & Hoffman, in behalf of Beegel, made an application to Justice Blanchard, in special term, part I., of the supreme court, to have a receiver appointed for the assets, outstanding accounts and effects of the copartnership conducted by Beegel & Goldenblum, pending the determination of a suit which Beegel has begun to compel Goldenblum to account to him for his share of the proceeds of the sale of the business.

Beegel sets forth in his complaint that his partner, in violation of their copartnership agreement and without his consent and against his wishes, sold and disposed of the entire stock and business of the copartnership and has since repeatedly refused to account to him—the plaintiff—for his share of the profits.

SECURITIES GONE

Well Known Clubman and $560,000 are Missing

By Associated Press to The Sun

BALTIMORE, Sept. 3.—Society and club circles were greatly exercised yesterday by the announcement that William T. Tucker, connected with the firm of Tucker, Smith & Co., and a member of the Maryland, Baltimore and Elkridge clubs, had disappeared, and that $560,000 in securities of the estate of his father, the late Wesley A. Tucker is missing.

The securities had been deposited by his mother in a box in the vaults of the Mercantile trust and deposit company.

Tucker left Baltimore six weeks ago. Recently his mother was summoned from Europe by cable. She returned by the next steamer and, accompanied by one of her daughters, Mrs. George H. Glover of New York, and an officer of court having jurisdiction over the estate, went to the deposit company. It was necessary to break open the strong box as the mother did not have the key.

Then the startling revelation came that there was a defalcation amounting to $560,000, and that of all the property existing when given over to the care of William T. Tucker there was only $93,000 left.

It appears that Mrs. Tucker had absolute faith in her son and refused to credit stories of his dissipation, and was deaf as well to suggestions that the estate be taken out of his hands.

The implicit confidence placed in him is demonstrated by the fact that he was authorized to open the safe deposit box alone, an exceptional privilege.

Tucker, who is 35 years old, had been plunging in stocks. Two women figure in his escapades. One went to Central America with him, but returned later.

Recently he was defendant in a suit brought by Miss Sarah G. Morris of Baltimore, who demanded $41,000 damages. Of this amount she declared that $2400 had been loaned by her to Tucker. She asked $25,000 for breach of promise and $10,000 for alleged assault.

To recover the $2400 suit was brought for $6000.

The woman who is said to have accompanied Tucker to Central America is said to have lived in South Baltimore. Acquaintances of Tucker do not even know her name and had never heard of her until recently.

The trust company was not in any way identified with the estate. Tucker was co-trustee with his mother.

It was a rule of the company to advise against co-trustees granting authority to each other to open safe deposit boxes which they jointly held unless both were present. When Mrs. Tucker and her son gave notice of their arrangement, the management of the trust company advised against it, and has since adopted a rule by which no boxes can be rented to co-trustees under such terms.

Tucker was under no bonds, and there is no evident chance of recovering any of the losses to the estate. There is possibility of suit against a brokerage house which represented him in the sale of securities belonging to the estate, but no decision has been reached on this point.

The young man is understood to have left a written confession. It is also stated that he told the woman who went with him to Central America when they arrived there, that he was short in his accounts with the estate, and this caused her to return to Baltimore.

Information of Tucker's whereabouts was received by the family through this source.

In connection with the discovery of the shortage and disappearance of Tucker it is recalled that he was for a short time trustee of the estate of the late H. C. Smith. He held this place about a year, but heirs of the estate objected to him, and insisted that a corporate trusteeship be substituted. It was then arranged to place the Smith estate in the hands of the Safe Deposit and Trust company.

Mr. Smith was a partner of the late Wesley A. Tucker in the firm of Tucker, Smith & Co. William T. Tucker is the only surviving son of Wesley A. Tucker. The estates of Wesley A. Tucker and H. C. Smith were worth about $650,000 each.

OFFICERS CHOSEN

By the Army of the Philippines

By Associated Press to The Sun

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 3.—The National Society of the Army of the Philippines yesterday elected the following officers:

President, Gen. Charles King, Wis.; first vice president, Col. J. W. Pope, Colo.; Secretary, E. A. Fowle, Missouri; treasurer, J. E. White, Illinois; chaplain, Captain James M. Malley, Nebraska.

Aside from the election of officers, the feature of the day was the parade, which was participated in, not only by the Philippine veterans, but by the local G. A. R. posts. The reunion came to a close yesterday with a camp fire at the People's church. Gov. Van Zant made an address on behalf of the state, and Gen. Irving Hale, retiring president of the Army of the Philippines, responded. Gen. Hale said:

"The society is founded on a just war, humanely waged, with honest administration and a glorious result to all concerned, in the most unique experience in the history of the nation.

"A year ago we were smarting from mosquito like attacks on the army of the Philippines by fellow-patriots and statesmen in this country—some from sincere but mistaken motives of humanity and others from political demagogy, using the army as a club to consolidate the administration in facing its duty and the responsibility in the Philippines. But the army found valiant defenders in its commander-in-chief, the president, the secretary of war and the great majority of the people. Today the mosquitoes are practically exterminated, as the American people have always eradicated unjust traducers of the American soldiers in the performance of his duty.

"Investigation has proved that the improprieties committed in the Philippines were remarkably few under the provocation and that the army, in the face of maddening hardships and difficulties and exasperating treachery and savagery, has conducted a war so humane in general that it has astonished the observers of foreign nations and even the Filipinos themselves. Whether or not the constitution technically follows the flag, that flag wherever it floats has brought and always will bring humanity, justice, civilization and good government."

THE CANDIDATES

Ticket Named by Pennsylvania Democrats

By Associated Press to The Sun

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 3.—The democratic state convention yesterday nominated the following ticket by acclamation:

Auditor General: Senator Arthur G. Dewalt, of Lehigh county.

State treasurer, Senator Joel H. Hill of Wayne county.

Judges of the superior court, Ex-Judge Calvin Reyburn, of Armstrong county and John A. Ward of Philadelphia.

The platform adopted is briefer than the usual democratic declaration of principles and is devoted entirely to state issues. The greater part of it deals with the last legislature and its work and the conduct of the state government.

The convention was well attended for an "off-year" in state politics.

SEEN AND HEARD

Four wagons loaded with stoves passed through Market and Prescott streets yesterday and one man exclaimed: "There goes a few gentle reminders of the coal famine."

The spacious and well appointed residence now being constructed at the corner of Gates and Westford streets will be occupied by the owner, Mr. Eden, the Chelmsford street furniture dealer.

A dog with a wild eye and a tail that looked to chase caused somewhat of a panic at the corner of Market and Central streets yesterday afternoon. The majority of those who watched him chase his tail thought the dog was mad. A newsboy was the first to holler "mad dog," and in less time than it takes to tell it the dog had the street to himself. Men, women and children vacated the place in a hurry. When the dog tired of chasing his tail he lay down on the sidewalk and slept as sweetly innocent as though nothing had happened. It evidently didn't occur to him that he had been causing heart failure.

The sidewalks in different parts of the city are being repaired. This would hardly fit in as a news item but I want to say that piles of sand here and rocks there when you're in a hurry to get somewhere is a darn nuisance. The repairs, however, are needed and the inconvenience that the good citizen suffers while the work is going on is soon forgotten and the smoothness of the new sidewalk is much appreciated.

Some of the most prominent business men in the city were witnesses in a larceny case in police court Wednesday. They were men that had been caught by two young fellows who represented themselves as collecting agents for Freight Handlers' union of the Boston & Maine railroad. In summing up Judge Hadley told the prominent business men that they ought to be more cautious about paying out money. "Inquire into the situation before you pay the money," said his honor, and the prominent business men looked just a little bit sheepish.

Letter to J. J. KERWIN, Lowell, Mass.:

Dear Sir:—As your business is to get people into and out of trouble, suppose you consider their paint; it makes 'em almost as much trouble as money, except of course matrimony.

They buy poor paint a good deal: they don't mean to; they don't know any better; they buy without thinking. Bad paint isn't good. It looks good enough for a year; then begins to get rusty; but changes so slowly, one don't notice it.

Looking isn't all. The business of paint is to keep a house dry inside, the wood and iron of it; keep it from rotting and rusting. Takes good paint to do it.

Good and bad paint are sold at one price or about that. One can't go by the price at all; as with lawyers, the price has nothing to do with goodness or badness; and costs are worse yet; the painter and sheriff come in for their share.

But the probability is that a man, who paints Devoe, will come out on top.

Yours truly,

F. W. DEVOE & CO.

RECEIVER NAMED

Misapplication of Funds is Claimed

STREET RAILWAYS ASKED FOR SETTLEMENT

Creditors for $300,000 Assented to

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—Rufus B. Dodge of Worcester was yesterday appointed receiver of the Pinehurst park and the Overlook hotel properties, which have been run in connection with the Worcester & Southbridge street railway company.

The railway company went into the hands of receivers Saturday. The appointment of Mr. Dodge was made by Chief Justice Mason in the equity session of the superior court on application of the two railway receivers, Charles M. Thayer of Worcester and John A. Hall of Southbridge, who, by order of the court, are not only receivers for the Worcester company, but also for the Worcester, Rochdale & Charlton Depot street railway company.

The park and hotel properties were pleasure resorts to which the cars of the company were run. They were purchased and improved, it is claimed, with the money of the company by Wilford A. Bailey, while he served as treasurer of the corporation.

The court gave a brief hearing on the motion of receivers Hall and Thayer for the appointment of a receiver for the park and hotel. Mr. Hall said he and Mr. Thayer had concluded after an investigation of the affairs of the company that part of the money used for building and improving Overlook and Pinehurst had been raised on notes of the Worcester & Southbridge street railway company. They supposed it was the purpose of Treas. Bailey to take in and manage the properties in connection with management of the company. But before the step could be taken the collapse came, preventing Mr. Bailey from carrying out his intention. The receivers claim an equitable interest in the properties.

The hotel is in Charlton and the park is a picnic ground a short distance outside of Worcester. There is a hotel in the park, which is well furnished.

The court was informed that attachments were threatened and unless the properties were placed in the hands of a receiver they would be greatly injured.

Creditors representing claims for more than $300,000 assented to the appointment of Mr. Dodge as receiver. His bond was fixed at $50,000.

CAUSE OF THE MOVE

CLAIMED FUNDS OF STREET RAILWAY WERE MISAPPLIED.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WORCESTER, Sept. 3—The rumors regarding the misapplication of the funds of the Worcester & Southbridge and the Worcester, Rochdale & Charlton Depot street railway companies by ex-Treasurer Wilford A. Bailey, which have been in circulation for the past few days, were borne out last night by a statement by Charles M. Thayer, one of the receivers of the companies, after the appointment of Rufus B. Dodge as receiver for the Pinehurst park and Overlook hotel properties had been announced.

While these two ventures have been run in connection with the street railway companies they have been developed by Mr. Bailey and stand in the name of Charles A. Hamilton, a young lawyer in the office of Charles M. Thayer, who used to be Mr. Bailey's counsel before the trouble developed. Mr. Bailey has claimed that the big properties were being financed by the Worcester & Southbridge development company, which was made up of 15 wealthy men but the identity of these men remains a mystery, he having refused repeatedly, it is said, to tell who they were.

The investigation of the affairs of the street railway companies, it is stated, shows there is something wrong with the funds, and Mr. Thayer told the court, according to his statement to a correspondent, that the receivers think that money raised for the street railway has been put into Overlook and Pinehurst properties.

The receivers of the street railway companies believe the companies are equitably entitled to this money, but just how much is not known, and they asked for the receiver to guard their interests as well as the interests of the other creditors. They do not know what their rights are in opposition to Mr. Bailey's creditors, and they want the matter straightened out.

Mr. Dodge filed his bond for $50,000 last night and took possession of the park and hotel today. When asked what he intended to do with them he said he might run them until the end of the present summer season, because he understands they are being well patronized.

RELATIVES FOUND MORE THAN $6000.

By Associated Press to The Sun

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 3.—Mrs. Elizabeth J. Foye, who died at her home here several weeks ago, was known to be well off financially, but no trace of her money was found until this week. Her relatives made a thorough search and succeeded in unearthing more than $6000.

Under a carpet they found a large amount, and an old stovepipe yielded considerable more silver and bills. The relatives think there is still much more money left, and are making a systematic search of the old house. Mrs. Foye was considered very peculiar, and resided alone for years.

$10,000 STAKE

Was Won by Speedy Star Hal

5000 PEOPLE GATHERED TO SEE THE RACE

The Finish Was a Close One

By Associated Press to The Sun

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 3.—A record-breaking crowd of 15,000 people, attracted by the supreme contest of the grand circuit meeting here—the Sloan stake for 2.11 class pacers—gathered yesterday at Narragansett park and saw Star Hal, a brown horse owned by W. L. Snow of Hornellsville, N. Y., capture the race and the purse in three straight heats. Seven horses faced the starter, King Direct being favorite, with Elastic Pointer second choice. Before the horses had reached the first quarter Star Hal took the pole and led a procession to the head of the stretch, where he was overhauled by Miss Williams and King Direct, the latter driven by Geers. The finish saw the three horses so nearly abreast that the judges decision was necessary to convince the crowd that Star Hal was the winner. King Direct fought for supremacy through the entire second heat, but he was obliged to take second place to Star Hal, who won by a narrow margin in 2.05¾, the fastest time made during the day.

The card of the day consisted of four races and the unfinished 2.15 trot of Tuesday in which Navidad and Cole Direct each had two heats to their credit. Navidad took the deciding heat and the race in masterly fashion.

Caslon, the favorite in the 2.25 trot, captured the first two heats without difficulty and the third after a struggle with Texas, who forced him to cover the mile in 2.11¾. The 2.10 trot with 10 starters and the 2.13 pace with 12, furnished the surprises of the day, outsiders winning both. In the latter race Frank Wilson, the favorite, was drawn after he had gone two miles, because of illness. Johnny Wise, a Wilkes horse owned in Concord, N. H., after coming sixth in the first heat, got the next two and the race in driving finishes with Rockport and Knox's Gelatine Lad.

Explosion on Board an Austrian Steamer

BULGARIANS ARE BLAMED FOR THE AFFAIR

Boat Was Sailing Towards Constantinople

By Associated Press to The Sun

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3.—Three explosions occurred yesterday on the Austrian steamer Vaskapu soon after leaving the Bulgarian port of Burgas en route for Constantinople, by which 29 persons perished. The vessel caught fire and had to be beached.

A telegram conveying this news was received by the agent here of the Hungarian Levant line, to which the Vaskapu belongs. The telegram said the Vaskapu has been destroyed in the Black sea.

The captain and officers of the steamer and six of her crew were killed, a total of 29 lives being lost.

The Vaskapu sailed from Varna, Bulgaria, and after calling at Burgas was steaming through the Black sea to Constantinople, when three explosions took place on board.

The deck of the vessel took fire and she had to be run ashore at Misivria bay, 18 miles north of Burgas, where she is still burning.

The Vaskapu belonged to the Hungarian Levant steamship company of Fiume, Austria, and has been engaged in the Black Sea service. She was built in Newcastle in 1891 and was a steamer of 1076 tons. She was 260 feet long and 36 feet beam and a depth of 16.9 feet.

REPORT DENIED

That There Was Uprising in Macedonia

THOUSANDS OF BULGARIANS CONFRONTED WITH FAMINE

An Eight Hour Fight at Smilovo

By Associated Press to The Sun

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 3—The report published by the Dnevnik of a general rising in Northern Macedonia is denied both in official and revolutionary circles. Well informed persons, however, assert that the report was correct, but that its premature publication disarranged the plans of the revolutionists and, therefore, it is denied.

According to rebel reports from Monastir thousands of Bulgarians in that vilayet are confronted with famine in addition to Turkish persecution. Peasants who are continuously arriving from Monastir complain of the attitude of Hilmi Pasha and the Turkish atrocities.

The news is published here of an eight hour fight which occurred at the village of Smilovo Aug. 26 between 500 insurgents and eight battalions of Turkish troops supported by artillery. Thirty-five insurgents are reported to have been killed, while 60 Turks were killed or wounded. On the following day the Turks returned and burned the village. Seven other villages in the neighborhood are said to have also been burned by the Turks.

According to a Macedonian dispatch Aug. 30, the Bulgarian insurgents sustained a serious reverse at Smilovo Aug. 28, when 100 of them were said to have been killed, while the Turkish losses were insignificant.

Druggists say they have never handled a medicine that gave such universal satisfaction.

Paw Paw gives new life and strength to the stomach so that it digests everything that goes into it; its effect upon the nerves is marvellous, it seems to relieve them of all strain and irritation. For insomnia it is proving a great blessing, as scores of people declare that Paw Paw soothes and quiets the nerves so that one can enjoy a good night's rest and get up in the morning feeling strong and refreshed.

Professor Munyon especially asks every weak and debilitated person to try his Paw Paw remedy. He says it makes old folks feel young and weak folks feel strong. That it will take away all need and desire for alcoholic stimulants. Alcoholic drink lifts but lets you fall. Paw Paw lifts and holds you, it gives exhilaration without intoxication.

On sale at all druggists. Price $1.00 (pint bottle). Paw Paw Pills 25c a bottle.

ON WINDOW LEDGE

PORTER OF A HOTEL WENT TO SLEEP.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Hermann Schwartz, a porter on the 19th floor of the American tract society building, went to sleep on a narrow ledge, less than three feet across, and 260 feet above the street, yesterday.

A crowd gathered on the street below to watch him as he lay snoring 19 floors above the sidewalk.

Finally someone notified Supt. Roberts of the tract building, and he sent his head porter up there. The window was raised and the porter and Roberts seized Hermann by the collar and dragged him inside the window.

"What's the matter?" gasped Hermann, as he landed inside the office with a thump. "So long's my work is done, can't I take a nap?"

Now Hermann is looking for another job.

WEAR STOVEPIPES

And "Biled" Shirts in Labor Parade

The special committee of the city council on Labor Day celebration met at City Hall, last evening, Councilman Worcester presiding. On motion of Alderman Hill, Councilman Palm was appointed a committee of one to procures suitable souvenir badges for the committee.

Councilman Palm then suggested uniformity of dress for the committee on the parade and it was voted that the committee appear in dark clothes and tall hats.

It was voted that the chairman of the board of aldermen and president of the common council be invited to ride in the parade. The clerk was instructed to ascertain the time for assembling at city hall. It was understood that the city messenger would attend to the matter of notices.

No representatives of the Labor organizations appeared and the committee adjourned at 9.05.

GAS EXPLOSION

MADE EVERY BANANA JUMP OUT OF ITS SKIN.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3 John Marchi and F. M. Stanelo occupy the basement at 84 Commercial street as a banana ripening conservatory. The cellar is heated by a gas stove, and last night at 6 Marchi bribed the gas in the stove, twirled the plump, green bunches about a bit, and went home.

There was a little, imperceptible leak in the gas pipe. The stove worked steadily, the bananas stretched their skins in the tropical heat, and the tiny little leak spurted out the thinnest hair streak of combustible gas.

The gas crept to the top of the cellar as long as there was room, then it was forced lower and lower until it met the stove.

That was at 9.00 and the explosion came at exactly the same second.

It was loud enough to scare the dwellers in Eliot street, two blocks below. It blew out the cellar door and lobbed it up the steps on to the sidewalk. It set the Marchi-Stanelo partition in the cellar afire, but two boys put that out with a couple of water.

A passing citizen pulled in an alarm from box 15, but the fire was out when the department arrived.

The force of the explosion was sufficient to blow out the window of the Park sausage and provision company on the ground floor, and to blow out the door of its front door. The door still held by the top hinges, however.

The curious thing about the explosion was that it skinned all the bananas in the cellar.

PLAYED "ROBBER"

JOHNNY LANGER CAME NEAR BEING HANGED.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Johnny Langer, 6 years old, was sentenced to be hanged until he was dead, in Union Hill, yesterday, for being a "robber."

Had not his mother arrived on the scene at an opportune moment the child would probably have paid the penalty.

Johnny's playmates, about a dozen of them, all under 12 years old, had already strung him up by a clothes line attached to the top of a grocery wagon, and his body hung limp and almost lifeless.

The boys had been playing "cops and robbers," and Jimmy was one of the "robbers."

"I had been to the grocery store," said the mother, "and was returning home when several children ran toward me shouting, 'O, Mrs. Langer, they're hanging Johnny.'

"I was horrified upon reaching the wagon to see that the boys had a clothesline tied about my child's neck. And they were just pulling away at it as if it was fun. It's lucky I was there, or I am sure he would have been choked to death. I wouldn't tell my husband about this for worlds. I'm sure he'd murder some of those kids if I did."

FELL FROM BRIDGE

FRANK JONES, AGED 12, DROWNED WHILE FISHING.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BRAINTREE, Sept. 3.—Frank Jones, the 12 year old son of Mrs. Jennie Jones of Hancock street, was drowned in the paper mill pond at South Braintree just before noon yesterday.

The Jones boy, in company with another lad named Ralph Blanchard, were fishing at the pond, but at different points. The Jones boy sat on a small bridge, and it is supposed he slipped off.

Blanchard says he did not see Jones fall and the first he knew his companion was missing was when he found Jones' cap and fishing rod floating in the water.

A searching party recovered the body about two hours after the alarm was given. The body was viewed by Medical Examiner J. C. Fraser of Weymouth.

William T. Wade of Perry street is spending his vacation at his old home, Lewiston, Me.

14,000 TROOPS

Will Take Part in Big Encampment

By Associated Press to The Sun

JUNCTION CITY, Kas., Sept. 3.—The plans for the big camp at Fort Riley during the manoeuvres show that it will be one of the most spectacular ever planned. The 14,000 troops that are to participate will be encamped on the Republican river flats just north of Junction City in the form of a gigantic fan, which will have the apex, near the bluffs half a mile farther north of the town. At the apex of the camp will be the headquarters of the commanding general and his staff.

On the ribs of the fan will be encamped in regimental formation, the various regiments and battalions of cavalry, infantry, engineers and signal corps, and the batteries of artillery composing the division of manoeuvres. Streets will divide the camps and form, when tents are pitched, the ribs of the fan.

This form of encampment will enable the commanding general to be at all times within easy communication with all parts of the camp. An extensive line of water pipes will be laid at the camp site before the arrival of the troops.

The space between the headquarters of the commanding general and the camp of the various organizations will be large enough for a review of the troops that will be assembled on the reservation for the manoeuvres.

GUILTY OF CONTEMPT

ASSISTANT STATE ATTORNEY SENTENCED TO JAIL.

By Associated Press to The Sun

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Frederick L. Barnett, assistant state attorney, must spend ten days in the county jail and pay a fine of $50 for contempt of court unless he successfully appeals from a decision of Judge Kavanaugh yesterday afternoon.

He is accused of contempt in having assisted in causing the arrest of Walter B. Hoyt, a playwright, after he had been freed on habeas corpus.

Hot times took place between Judge Kavanaugh and Mr. Barnett Tuesday and yesterday in a new habeas corpus hearing for Hoyt, and after the court had again freed the playwright he sentenced Mr. Barnett.

Thomas J. Howard, a detective, and Louis Houlton, messenger for the governor of Ohio, were each committed for 10 days. Mr. Barnett and the other defendants gave notice of appeal and a bond for their appearance today.

Judge Kavanaugh declared in an oral opinion that the defendants had shown an "open, wilful and flagrant defiance of the court." He declared the writ of habeas to be the highest right in this country.

JOHN H. BOOTH

ONCE FIGURED IN A CELEBRATED CASE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 3.—John H. Booth of Meriden, who has confessed to robbing the International silver company of thousands of dollars' worth of bullion silver, the police yesterday recognized as the man who was arrested just 40 years ago in connection with the robbery of the Townsend bank of this city of $80,000 in cash and bonds.

Though alleged at that time to have received from Cashier Jeremiah Townsend, who robbed the bank, $6000 of the booty, nothing was ever proved against Booth. Cashier Townsend was sent to state prison and Booth was released.

Booth at the time of the bank robbery lived with his sister, Mary Booth, in this city. Afterward, he removed to Meriden and lived with his family until his recent arrest.

FRAUD RAMPANT

Charge Made by Republican Congressman

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 3.—Representative Frank Wachter of Maryland declares the entire federal service is honeycombed with corruption and incompetency, and he proposes to introduce a resolution for the investigation of every department of the government at the next session of congress.

"Every one who has been brought into close contact with the departments knows these things," he said, "and it is time that we had a general housecleaning."

Wachter is a republican and was recently defeated for the office of mayor of Baltimore. In addition to the postal scandal and the Indian land frauds, involving another department and agricultural officials, it is charged that there was a collusion between the seed contractor and the inspectors, and the department of justice has several officials who are accused of complicity in the Indian land frauds.

Customs scandals and irregularities in the letting of contracts have been mentioned often in connection with the treasury department, including the customs scandal in Porto Rico.

The charge has been made that the war and navy departments were controlled by cliques for their personal benefit.

$250,000 SUIT

Son of Millionaire Dolan the Defendant

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Argument in a legal motion yesterday before Justice Blanchard in special term, part 1, of the supreme court, disclosed the fact that about a year ago Clarence W. Dolan of Philadelphia, who is a son of Thomas Dolan, the street car line promoter and wealthy manufacturer, was sued by Josephine Martin for $250,000 for breach of promise of marriage. The argument, which for the first time made public the fact that young Mr. Dolan had been sued for breach of promise of marriage, also disclosed that he settled the suit by paying Miss Martin's counsel $7500.

The facts came out in connection with an application which David Hirschfield, now counsel for Miss Martin, made to Justice Blanchard for the issuance of an order adjudging Detlief C. Hansen, counsel for the plaintiff in her suit against Mr. Dolan for alleged breach of promise, to be in contempt of court for the alleged failure to pay Miss Martin $568 which she asserted he had failed to turn over to her and which she said she was entitled to as part of her share of the $7500 which Mr. Dolan paid to settle her suit.

The lot has a large frontage on Bridge street and is very level; there being over one acre in this lot, it would certainly make a nice little home for some one with sufficient room for a garden. It is situated within 200 feet from the end of the electric line on Bridge street.

Lot No. 2 consists of a beautiful level lot containing 47,300 square feet with a frontage of 53 feet on Bridge street.

Lot No. 4 on plan, contains 25,200 square feet with a frontage of 100 feet on Greenmont avenue.

Lot No. 5 on plan, contains 25,000 square feet with a frontage of 100 feet on Greenmont avenue.

Lot No. 9 on plan, contains 27,000 square feet with a frontage of 100 feet on Greenmont avenue.

The above lots are level and very nice; Greenmont avenue is a new and wide avenue and is exceedingly pretty. The location of all the above properties is within 200 feet of the electric cars on Bridge street; and every parcel must be sold for just what you will bid. You will undoubtedly get a bargain if you attend.

Terms: $200 must be deposited on the homestead and $50 on each lot. The purchaser will have 30 days to take his deeds.

SIX O'CLOCK

Reliance is Outfooting the Shamrock in Good Breeze

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—With a fog heavier than on any previous morning and but a five or six mile wind from the northward, the conditions this morning for the fourth attempt this week to sail the third of the series of the international yacht races, were far from ideal. With all, however, there was more wind than on the three previous days, when all attempts at a race were futile and there were hopes that the fog would lift and wind would increase in velocity as it blew from a favorable quarter.

At 7 o'clock the fog could not be penetrated beyond 100 feet, but in less than two hours there were indications of its lifting. The wind still held true and at 8:55 was reported officially at Sandy Hook at five miles. The sun, too, began to break through the mist and it then began to clear rapidly. Soon it was possible to see half a mile or more, blue skies were in evidence, and the prospects of a race were more encouraging than on any previous day this week.

At 8.45 o'clock Captain Wringe and Captain Barr gave orders not to make sail until the dropping fog lifted further. Captain Barr said there would be a great clearance of the fog before he would think of risking Reliance outside of the hook.

At 9.15 o'clock, however, Reliance crew began putting up their stay sail and jib in stops and Shamrock followed shortly after.

At 9.30 Reliance started for the lightship in tow, raising her mainsail as she went. At that time the wind, according to the official observer, had dropped to three miles an hour from the northeast.

Sir Thomas Lipton's guests arrived about 9.35 on the Fletcher and for the first time saw Shamrock III making preparations to leave. Shamrock left in tow at 9.38 with only her foresails in stops.

When the yachts reached the lightship, the wind had hauled around to the southeast and was blowing about five miles an hour. It was clearing gradually but the fog was still so heavy that at 10.35 the committee boat Navigator signalled a postponement of the start until later in the day.

As in yesterday's proceedings, there was nothing for the boats to do but to manoeuvre about the start, in hope for some wind. By 11:45 o'clock the sun came out warm and bright. It continued to burn away the fog and by noon it was comparatively clear. The wind had increased at that time to six miles according to the official observer at Sandy Hook, and showed some signs of becoming strong enough to make a race.

As the weather was gradually growing clearer, the committee decided to wait until 1 o'clock, the latest hour under the rules, before starting the race. At this time the wind had increased to seven miles and as it was from the southeast, the course was undoubtedly a 15-mile beat in that direction and a run home.

The yachts manoeuvred about until the starting gun was fired. Both boats headed for the line, with Reliance slightly in the lead. They went over the line on the starboard tack but moved very slowly. Their sheets were well flattened for the beat to windward.

Immediately after crossing the line the yachts apparently went about on the port tack and headed for the Jersey shore.

The preparatory gun was fired at 12.45 and the warning gun ten minutes later. The American boat crossed about a minute after the starting gun was fired, followed about 30 seconds later by Shamrock.

With the light air and a perfectly calm sea, the Reliance had exactly the condition in which she is admittedly unapproachable and immediately she began to open a lead, pointing out steadily to windward. As they held in on the port tack, the wind freshened and the yachts began to move at a fair rate, producing a little foam under their bows as they moved through the water.

The yachts had not sailed many minutes before the wind began to strengthen. Reliance continued to gain, eating out to windward of Shamrock, although the latter seemed to foot almost as fast.

The yachts made a fine smart fight, sailing in the fresher wind, traveling well and pointing high to windward. The port tack, which was taken soon after the yachts started was held until they had reached a point a mile northeast of Long Branch and about the same distance off shore. Reliance had outsailed her adversary on this board, so that when Shamrock went about on the starboard tack at 2.08, a move which Reliance duplicated five seconds later, the latter was more than half a mile in the lead and almost as far to windward.

At half past two, the indications were that the yachts would turn the outermark within another hour, which would give them three hours in which to return.

JIMMY GARDNER

Put It All Over Spike Sullivan

(Special to Sun.)

FALL RIVER, Sept. 3.—The Gardner-Sullivan fight here last night lasted fifteen rounds. The bout was declared a draw. Jimmy Gardner appeared in the ring first in fine condition, wearing bandages, and seemed unconcerned as to the result. Tom King of Fall River and Martin Canoy, the coming champion, were in his corner. After much waiting the 2000 spectators hooted for Spike Sullivan to appear. At 9.30 Spike made his appearance with his brother Dave, but refused to fight unless Jimmie removed the bandages which covered both his hands.

Dave Sullivan explained to the audience that neither rules nor club allowed the use of the bandages and Spike refused to go on.

The management was much chagrined at the outlook until Spike with his good-humored Irish accent announced that he would fight without any bandages and allow Jimmie to wear his.

Round 1—Both men sparred for an opening, Jimmie showing up better than Spike, although Spike was in best of condition. Both men looked clean but Gardner's short arm jabs counted on Spike's ribs. Jimmie landed on Spike's face and Spike laughed and back stepped, but was slightly off his guard. Jimmie took advantage of the opportunity and landed on Spike's stomach, which dropped Spike to the canvas. Spike was up in five seconds.

Round 2—Gardner landed on Spike's eye, nearly closing that optic. Both men clinched much.

Round 3—Gardner kept after Sullivan and landed several solid blows at arm's length on Spike's body. Spike could not land on Jimmie's face or stomach.

Round 4—Both men exchanged short arm jabs to face, chest and neck. Spike closed in on Jimmie and had the plucky Lowell fighter at a slight disadvantage. This was Sullivan's round.

Round 5—Both men did more fine sparring but neither landed a telling blow, although Jim blocked some heavy blows.

Round 6—Jim had Spike bewildered for a few seconds with telling blows on chest and ribs. Spike landed one on the Lowell boy's eye but this was the only mark Jim carried as a souvenir of the bout.

Round 7—Much infighting was indulged in but Jim had Spike wearing a worried look.

Round 8 was fast but neither landed an effective blow. Jim was doing most of the leading and kept Spike in his own corner.

Round 9—Spike tried for a knockout but Jim easily outpointed his antagonist in ring generalship.

Round 10—Gardner landed some heavy body blows on Sullivan's stomach and nose, receiving in return a few rib jabs.

Round 11—Gardner worried a little as Sullivan seemed stronger, but clinched his man. Spike tried to use his elbow but was cautioned by the referee.

Round 12—Jimmie tried some quick side stepping and tried to land some of his famous short arm upper cuts but failed.

Round 13—Spike tried infighting but could not land many of his heavy jabs on Jim, who returned a few stiff punches on Spike's face.

Round 14 was furious. Jim tried a knockout and landed at will on Spike's face and stomach and had Spike hard pressed and gasping for breath when the gong saved him. Spike was much worried and his nose was bleeding profusely.

Round 15—Both men went at it with their like alertness and Jimmie forced much of the fighting. Spike guarding well. Spike landed a blow with more noise to it than steam on Jim's stomach and followed quickly with an uppercut but was slow in resisting the same Lowell boy who punched and pounded Spike's face at will, landing every blow on Spike's chin or mouth and working his left arm to perfection on Spike's stomach. Spike was groggy and failed to return a punch. Gardner showed much science and had it not been for the gong Sullivan would have been floored.

WILD EXCITEMENT

Days of Bull Campaign in the Cotton Market Recalled

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Not since the exciting days early in the bull campaign has been anything equal to the confusion in today's cotton market, which attended the publication of the government September report. The figures, 81.2, reflect an improvement in conditions for the month of 2.1 and are 18.1 per cent. above those last year. The statement proved better than generaly expected and was followed by a rush of liquidation that carried prices off sharply. Earlier in the day the market had shown a declining tendency and prices at noon were about 6 to 15 points lower. In less than 10 minutes after the report was received, September sold at 12.13; October at 10.20; December at 9.95 and January at 9.92, those being net losses of from 12 to 26 points. The realizing by early sellers relieved the strain and led to slight recoveries with the market very irregular and unsettled.

PATHETIC SCENE

MICHAEL GRAHAM.

THOMAS ALTIMUS.

Wives of Convicted Men Hear Sentence Pronounced

The wives and parents of Michael J. Graham and Thomas Altimus, the young fellows who succeeded in getting "easy" money from a score of prominent business men in this city, by representing themselves as collecting agents for the Freight Handlers' Association of the Boston & Maine railroad, were in police court today and heard the young men sentenced to the common jail, Altimus for four months and Graham for eight months. An appeal was taken and they were ordered in $700 each for their appearance before the superior court.

The young men were tried yesterday on the charge of larceny. The real title of their offence was "obtaining money under false pretenses," but that offence and all others of a similar nature now come under the head of larceny.

Graham, so far as the police could learn, had no previous police record, and there was but one offence, that of larceny, standing out against Altimus. Joseph Hennessey appeared for them, and inasmuch as they were found guilty of larceny on eleven counts they were fortunate in getting away with such light sentences.

The situation in this case was decidedly sad and pathetic. The wives of the two boys checked beyond expression when they came face to face with the pitiful sight in which their husbands had placed themselves. They believed that the young men were engaged in honest pursuits, and their faith in them was not one whit stronger than was the confidence of their parents. Both young men belong to highly respectable and well-to-do families living in South Cambridge. The women left the court room screaming when sentence was pronounced upon their husbands.

CANAL TREATY

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Additional instructions have been cabled Mr. Beaupre, the American minister at Bogota, regarding the position of the government regarding the canal treaty.

The state department declines to discuss the nature of these instructions, further responsibility for every representation of Mr. Beaupre to the Bogota government concerning the treaty and his activity in this direction is heartily endorsed by the president and Secretary Hay.

Minister Beaupre's latest instructions advised him that President Roosevelt will not enter into any agreement with the Colombian government which will hamper his scope of action under the canal law. This government will not believe what its course of action will be in the event the treaty is rejected.

HEAVY BLOW

Worcester People Involved in Bad Financial Tangle

By Associated Press to The Sun

WORCESTER, Mass., Sept. 3. The financial tangle revealed by proceedings already taken in connection with the affairs of the Worcester & Southbridge and Worcester, Rockdale & Charlton Depot Street railway companies. The Overlook hotel and Pinehurst park, all of which have been placed in the hands of receivers, is attracting wide interest. There is a general expectation that further legal action is pending as the receivers do not deny that the funds have been improperly invested.

As a result of the collapse of the properties, Contractor Frank D. Perry, one of the members of the Bay State Construction company, which built the Worcester & Southbridge road and one of the stockholders has suspended payment.

Beside Mr. Perry, Contractors Thomas J. Smith of Worcester, Henry W. Carter of Millbury and Horace S. Pike of Worcester, are heavy losers.

One of the heaviest individual losers is G. W. Wells of Southbridge. Some have estimated the amount at $400,000 but Mr. Wells has prepared no statement for the public as yet. He is having an investigation made by an expert from Boston of the stock of the road and of the manner in which the paper was floated.

The investigation by the experts is understood to show that the total indebtedness of the allied properties is greater than at first supposed. It is estimated that nearly $1,000,000 in paper is afloat. It develops that there has been no over-issue of bonds by the Worcester & Southbridge road, of which there are $500,000 as reported. While the bondholders are secure in their holdings, it is feared that $500,000 worth of stock will be wiped out or made practically worthless.

Former Treasurer W. A. Batley has retained George A. Gaskill as counsel and expects to explain his financial operations to the receivers.

THAYER-BROOKS

Brilliant High Noon Wedding at Newport

TRINITY CHURCH CROWDED WITH SOCIETY PEOPLE

The Floral Decorations Were Elaborate

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 3.—The wedding of Miss Gladys Jennings Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Mortimer Brooks, and Mr. Eugene V. R. Thayer, Jr., took place at Trinity church at high noon today and was a society event interesting the entire colony, the church being filled and there being a very large crowd at the reception held at the beautiful villa of the bride's parents at the foot of Bellevue avenue.

The guests began to arrive at the church well in advance of the time for the ceremony and the streets were crowded with people and carriages for blocks around.

The wedding party arrived at the church a trifle before noon. The bride proceeded down the aisle, resting upon the arm of her father, who later gave her away. She was attended by the Misses Marion Fish, Constance Livermore, Anna Thayer, Katherine Thayer, Adelaide Randolph and Fannie Ikelin as bridesmaids and the ushers were Messrs. Reginald Brooks, DeLancey Jay, Philip Livermore, Theodore Douglass Robinson, Charles E. Perkins, Jr., George Fairchild, Hugh Minturn, George Snow, Reginald Boardman and J. J. Saltonstall.

At the altar the party were met by the groom, who was attended by James Jackson of Boston as best man.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Ernest J. Dennen, assistant rector of the church, assisted by Rev. Sherrard Billings, rector of Groton school.

The floral decorations at the church were elaborate, one of the leading society florists having been engaged in the preparations for the final arrangement for more than a week. The color scheme was white and green with a spring-like tinge given by pink flowers. The historical old church with its elaborate colonial interior finish lent itself admirably to the decorators' art. At the entrance plants and flowers were massed in great banks and the aisles were formed into avenues with rose tree borderings, great bunches of white roses topping the trees which were further dressed in liberal white satin bows. Four score of these trees were required. The chancel was massed with palms and garlands of white roses and the altar was banked with the same. Garlands of white roses, lilies of the valley and orchids intertwined with green dressed the altar rail. Upon the cream walls of the church hung garlands of green and along the balconies garlands of green and pink with wide sache ribbons of pale pink. In every available niche palms were piled, while the high pulpit with its sounding board was dressed in pink and white flowers.

The bride was attired in a rich Parisian gown of white satin trimmed with old point lace and she wore the lace veil worn by her mother upon the occasion of her marriage. The maids were white mousseline de soie and picture hats.

The bride carried a shower bouquet of white orchids and the maids carried pink roses, the "showers" being of small pink buds.

The gentlemen wore boutonnieres of lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony the wedding party and guests were driven direct to "Rockhurst," the fine estate of the bride's mother, for the reception. Here the florist had prepared in the hall room a bower of white roses and lilies of the valley, against a background of palms and one other elaborate flower work in the dining room halls and tents, the latter having been erected for the serving of the wedding breakfast, during which two orchestras supplied continuous music.

The couple slipped away from their friends after the reception formality and started upon their wedding tour, the itinerary of which is of course not announced.

HIS FAITHFUL DOG

Died Because He Couldn't Live

AND HIS MASTER WENT ON A SPREE

Best Friend He Had in the World

Clarence H. Sprague of North Chelmsford was in police court today and pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with drunkenness. Judge Hadley decided that a few days in jail would do Clarence all the good in the world and he ordered him in the sum of $200 until Tuesday morning. "I appeal," said Maurice. He then proceeded to tell the court a pitiful tale about a faithful dog of his that lay down and died a few days ago. Clarence is a married man but he told Judge Hadley that the dog was the best friend he had in the world. "The dog's death started me drinking," he said, and the court told him that the sorrow occasioned by the death of man or beast could not be drowned by drink. "He was a corking good dog, though," said Maurice as he resumed his seat in the dock.

FOR KEEPING LIQUOR.

Joseph Corcoran, charged with the illegal sale of liquor, was fined $100. He appealed.

LIQUORS FORFEITED.

When it came to forfeiting liquors in police court today three men bobbed up and claimed certain packages that had been confiscated by the police. John Martell claimed a case of beer and a quart of whiskey that had been taken from his room. James H. Carmichael appeared for him and the court allowed John to have the case and the quart.

When the liquor seized at the Old Middlesex Tavern when it was raided by Capt. Kew and a posse of officers a week or so ago were declared forfeited today, William R. Vining, a brother to the proprietor of the tavern, and Alvin J. Preston stepped up and submitted claims for two cases of beer.

Owing to the absence of Capt. Kew the government asked for a continuance for one week. Judge Hadley told the men who claimed the beer that if the evidence was not sufficient to support their claims they would be liable to the commonwealth for a bill of costs.

THE ARMY STAFF

MAY REALIGN THE DIFFERENT DEPARTMENTS.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The Post says the general staff of the army is considering the advisability of realigning the departments to conform to changes in the transportation situation.

It is possible, says the Post, that one or more departments will be created. The department of the east, for example, may be divided into two, the new one to be designated either as the department of the south or the gulf. Kansas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory may be taken from the department of Missouri and combined into one department.

Another proposition even of more interest to the country that is being considered by the general staff is the rehabilitation of numerous forts and posts in various parts of the country, but mainly in the west, which have practically been abandoned for several years. Now that the army consists of nearly 70,000 men it is discovered that the posts which have been in repair are not numerous enough to accommodate the troops comfortably. It is not improbable that in this necessity some new posts will have to be established.

THE COMMON JAIL

MAURICE JACOBS. MICHAEL O'BRIEN.

Petty Thief and His Pal Were Sentenced Today

In police court Michael O'Brien and Maurice Jacobs, who were found guilty of the larceny of certain revolvers and dog collars, yesterday, were sentenced by Judge Hadley today; O'Brien to eight months in the common jail and Jacobs to six months at the same institution. Deputy Welch communicated with the Somerville police by telephone this forenoon and learned that O'Brien had been arrested in that city for the larceny of $10 July 22 and that he was known in Somerville and Boston as a petty thief.

Jacobs had once been arrested for larceny. His case went to the superior court and he was placed on probation.

Tammany A. C. Men are Convicted

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3. Nine defendants were arraigned before Judge Williams in the Roxbury court yesterday on the charge of illegally carrying on and promoting a boxing match at the Tammany A. C. two weeks ago. The men were Representative Daniel Donnelly, John Mack, David Leahy, George Byers, Robert Armstrong, John Thompson, John F. Doyle, Harry Sanborn and Sandy Ferguson, and each was found guilty on two counts.

Capt. Hanley and Sergt. O'Neil of division 10 conducted the government's case and Hon. Charles H. Innes appeared for the defendants.

Sergt. O'Neil testified that on the evening of Aug. 20 he telephoned from Chelsea to the club asking that two tickets be reserved for him. A patrolman from another station was with him when he telephoned, and a messenger boy was sent to get the tickets. Two officers from division 10 used the tickets.

Later he and Patrolman Skillings called at the club and the patrolman paid David Leahy $6 for tickets in an envelope marked for Mr. Sherwood. Upon cross-examination Sergt. O'Neil said he was a member of the club, but had never received a membership card. When he joined the club some weeks ago he filed an application and while he had been in the clubhouse several times, he had never seen a membership card. When he applied for admission he stated that he was a police officer.

Special Officer Kilday testified that he went to Chelsea with the sergeant and heard him telephone. He attended the exhibition in the evening. While he is not a member of the club he has been there several times and has seen the membership cards. He has also seen them presented by applicants for admission when there was an exhibition.

John Crowley, a messenger boy, testified that he was sent from Chelsea by Sergt. O'Neil, who gave him $6 for two tickets. He filled out two membership blanks and was given the tickets. Patrolmen Wylie and Skillings of division 14 testified that they were admitted to the club on the tickets ordered by telephone. Capt. Hanley testified that he sent officers to the club on the night of Aug. 20.

None of the defendants took the witness stand, and upon the conclusion of the government's case Mr. Innes made his argument. He said that nothing was shown to prove that his clients had acted in contravention to the law governing such exhibitions, and asked for their acquittal.

Judge Williams then found each defendant guilty on two counts and fined each $25 on each charge, an aggregate of $50. All appealed.

Daniel Donnelly, one of the accused, is a member of the legislature from ward 7, while all the others have been more or less prominently identified with boxing in Boston since it was revived.

A prominent club woman, Mrs. Danforth, of St. Joseph, Mich., tells how she was cured of falling of the womb and its accompanying pains.

"Life looks dark indeed when a woman feels that her strength is sapping away and she has no hopes of ever being restored. Such was my feeling a few months ago when I was advised that my poor health was caused by prolapsus or falling of the womb. The words sounded like a knell to me. I felt that my sun had set; but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound came to me as an elixir of life; it restored the lost forces and built me up until my good health returned to me. For four months I took the medicine daily and each dose added health and strength. I am so thankful for the help I obtained through its use."—Mrs. FLORENCE DANFORTH, 1007 Miles Ave., St. Joseph, Mich.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

DISASTROUS FIRE

CHURCH AND CARRIAGE FACTORY SAVED
Haverhill and Amesbury Sent Help
FIRE STARTED IN THE WALKER FACTORY
The Whole Town Was Threatened

By Associated Press to The Sun

MERRIMAC, Mass., Sept. 3.—Fire, which at one time seemed to threaten the whole town, caused a damage of $25,000 at the wooden factory of the Walker Carriage company here, today. The absence of wind made it possible for the local fire department, aided by divisions of the Amesbury and Haverhill departments, successfully to cope with the fire and prevented it from reaching adjoining buildings. The Baptist church and the Pease Carriage factory building were in danger, and it was only by the hardest kind of work on the part of the firemen that the structures were saved.

The Walker establishment was located on Mechanic street in the center of the town. It is a large, roomy wooden structure, three stories in height with a large wing in the rear. It was here that the fire was discovered by a citizen shortly before six o'clock. An alarm was sounded immediately; the whole town was aroused and all available men at once proceeded to check the progress of the flames. To this end the steamer and hand engine of the town were brought into service and an effective bucket system of throwing water on the building was employed. The inflammable nature of the structure made it easy for the fire to spread and the probability of a serious conflagration led to the asking of Haverhill and Amesbury to send apparatus. Haverhill dispatched a steamer and hose wagon and Amesbury a hose wagon. By the time this combined department had got to work, the large wing of the factory was burning furiously and nearby structures were threatened. The firemen, however, confined the blaze to the wing of the building. This contained the blacksmith shop, the body-makers room and the trimming room. The entire building was damaged by smoke.

The Walker company came here from Amesbury in July, purchasing and refitting the old Stevens factory. The first shipment of goods was made only yesterday. The fire of today is a serious blow to the concern. There is, however, a partial insurance. A score of men employed in the body-makers' room lost all their tools.

The Walker company is composed of James L. Walker and his son.

GLIDDEN'S TRIP

An Interesting Account of His Automobile Ride

Charles J. Glidden, who with Mrs. Glidden is making an extended automobile trip, writes as follows from Sweden:

SKELEFTEA, Sweden, Aug. 13, 1903. (Latitude 64 deg. 50 min.)

Fifth day north of Stockholm—120 miles in five hours. Population of city 2000.

We have now reached a parallel of latitude equal to the highest that could be obtained in Norway. The noted building here is the church of which the famous apostle of Lapland, Per Hogstrom, was pastor in 1800.

More of the heavy grades were encountered today and successfully climbed, with the usual precautions. A 30 per cent. grade can be imagined by recalling the grade of Corey Hill, Brookline, which is about 15 per cent., with an excellent surface.

The peasants seemed to realize the difficulty in ascending some of these grades, as in a number of instances a crowd of them were standing at the top, and when the car successfully bowled over the summit of the hills loud was the applause.

A pleasing and touching incident occurred at the outskirts of this town. A number of citizens and ladies had gathered and as we neared them a beautiful Swedish flag was hoisted to a masthead, amid cheers and the waving of handkerchiefs.

The authorities turned the road over to us today and we had clear sailing on an excellent surface the entire distance, only passing the mail coach, thus enabling us to make this a record drive for Sweden at an average speed of 24 miles per hour.

LULEA, Sweden, Aug. 14, 1903 (Lat. 65 deg. 35 min.)

The little flag episode of yesterday induced us this morning to mount our Swedish and American flags on a small pole which Mrs. Glidden carried, and we waved them at the crowds. The enthusiasm was greater than ever. As we are nearing the Lapland district the advice given in a Swedish touring club book may be interesting to note:

"The Lapps are not savages; have been to school like other people. Don't give them tobacco; kind treatment and behavior toward them will pay better. Don't compliment the Lapp girls nor ask a Lapp how many reindeer he possesses, which is equivalent to asking a man how much he is worth."

The horses are attached to the vehicles by only two hitches. It is amusing when we turn the sharp corners to see how rapidly one can be taken out of the shafts and into the woods, while the occupants of the cart vacate it.

The roads continue good. Two ferries were crossed today—at Pitsund and at Lulea. The boats were small but of sufficient size to carry us. En route here we passed through the town of Pitea (3000 population), one of the oldest in Sweden and part of which is built upon the island of Pitholm.

Lulea has a population of 8000 and is the largest city in northern Sweden. Removed from its original site, seven miles down the river it has a $100,000 church and is an important ore shipping port during six months in the year. During the other six months the gulf is frozen two feet deep. The iron ore is practically on the surface at Gellivare and there are extensive mines 100 miles northwest, owned by the government. During the winter this ore is carried on the railroad to Narvik, Norway, an open port. Nearly 1,000,000 tons of ore are exported annually and it is considered the best iron produced.

The character of the hotels are changing somewhat. Tonight, after a 10o mile drive (6 hours) in the rain on a fair to bad road, we are located in the Gastgifvaregard an institution for travellers supplied by the government, neat and clean and with wholesome food.

HARPARANDA, Sweden, Aug. 15.—(Latitude 65.50). This, the most northern town in Sweden, with a population of 1600, is located at the extreme northern end of the gulf of Bothnia, opposite which, and across the river Torne, is the Russian Finland town of Torneo. Winter in this section extends from Nov. 15 to My 15, with an average snow level of six feet. On Dec. 22 the sun shines less than our hour, only three-quarters of the orb being visible.

The drive here of 110 miles, over bad roads, occupied six hours and covered nearly all points of the compass, the route full of curves and undulations. We only gained 15 minutes of latitude, but we went eastward nearly two full degrees of longitude.

Our progress continues to be bulletined at every point, and the usual crowds greet and cheer us as we pass.

KOMMIS, Sweden, near Lapland, and Russian Finland frontiers, Aug. 16, 1903 (Lat. 66 deg. 33 min.; E. lon. 23 deg. 31 min.).

We carried the American flag in the first automobile (18 horse-power Napier) to cross the Arctic circle today. Our drive has been continuous from the Massachusetts Automobile club house, Boston, excepting waterways. The passengers were Charles J. Glidden, Mrs. Glidden, Charles Thomas, engineer, of London, and August Langell, interpreter.

The motor car and its passengers will be transported by steamer to Frederickshaven, Jutland, the most northern point in Denmark (a six days' sail on the gulf of Bothnia and Baltic sea), and our drive continued toward Copenhagen, Berlin, Vienna, Paris and Liverpool. During our entire journey thus far nothing whatever has happened to the motor car. This is truly a remarkable record for any kind of a mechanical invention and thoroughly demonstrates the reliability of the car as well as the tires, which are now in a fair condition and good for many miles' drive.

Our Swedish drive of 1546 miles to this point was through 500 cities, towns and settlements. No ragged clothed children nor beggars have we seen and not over five cases of itoxication. Great kindness is shown to all dumb animals, cruelty in only one instance, and that under trying conditions, have we seen a horse struck.

The haying season is at its height and the entire family is to be seen working in the fields. The harvest commences in September and by the end of the month the preparations for the long nights are completed, except the filling of the woodsheds to meet a low continuous temperature registering 40 below zero. During the long winter some of the men cut wood, others lie about, smoking, taking care of their stock, remaining indoors, sleeping more hours than they are awake.

On our drive north of Harparanda, we passed many settlements of Finns. The Lapps at this season are herding reindeer in the mountains a few miles westward. The reindeer at all times of the year feed on dry moss, nothing else. They are valued at 30 kroner ($8) each. A Lapp is fairly well to do if he owns from 200 to 300, but a few very wealthy ones own from one to three thousand. The reindeer is used as a draught animal and for food, its horns for spoons, bones for needles and hides for coats, gloves and bed clothing.

Russia this year has driven out into Sweden 10,000 Finns. The government of Finland has been until recently in the people's own hands. The Finnish soldiers were removed to central Russia, and government officials dismissed and Russians put into all offices. All the Finns who expressed dissatisfaction at the regime have been ordered out of the country. Sweden gains by the expulsion, as the Finns are a law-abiding, industrious people. They were much interested in the automobile and appear a more intelligent class than the Lapps. The older Finns do not speak the Swedish language, but the children who attend school talk Swedish and are rapidly improving themselves.

Only one foreigner besides ourselves has registered at the Harparanda hotel for three years, and he was a journalist from Paris.

The drive to the circle from Harparanda and return, 125 miles, was accomplished on a bad reindeer in 10 hours. At Matarengi, 15 miles from the circle, we took aboard the car the postmaster of the district, to whom at the circle Mrs. Glidden presented the American flag carried from Boston. He gave us a document, of which the following is a copy:

"NORRA, POLCIRKELN DEN.

16 Aug., 1903.

"Undertecknad erkenner harmed emottagit af Herr Charles J. Glidden of Boston, Mass., U. S. A., en Amerikans flagga hvilken samma forde med sig i sin automobil som detta var den forsta automobil som passerat norra polsirkeln vill jag bevara somma flagga som ett minne (tecnad).

"A. MARTINELL

"Postmastare i of vertornea."

Translated, this is as follows:

"NORTH POLAR CIRCLE.

Aug. 16, 1903.

"The undersigned acknowledge to have received from Mr. Charles J. Glidden of Boston, Mass., U. S. A., an American flag which he brought with him in his automobile. As this was the first automobile to pass the Arctic circle I will keep this flag as a souvenir.

"A. MARTINELL

"Postmaster of Upper Tornea."

On our return from the circle the streets of Harparanda were filled with people, who loudly applauded the success of our undertaking in driving the first automobile the entire length of Sweden and across the Arctic circle.

LAWRENCE, Sept. 3.—A number of local Chinamen met in a laundry on Hampshire street, Monday evening and formed a society, the purpose of which is to keep the Chinese out of the Christian churches and Sunday schools and to prevent them becoming Americanized and converted to a foreign faith. Sam Wah Lung of South Lawrence presided at the meeting.

The society will be known, as near as translation into English will allow, as the Lord Sons of Confucius. One of the chief objects of the order will be to advance and retain the teachings and creed of Confucious among the Chinese of this country.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

The regular semi-monthly meeting of Industry Council, Royal Arcanum, took place last evening at the headquarters of that order in Odd Fellows' Temple, Middlesex street, with a fair representation of the membership in attendance. In the absence of Regent Joseph H. Gormley, Vice Regent Frank Fox presided. One candidate was initiated.

Independence Council, Junior O. U. O. M., met in regular session last evening at Odd Fellows' Temple. Supreme Judge W. L. S. Gilfoyle of Methuen delivered a brief but interesting address. Two applications for membership were received. There will be an initiation at the next meeting.

R. F. Butler Post 42, G. A. R., held its first fall meeting in the Memorial hall quarters last night. The comrades were entertained by Adjutant George E. Worthen, who has just returned from the glorious climate of California, where he went as a delegate to the department convention in San Francisco. He had been in 29 states and traveled 7880 miles. He was eloquent over the grandeur of the trip and proud to have fought for such a great country. Talk about the dangers of foreign immigration said Adjutant Worthen, there is room to spare for all of them. You can put 27 Massachusetts in Texas alone.

ROBBER CAUGHT

Found Lying Across Railroad Tracks

By Associated Press to The Sun

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Sept. 3.—The sheriff has secured a prisoner under unusual circumstances. He is believed to be wanted in Placer county for stage robbery. He was found lying across the railroad track at Barstow unconscious from a terrible blow on top of the head. He evidently had been placed there to be cut to pieces by the west bound Overland train. In his pockets was found a mask and the card of "M. J. Reilley," of the Silverton, Col., miners' union. The man was found on the track several hours after the theft of a Wells-Fargo treasure box and it is believed by the police that he participated in and that he was later struck on the head by his partners in the crime and left for the train to end their work.

PARKS WILL LEAD

Will Ride at Head of Labor Day Parade

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Samuel Parks will ride at the head of the Labor parade next Monday, and there is a strong probability that William S. Devery, who has been his friend, will ride beside him. That the man who has just come from prison will be the grand marshal of the parade was decided at a meeting of the United Board of Building Trades yesterday.

Eight other walking delegates, who will act as aids to Parks, will be on horseback. They are: Timothy McCarthy, who was indicted with Parks; Richard Caryel, M. Goldnets, J. Mullaney, P. O'Neil, Wm. Fife, Frederick Lemon and James Alaslow. Parks' organization, the Housesmiths and Bridgemen's union, will have the right of line.

Parks was forced to take to his bed yesterday. To the reaction coming after his release from Sing Sing prison and the excitement attending his welcome by his labor union friends was added a return of his malarial trouble and a decided increase in his temperature.

When asked how many men would be in line Labor Day, Parks said: "If there had not been all this trouble in the ranks, there would have been 100,000 men, but now I don't suppose there will be more than 25,000 or 30,000."

He did not seem to realize that when he said this he was admitting that 70,000 must have deserted from the faction which he leads.

When questioned about a report that he had said he had under way a new plan which would turn the tables on the employers he said: "Wouldn't I be foolish, if I had any such plan, to talk about it so that the bosses would learn all about it and be warned?"

SEVERAL ARRESTS

ART THIEVES AT WORK IN FLORENCE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

ROME, Sept. 3—The police at Florence have succeeded in finding a valuable Della Robbia bas-relief representing the descent from the cross, which was stolen last January from the oratory of the brotherhood of the Annunciation at Lepi.

Several persons have been arrested. They are said to have formed an association of thieves to send antique works of art abroad.

The bas-relief when found was already packed for dispatch abroad. It is expected that other precious objects which recently disappeared will be recovered.

CHARGE OF ASSAULT

LYNN SALOON KEEPER ORDERED TO APPEAR IN COURT.

By Associated Press to The Sun

LYNN, Sept. 3.—Frank T. McManus of the firm of Dugoe & McManus of this city.

The alleged assault took place last Saturday, when, it is claimed by McManus, he was twice ejected from the saloon by force. McManus claims that he visited the saloon on business with reference to the Order of Eagles, and claims that he was assaulted and put out of the saloon.

FIRE ON BROADWAY

Vellieux's Cash Market Badly Gutted

A lively blaze started in Vellieux's public cash market in Broadway shortly after eight o'clock last night, which necessitated the ringing in of an alarm from box 39. The local department responded promptly, and through their efforts the fire was placed under control before very much damage was done.

The fire was first discovered by Matthew Mitchell, who rushed down Broadway to where Sergt. John B. Crowley was standing, and the latter broke in the door of the store and removed what books and papers he could find to a place of safety. In the meantime an alarm from box 39 at the corner of Fletcher and Broadway was pulled in.

When the department arrived on the scene the appearance of the blaze was suggestive of a stubborn battle, but after a stream of water and a few lines from the Central chemical company had been directed onto the flames the fire was checked in short order. The interior of the building suffered to a great extent from fire, while Mr. Vellieux's stock was damaged by smoke and water. The stock is insured in the agency of Frank M. Brogan.

J. A. Green, the owner of the building, stated last night that the damage to the building would amount to over $200, and the proprietor of the store stated that a similar amount would just about cover his loss. Both losses are covered by insurance. The origin of the blaze is unknown, and of course the innocent rat and the sulphur-headed sticks have another charge to answer for.

Frank M. Brogan had the insurance.

Clothesline Thieves Have Operated in Belvidere

Nocturnal marauders with an eye to clotheslines visited the premises of Mrs. Bridget Lawler at the corner of High and Andover streets a few nights ago and relieved two clotheslines of considerable weight. The clothesline thieves have been operating somewhat extensively in Belvidere. It is believed that the theft at the Lawler estate was made between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning, as some body in the house heard a noise in the yard about that time. Complaints by those whose lines have been stripped have been made at police station and the police are looking for the thieves.

DR. LOUGEST

Has Had More Experience in the Treatment, and Made More Great Cures of Difficult, Protracted and Chronic Diseases and Weaknesses of Men Than Any Other Living Specialist

Dr. Lougest's treatment has been tested on more than twenty thousand (20,000) young, middle-aged and old men, who, as the results of errors or excesses, were tortured by the woes of nervous debility or decay. It has never yet failed, even in the worst cases, to bring back manly power, remove every trace or symptom of weakness, build up the physical and mental health, and prepare man anew for the duties and pleasures of both married and single life.

Lost Manhood, seminal weakness, effects of youthful indiscretions, nervous debility, pimples and blotches, hair falling out, loss of memory and energy, impotence, rheumatic pains, discharges and all private diseases quickly and permanently cured by an original and never-failing treatment. Blood poison, ulcers, stricture, varicocele and diseases of the kidneys, bladder and blood cured in the shortest possible time, without the use of mercury or hindrance from business. Dr. Lougest's treatment for the complete cure of Stricture and all unnatural discharges is the most wonderful of modern times. No matter how long the discharge has continued nor how many self-styled specialists have failed to relieve, let alone cure, Dr. Lougest will positively guarantee to stop the discharge entirely within 72 three days by means of his New Method Treatment. This treatment removes Stricture positively without pain, detention from business or the use of obnoxious or injurious medicines. No Expense! No Failure! Nearly one-half of all the long standing discharges, stricture and weaknesses of men are caused by the experiments of the many inexperienced and self-styled specialists of the present day.

Many a man who has been fooled by the "Pay When Cured" racket, knows that it is the last and only resort of a dying-out pretender to get a patient into his clutches. Beware of such schemes. Don't be deceived by misleading statements such as these seemingly charitable offers.

Don't entrust your lives to anyone not qualified by years of experience to treat you. Don't even step your foot across the threshold of an office run by inexperienced, irresponsible, illiterate pretenders. You had better save your money and let your disease take its own course than be practised and experimented upon and in the end lose both your money and life.

Dr. Lougest's offices occupy the entire building of five floors at 313 Columbus avenue, and they are supplied with every known means and device that science, skill, knowledge and money can provide that will aid in determining the exact location and nature of these diseases and effecting their cure promptly and thoroughly, and by the same sure methods as are used in the most Celebrated Paris Hospitals, which invariably result in

Ernest Harmon of Chase Avenue Attempted Suicide

Ernest J. Harmon, a man about 50 years of age and residing at 45 Chase avenue, Pawtucketville, this morning during a temporal aberration of mind made an attempt on his life by jabbing a dull scissors in his neck. Despite the fact that medical aid was promptly summoned he was in a very weak condition when taken to St. John's hospital. His condition grew rapidly worse and at the time of going to press there was little hope for his recovery.

Harmon was employed in the street department of the city, having for a number of years been stationed in Merrimack street sweeping the street. He was an honest and industrious man and has a wife, two sons, Charles M. and Ernest N., and a daughter Etta J.

For the past two or three months Harmon had been complaining and seemed to be very despondent, having little or nothing to say at home and was always very moody. His wife and members of the family had advised him to visit a physician, but he refused to do this and at the mention of a doctor being called he at times became almost frantic. He seemed to have a horror for doctors and at different times believed that the members of his family were trying to have him sent to an hospital. Time and time again when no reference whatsoever had been made to a doctor or hospital he would start from one of his despondent spells and emphatically state that he would not go to the hospital.

While he seemed to be all right physically it was decided that it would be better for him to attend to his duties in order to have something to keep him from becoming despondent, for while at work he seemed to be in good spirits, but just as soon as work was over and he had nothing to occupy his mind he became despondent. At times it seemed as though he was improving in spirits, but he would again lapse into low spirits and have little or nothing to say.

It was thought that during some of his despondent fits he might attempt to take his life and on account of this several revolvers which were in the house were put away where he could not get at them as were his razors and other dangerous articles.

Last night he returned home from work at his usual time and after eating supper sat around and retired early. About 2 o'clock this morning he left his bed and went down stairs. His wife and daughter who have been constantly on the alert, hearing him getting up, followed him down stairs and prevailed upon him to go back to bed again.

He finally consented and going up stairs went back to bed and stayed there until about 4 o'clock, when he again rose and descending to the floor below put on his shoes and taking a pair of old, dull scissors went through the kitchen into the shed and out into the garden, where he jabbed the dull prongs into his throat.

The first his wife knew of the affair was when she heard loud cries, and rushing down stairs had just reached the rear door when she saw her husband in his night attire coming towards the house.

He had both his hands to his throat and upon seeing his wife, cried, "I've done it, Mary! I've done it!" His wife was horrified with fear and arousing the other members of the house made her husband as comfortable as possible until the doctor who was summoned could arrive.

Dr. Alonzo G. Dennett was the physician summoned and he was prompt in arriving, but immediately upon seeing the condition of the man he telephoned for the ambulance. When the ambulance arrived Harmon was removed to St. John's hospital.

HAD RELIGIOUS MANIA.

Harmon was a well-known character in and about city hall and at the municipal building the news of his rash act was learned with regret though it did not occasion much surprise as it has been known for some time that Harmon was suffering with mental trouble though physically well and able to do his work.

His mania appears to have been of a religious nature and for the past few years he has been laboring under the delusion that he was not doing enough good to his fellowmen. He religiously refused to a accept a cent of money for working on Sunday, always stating that money earned on Sunday was the Lord's money and should go to the Lord. Hence, whenever he had to work on the Sabbath, invariably he gave the money received to some church or religious society.

One day last winter he went into Lang's drug store opposite city hall after receiving his pay and made several purchases of medicine, stating that he knew some poor people who were ill but who had no money to buy medicine. The clerk at the drug store also presentd him with some and he went away happy. Later he appeared at the city dispensary and gave a bottle of the medicine to Clerk Mason instructing him to give it to some poor person who might call there.

Among the paupers who call at the office of the overseers of the poor for aid is an old and decrepid woman who made regular visits from Belvidere to the office last winter. She is bent over and walks with great difficulty and one day she attracted the attention of Harmon, who was sweeping in Moody street. He stopped her and inquired all about her condition and then told her that though he was a poor man himself, he would like to help her and instructed her to call around the following Friday, pay day. The old woman was on hand and Harmon upon receiving his pay, gave her a part of it. After that he gave the woman money regularly every week.

THOUGHT HE OWED THE CITY.

But it was an imaginary debt to the city that bothered Harmon most and it was his principal thought all day yesterday. It seems that every Saturday night at 11 o'clock a gang of men leave the city stables and go through the principal streets picking up papers so that the streets will be presentable for the early churchgoers. Each man has a certain territory to cover and when he has finished his territory his work is done and he receives a full day's pay. Some nights the work would be done in four hours, five hours or even eight hours, but generally they finished up within five hours and received eight hours' pay for the work. Harmon was one of these men and when the eight hour law for city employes went into effect he became much interested in it and did much talking about it, though no one paid any attention to him.

Finally a few months ago Harmon went before Mr. Beals one day and informed him that he had been cheating the city for some time. "I have been working five and six hours and have been drawing eight hours' pay for it," said he. "I have been doing wrong and I want to pay back what I owe. I have $15 in the bank and that is the amount that I owe, so I think I will give it to the city treasurer."

Supt. Beals tried to convince him that he was all right and owed nothing, but poor Harmon was sure that he had been cheating, and after that he pestered the superintendent, stopping him wherever he saw him to ask him to accompany him to the city treasurer while he paid over the money.

A few days ago Supt. Beals made an arrangement with City Treasurer Stiles whereby the treasurer was to take the money if Harmon presented it and then place it in a bank in trust for him.

Yesterday morning Harmon met Supt. Beals on the street and informed him that the police were on his track and that he was going to give himself up after he paid the city treasurer the $15. The superintendent talked with him until the hallucination had left him and then Harmon returned to his work.

Supt. Beals deeply regrets Harmon's act. In conversation with The Sun reporter he said: "Harmon was one of the most faithful workers I ever had under me. He was working all the time. He had been weak-minded for some time but was able to do his work at all times. I sincerely hope the poor fellow will recover."

SULTAN'S SPEECH

The Annniversary of His Accession Observed

DESIRES WELFARE OF ALL THE PEOPLE

He Will Help the Greek Sufferers

By Associated Press to The Sun

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3—On the anniversary of his accession (Tuesday) the sultan received in audience at the palace the head sof the religious communities and the ecumenical patriarch made a speech of congratulations. In reply thereto, his majesty, contrary to precedent, spoke at some length, saying:

"All my desires are for the welfare of the population, without distinction of race or religion. As to the detestable and regretable deeds to which the patriarch alluded, I am convinced that the movement does not proceed spontaneously from the population, but is instigation from abroad. I hope the measures taken will insure tranquility. I call God to witness the sincerity of my declaration and that all my aspirations and work are for the welfare and prosperity of all my subjects."

Turning then to the Bulgarian exarch, the sultan bade him communicate his words to his flocks.

Next, addressing the Greek patriarch, the sultan said he regretted the Greek population had also suffered from the recent troubles and declared he would be pleased to contribute to the subscriptions being raised in the patriarchate in behalf of the sufferers.

His majesty further remarked that he was sorry that some of the soldiers had been guilty of acts contrary to his orders and desires.

The sultan personally assured Mgr. Mayan, the Armenian patriarch, that his words applied to Armenians as well as the people of other nationalities.

The porte's note of warning to the embassies and legations, informing them that according to police information the Bulgarian agitators were projecting outrages against the embassies, legations and public buildings in Constantinople, saying the Ottoman government had taken precaution, and requesting the heads of the foreign missions to do likewise, was issued in consequence of the receipt at the Russian embassy of an anonymous letter threatening outrages at the winter residences of the Russian ambassador and consul general.

PILOT FOR TROOP TRAINS.

By Associated Press to The Sun

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 3.—The sultan has ordered the vali of Salonica to see that all troop trains are preceded by pilot engines. The Turkish railroad officials are said to have notified the porte that the roads will not convey soldiers without prepayment of the cost of their transportation.

THE RELIEF FUND

IS NOT YET UP TO FIFTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS.

The relief fund for the Riverside park sufferers has not yet reached $15,000, remaining at $14,937.50. The committee hopes that the public will continue their generous offerings, as they would like to see the figures aggregate $20,000.

ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE

MAY HOLD UP SALUTE BILLS AGAIN.

The committee on accounts will meet at city hall tomorrow afternoon at 1.30 o'clock to inspect and approve bills for the month of August.

Among the bills will be that of the military companies for the Fourth of July salutes ordered by the mayor. The committee held up the bills and asked his honor to appear before them and explain the bill. His honor did not appear but sent a letter and the committee at its last meeting read the letter but adjourned without taking action upon the bill. It will not be surprising if the committee finishes its meeting tomorrow without reference to the matter, thus allowing the bill to go over for another month.

Lynch resides at 31 Branch street.

NO JURY YET

SERIOUS PROBLEM IN TRIAL OF ALLEGED RIOTERS.

By Associated Press to The Sun

DANVILLE, Ill., Sept. 3.—The jury problem in connection with the trials of the alleged rioters is becoming serious. All of the 60 names deposited in the jury box by the board of supervisors have been drawn out and still the jury is not complete and there are three more trials to come. The nature of the trial and the large number of peremptory challenges allowed is responsible.

Yesterday saw the exhaustion of an entire venire of sixty without the selection of a single juror, only eight jurors so far having been chosen. Judge Thompson appointed L. D. Gass, cashier of the First National bank, special deputy sheriff to bring in jurors, but this move did not prove any more successful.

THE CITY STREETS

Are Giving Employment to Many Men

LARGE FORCE IN STREET DEPARTMENT

Pavers Working Day and Night

The street department is busy these days and is much in evidence as it is doing considerable work on the principal streets.

Two crews of pavers are working day and night on the sidewalks of the principal streets making much needed repairs. The sidewalk were certainly in a miserable condition when the department tore them up.

With the new brick sidewalks will undoubtedly come several granolithich sidewalks in front of the larger places of business.

The crews are at work macadamizing on Fulton and Bellevue streets and Varnum avenue, while the different carpenters are building fences on Varnum avenue to replace those taken down when the street was widened. Edgestones are also being laid in Varnum avenue.

There are gangs at work scraping streets while two gangs of sweepers are at work on the paved streets, together with 40 sparrow men.

Thus it will be seen that the street department is running full blast at present.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE.

The Colonial Comic Opera Co., presented the pleasing opera "Said Pasha" to a large and appreciative audience at the Lakeview theatre last evening. Despite the fact that this is the second performance of "Said Pasha," during the season the opera is so popular that nothing but large houses have greeted it this week.

Peter Maguire takes the part of "Said Pasha" and plays his part to perfection. He is in good voice and his vocal selections are well applauded. Victor Gilbert, son of James Gilbert, has played in many prominent parts during the season but as "Hassen Bey" he shows off to good advantage. He has a remarkably fine voice and received encore after encore after his rendition of "I Love You." Mr. Gilbert who is quite young, will continue with his musical studies at the close of his engagement at Lakeview and has a bright future before him.

Joseph W. Smith, as "Terano," the Mexican nobleman, pleases the audience with his voice, which has served as a magnet in drawing patrons to the theatre for the past two seasons. George McFarlane and Ben Lodge, the two fun makers, portray the parts of "Hadad," and "Nockey." Mr. MacFarlane's fine voice grows sweeter and sweeter at every performance and he is by far the best baritone that has ever appeared in this city. Ben Lodge and his "why" furnishes plenty of fun for the audience and when he lights a match "to see if he can lift the cup," he brings down the house. Lodge's funny situations and comicalities will be missed by the patrons of the theatre after Labor Day.

Frank Nelson plays the part of the Rajah, and people who have not seen Mr. Nelson had better make a trip to the theatre before it closes Labor Day. It would be difficult to describe his ability as an actor, for his portrayal of the part is excellent and faultless. He has a powerful voice which brings terror and at the same time pleases the audience.

Esther Barton takes the leading role of "Serena," the Pasha's daughter, and her voice has improved wonderfully over last week. She is lively, witty and her catchy actions and pleasing voice captivate the audience. Blanche Paquette, as "Alti," the ideal queen of Altra, plays her part in an admirable manner and her solo, "Good Night," is loudly applauded. Miss Paquette through her ability as an actress and her good voice has been promoted from the ranks of the chorus to that of a leading role, she being admirably fitted for the latter position. Miss Mae Huntington, a charming little actress, plays the difficult part of "Balah Saiah" to perfection. The chorus is also in fine voice.

"Said Pasha" will be repeated afternoon and evening, the last performance being given next Monday evening. The company will then bid adieu to its patrons and the doors of the theatre will be closed until next season.

APPETITE FOR LIQUOR

IMPARTED TO CHILDREN BY MILK THEY DRINK.

By Associated Press to The Sun

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—The theory that germs of an appetite for liquor are imparted to Chicago babies through the medium of milk from cows that eat the refuse from Peoria distilleries has suggested itself to Assistant State Food Inspector R. M. Patterson.

Mr. Patterson has just returned from Peoria, where he found the distillery fed cows whose milk had been regularly shipped to Chicago. He enjoined the dairymen to sell no more milk from these cattle.

"I cannot say that I saw any of the cattle under the influence of liquor," said Mr. Patterson, "but I know that the corn mash has a peculiar effect on them and it is against the law to sell their milk."

COTTON CONDITION.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The monthly report of the chief of the bureau of statistics of the department of agriculture will show the average condition of cotton on August 25 to have been 81.2 as compared with 79.7 on July 25, 1903, 64.0 on August 26, 1902, 71.4 on August 24, 1901, and a 10-year average of 72.4.

GRADE CROSSINGS

Committee Will Report to Aldermen

RECOMMENDING PETITION TO SUPERIOR COURT

For Appointment of Grade Crossing Commission

The special committee of the city council on the abolition of grade crossings will meet tomorrow evening with City Engineer Bowers at City Hall, to discuss their recent tour of inspection and formulate a report to the board of aldermen.

It is probable that the committee will ask the aldermen to petition the superior court for the abolition of certain local grade crossings and in that event the superior court will grant the petition and appoint a commission consisting of three men to attend to the work of making the changes, the commission having full and final charge of the work. The commissions in such cases are generally composed of one man representing the city, one representing the railroad, and a third selected by the first two. This commission consults the plans of the city engineer and if it finds it necessary has plans of its own drawn. The work is then done at the city's expense, but the city is later reimbursed. The city stands 10 per cent. of the cost, the railroad 25 per cent. and thestate 65 per cent. The last grade crossing to be removed in this city was that at Pawtucket street.

MOLINEUX CASE

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Mrs. Roland B. Molineux, who went to Sioux Falls, S. D., nine months ago, shortly after the acquittal of her husband on the charge of causing the death by poisoning of Mrs. Adams, has returned to this city. It was said when she went to South Dakota, that it was her intention to sue for divorce. It is rumored that the case was heard before a referee in Hamlin county and that the evidence was submitted to a judge sitting at Desmet, S. D., but those interested in the matter absolutely refuse to make any statement or even admit that testimony has been submitted to the South Dakota courts.

QUICK SEWER WORK

Middlesex Street Job Beats the Record

A 2200 Feet Sewer Laid in Less Than Two Months at Two-Thirds of Its Estimated Cost

The sewer committee will meet tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, and act upon new work, as the work laid out some time ago will be finished next Wednesday and the money appropriated all spent.

A gang of 120 sewer employes are at present putting the finishing touches on the Middlesex street sewer and will finish the job next Wednesday.

Supt. Beals is proud of the department's work on the Middlesex street sewer and from all accounts he has reason to be. The work on the sewer was begun on July 14, and on Sept. 9 it will be finished. It is 2200 feet long and 1600 feet is of brick, while the remaining 600 feet is laid with 15-inch pipe. It will be the quickest sewer job on record and will be done for two-thirds of the estimated cost. The city engineer's estimate was $17,000 and the job completed will cost $12,000.

ALASKAN CASE

United States Presents Its Side to Tribunal

Commission Elected Lord Chief Justice Alverstone Chairman—The Oral Arguments Will Begin on September 15

By Associated Press to The Sun

LONDON, Sept. 3.—The Alaskan boundary commissioners held their first meeting this morning in the conference room of the foreign office.

Prior to the formal assembling, the commissioners selected Reginald T. Tower, of the British diplomatic service, formerly attached to the legation at Washington and recently minister to Siam, as secretary. J. R. Carter, second secretary of the United States embassy, and Mr. Pope, a representative of the Canadian government, were appointed assistant secretaries.

Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, was subsequently chosen chairman of the commission.

It was stated that the oral arguments would commence September 15, and Lord Alverstone expressed the hope that they would be finished by October 9.

Lord Alverstone, after formally announcing that the commission was in session, asked counsel when they decided to begin oral arguments. Sir Robert B. Finlay, the attorney-general in behalf of the British counsel, suggested that at least two weeks would be required for preparation, to which John M. Dickinson, representing the American counsel, assented, though he said the American counsel would be ready in a week.

Lord Alverstone asked when the oral arguments would be finished.

Attorney General Finlay suggested October 15, but his lordship remarked that he thought a shorter period was advisable, and October 9 was fixed upon.

The commission decided to sit five days per week, commencing Sept. 15, and excluding Saturdays and they will be in session from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., daily and granted permission for a limited number of representatives of the press to attend the sittings.

In order that the presentation of the cases may be exhaustive, it has been arranged that three of the counsel for each government shall make arguments, the British opening and being followed alternately by Americans and British, the former securing the advantage of delivering the closing argument.

The commission removed the injunction of secrecy on all documents hitherto exchanged and the sitting was adjourned, the commissioners, agents and counsel proceeding to the quadrangle, where they were photographed.

The conference room of the foreign office, where the commissioners meet, is the coolest apartment in the British public building. At the end of the room, a plaiform had been constructed and on it was a long desk with a blue covering. Behind this desk were six comfortable chairs, which were occupied by the commissioners whose International reputations emphasized the importance of the occasion. Elihu Root and Lord Alverstone sat in the center. Separate tables were provided for counsel.

Canadian counsel were the first to arrive in the chamber. They were followed by John W. Foster, former secretary of state and his assistants, who were accompanied by Ambassador Choate. The commissioners came in a few moments later and immediately began a private conference which resulted in the selection of the officers and at which they exchanged credentials and took the oath required by the treaty.

A few minutes after eleven o'clock the commission took their seats, Senator Turner on the extreme right, then Sir Louis Jette, formerly lieutenant-governor of Quebec; Mr. Root, Lord Alverstone, Senator Lodge, A. B. Aylesworth, Mr. Foster and Clifford Sifton (Canadian minister of the interior.) The agents of the respective governments sat at desks on the extreme right and left of the commission, while counsel and the stenographers occupied desks facing the commissioners.

The documents covering the American presentation of the case are comprised in three volumes, making a total of about 1100 pages. In addition, there also are two volumes of maps. The largest of the volumes of text contains the original statement by the American commissioners while one of the smaller volumes presents the American counter-case in rejoinder to the British case and the other the argument of the American commissioners.

In the first volume the questions at issue, namely, what is intended to be the point of commencement of the line of demarkation between the United States and Canada; what is the Portland channel; what course the line should take to the entrance of that channel; to what point of the 56th parallel the line should be drawn from the head of Portland channel, and other familiar questions are discussed. There also is extensive discussion of the extent of the strip of territory along the coast on the mainland that Russia conveyed to the United States by the treaty of 1867. It appeared from the document that Great Britain concedes that the line begins at Cape Muzon.

The United States contends that it was the contention of the powers that signed the treaty of 1825 to confirm in full sovereignty to Russia a continuous strip or lisiere along the continental shores of the northwest coast of America extending from Portland channel to the 141st meridian of longitude west of Greenwich, and that such strip was to be ten marine leagues measured from the heads of all gulfs and other arms of the sea, unless there was within that distance a range of mountains. The contention is further made that there is no such mountain range. It also is urged that the United States has occupied this strip of territory ever since its acquisition from Russia and that Russia had controlled it since the treaty of 1825, until ceded to the United States in 1867.

REJONDER TO BRITISH CLAIMS.

In its counter-statement, the American commission makes rejoinder to points covered in the presentation of the British side of the case, which it appears contains twenty or more documents which heretofore have not been given to the public. The additional evidence referred to bears upon the negotiations which took place between Great Britain and Russia during the years 1823 to 1825 and it is contended that this new evidence in no way alters any material contention made in the original allegations but on the contrary, "it confirms and strengthens the position of the United States."

These documents consist largely of statements made, and letters written by Mr. Polly, who was at that time deputy governor of the Hudson Bay company, and it is contended that his letters fully sustain the assertion that fixing a line of demarkation the British government acted solely in the interests of that company.

BRITISH PROTESTS FILED.

The commissioners discussed at some length the claims made by their opponents that many protests have been filed by British officials against the American claim in reference to the boundary line. They admit that from time to time there have been formal representations but these they assert were in the main without sufficient data to justify serious consideration. Indeed, they say that never until after the Klondike gold discoveries were made in 1896 did the British government take up the question seriously. They admit that in 1898 attention was called to the claim of the British government that the ten league strip extended only from the main waters of the ocean but they say that this contention was not made absolutely clear until the British case was delivered to the present tribunal on the second of May last. In support of the American contention that the strip should measure from tide-water and from the heads of bays and inlets a number of deposition are produced in connection with the counter-case going to show the occupation of this strip by settlers from the United States since 1850. Special effort is directed toward showing the control of the country about the head of the Lynn canal, including the sites of the towns of Dyea, Skagway, White Pass and Lake Bennett. It also is stated that numerous documents have been preserved which had been given to Indian chiefs and others by officials of the United States annually for twenty years after the United States acquired the territory. It is contended that this occupation and control were known to the Canadian government and its people.

THE TREATY OF 1825.

Discussing the boundaries proposed by Great Britain, the commission make reference to the instability of the Canadian contention on this point and concludes that "the United States has from the time of the cession of Alaska to the present day, maintained but one interpretation of the treaty of 1825. Its position has been open and known to the world. It is the same which was presented to the tribunal in its case and which it now reiterates in this counter-case.

ARGUMENT IN THE CASE.

The argument in the case is a careful study of maps, treaties, and other documents bearing upon boundary contention and it is intended to drive home the facts presented in the statements to which reference has been made. Considerable space is devoted to the part played by the Klondike gold discoveries in arousing Great Britain's interests in the controversy and in this connection notice is taken on an assertion made by the British commissioners that the towns of Dyea and Skagway owed their existence to the migration to the Klondike. They assert on the contrary that Dyea was founded in 1886 and Skagway in 1888. They contradict flatly a contention made by the British commissioners to the effect that "Canada's claim to the territories at the head of Lynn Canal was at the time well known to the United States government."

"This," they say, "is a gratuitous assertion. There is no proof to sustain it. Canada never put forward any such claim to the United States. The claim was first made in 1898 by Great Britain before the joint high commission."

"It is said that 'if the Canadian government had instructed British vessels to disregard these regulations there would have been grave danger of a serious collision.' There undoubtedly would have been a collision, just as certainly as if they had been instructed to disregard the regulations of the port of New York."

Strong exception also is taken to the contention that there was a reservation on the part of Great Britain when the United States volunteered to create a port of entry at Dyea. The argument asserts that whatever reservation there was, was made by a commissioner of customs and that he had no authority in the premises.

BOSTON SUFFERS

IN THE MATTER OF GRAIN FREIGHTS.

By Associated Press to The Sun

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 3.—Western grain shippers through the ports of New York and Boston are loudly complaining that the new transatlantic steamship combine is going to be the death of their trade. The International Mercantile Marine company refuses to carry grain at less than 3 cents a bushel. The consequence is that shipments are being diverted to Canadian and southern ports.

The matter of railroad rates from Chicago to Atlantic ports is also the subject of earnest discussion. It is claimed that it is ridiculous on the part of the trunk lines to charge 7 cents from Chicago to New York, when the Grand Trunk charges only 4½ cents from Chicago to Montreal.

SEQUEL TO AN ARMENIAN LOVE STORY

Brought Out in Brighton Court

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON Sept. 3.—One of the concluding scenes of a romantic love drama, the romance of which is entwined about two continents, was laid in the Brighton police court yesterday morning. The case was that in which Boghos Mamocomian of Portland, Me., was fined $30 for assaulting Mary Mooradian of 78 Market street, Brighton.

The curtain rang up on this little drama in far-distant Armenia, where Satenig Mamocomian and a boy named Arminak, children of close neighbors, played together in the sun-blistered streets of their native town. Inseparable companions were they, although the boy was some four years the older.

One day, in defiance of the customs of their people, they plighted their troth without acquainting their relatives. They were too young to yet think of obtaining the consent of their relatives to the marriage, so they maintained secrecy.

Before either had become of the proper age for the realization of their hopes the family of Satenig came to America. Arminak promised to soon follow, and both the youthful lovers vowed to remain constant.

True to his promise, Arminak soon followed, and after procuring himself a position in the factory of the Hood Rubber company in Watertown, he set out to locate his fiancee. He soon found that she was with her parents in Portland.

Then began a correspondence that sufficed to appease the ardor of these Oriental sweethearts until such time as Arminak should have learned his trade as a shoemaker and have saved enough money to give his bride a comfortable home.

This portion of his hopes was realized some six months ago, and straight way he made for the Maine metropolis. He declared himself and was accepted, and in accord with an Armenian custom made Papa Mamocomian richer by $150.

The six months' probation had nearly passed and the wedding day was near at hand when Satenig, who was blossoming out into a beautiful specimen of young womanhood, attracted the attention of another ardent young Armenian, who made Papa Mamocomian a flattering offer for his daughter's hand.

The old man, who had often felt the want of a dollar, suddenly became partial to the latter suitor. He, however, did not find favor in the dreamy eyes of the girl, and when her father made known his intention of marrying her to the last suitor on the scene she quietly wrote the fact to Arminak.

Losing no time, Arminak journeyed to Portland and the lovers arranged an elopement.

Last Sunday was the date set for this and without any trouble the pair evaded the vigilance of the girl's father and coming to Boston, disappeared.

But papa was not to be beaten so easily, and he at once gave chase.

He easily traced the pair to Boston, but after that the trail became indistinct and he was forced to grope around in search of a clue.

Yesterday morning he received word that his daughter was at the house of Mary Mooradian, on Market street. He lost no time in finding the place and on his arrival he demanded to see his daughter. On Mrs. Mooradian informing him that she was not in her house the irate parent proceeded to avenge his troubles on the crockery ware and anatomy of Mrs. Mooradian. He finally landed in Station 11 and thence to the police court. He was committed, as the necessary $30 was not forthcoming.

When the curtain rang down on yesterday's scene Cupid had the strife well in hand.

WALL STREET GOSSIP.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WALL STREET—10:10 a. m. The weakness caused in the London by the unexpected advance of one per cent. in the bank of England discount rate was reflected very slightly in the opening market here. Dealings were on a very small scale and while declines predominated, there were a few scattering gains. St Paul fell 5-8 and running sales of 1000 shares of Achison were at 65 3-4 and 65 1-2 compared with 65 1-2 last night.

11 a.m.—Considerable amounts of Reading were offered for sale during the first hour, which forced the price below 54. Other stocks also weakened in sympathy. Missouri Pacific, St. Paul and Rock Island lost a point each and other standard stocks substantial fractions. Amalgamated yielded a point. Consolidated Gas 1¼, and Metropolitan Street Railway 2⅜, but the specialties otherwise were neglected.

Noon—Metropolitan securities broke abruptly 6¼ and then rallied 4¼, and Metropolitan Street Railway rallied 2. Pullman lost 2. The general list hardened slightly but was intensely dull. Bonds were dull and irregular.

1 p. m.—Efforts to sell Colorado Fuel found a very limited market and the stock was offered down with variations of 1 and 2 points between; sales until it reached it a drop of 7. The western railroad stocks fell off slightly again under the leadership of Union Pacific which declined to 75. Northwestern gave way 2, North American 1½ and Peoples Gas 1.

MAINE FARMERS

Engaged in an Exciting Man Hunt

By Associated Press to The Sun

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 3.—The man hunt which the people of Gorham and vicinity have been keeping up since Friday last, to find the man who committed the atrocious assault on 9-year-old Nina Hamblen on that day, has been without result so far, though every police officer in the county and hundreds of citizens are searching day and night for the man.

Last night the police received information that the man wanted may be making tracks for Boston along the line of the railroad, and the search was taken up with renewed vigor and some prospect of success.

Sheriff Pennell has offered a reward of $50 for information regarding the man, but such a stimulus was not needed, for the maddened farmers are only too anxious to find him.

In all directions, in all parts of the county, officers and citizens are seeking the criminal with vigor, and if he is caught summary vengeance may be expected.

The child may die as a result of the man's assault, and this fact has spurred on the men in the chase.

Owing to a mistake of the Gorham authorities, the assailant gained a start of 24 hours over the officers.

Every farmer, heavily armed, is on the hunt. Horses and buggies are speeding over the country, each carriage containing a farmer ready to shoot if he sees the fugitive.

The southern and western part of the state is flooded with big printed circulars calling upon the citizens for aid. It gives a description of the man wanted, and reads as follows:

"Aged, 21 or 25; slight build; height, 5 feet 9 or 5 inches, weight, about 130 pounds; smooth face; absence of beard noticeable; wore dark blue serge suit, black stiff hat, blue and white striped shirt. Look for spots on back of hands."

Suspicious characters are being rounded up in all sections of the country, and anyone approaching the description is pounced upon at once.

Already at least a dozen persons have been taken on suspicion, but each one has furnished a strong alibi, without which he would not have been released.

Interest in the case is spreading all over the state.

All tramps are being stopped and questioned.

One of the officers yesterday rounded up a party of four tramps and cross-examined them at considerable length.

A stranger identified as the hunted man stopped at the Five Points station of the Biddeford & Saco electric road yesterday. Harry Clark, the station agent, who conducts a small store in connection with his railroad duties, told the officers an hour later that a stranger answering to the minutest detail the description shown him by the officers called at his place and bought a glass of ginger ale.

His customer appeared much exhausted, excited and in a hurry. He drank the soda hastily, proffered a nickel in payment and hurried down the road toward Alfred.

If the man is caught by any of the infuriated farmers a lynching bee may result.

SAILORS FIGHT

In a Knife Duel With Thugs

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—Beaten and stabbed in a fierce hand-to-hand knife duel with water front thugs, three sailors of the German steamer Shoofels were saved from being killed in East Boston just after midnight last night by the prompt response to their cries of Patrolman O'Rourke.

One man has a gash three inches deep in his throat, another has an ugly cut over the eye and the third, while not stabbed, was almost beaten to death.

The Shoofels is at the Eastern docks. She got in on Tuesday after a 50 days' voyage from Calcutta. The men were paid off yesterday and went ashore to spend their money in approved sailor fashion. When three of them were crossing the railroad tracks on Marginal street near Orleans, finding their way back to their ship, they were attacked by three toughs. The police say the thugs, knowing that the ship's men would have money about them, lay in wait for any that might return to the vessel late at night.

The sailors were attacked in the darkness of the railroad crossing, and there, struggling and tripping over the tracks, the six men had a hand-to-hand fight. When the thugs found the sailors were not easily subdued they drew knives, and the sailors did also. The sailors yelled loudly in their foreign tongue, and Patrolman O'Rourke came on the run. As soon as the toughs saw him they got away and disappeared in the darkness.

The sailors were carried on board their steamer, seriously hurt, and treated there by a doctor. They cannot speak English and could not give many details. Robbery was the motive, for Patrolman O'Rourke found on the tracks several bundles of clothes which the sailors were carrying, and they were torn and ripped open as if to see what was inside.

The sailors were unable to give any clear description of their assailants.

When a city official wants a reelection to office he should be ready if called upon to show that he had done something to merit a reelection.

Nothing tests a law or anything else like practical application. Under the new automobile law it is found that any boy who can read and write English can get registered as a chauffeur. That is a defect in the law that should be remedied as soon as possible. As it stands now it is a practical inducement to incompetents to get registered. It is a dangerous law. The oversight here evident in the statute shows the results of hasty legislative work.

THE POLICE TO BLAME.

The local police have all to do with the enforcement of the no-license law. When the police court dock is filled with drunks and the police appear against them the conviction must come home to the minds of the spectators that the police are more to blame than the persons who are there to answer the charge of drunkenness. The police are themselves indirectly to blame; but yet they place the entire blame upon the prisoners. Judge Hadley has repeatedly told the officers that the number of drunks in court gives ample proof of the laxity with which the no license law is enforced. The demonstration given early in the year proved conclusively that the law can be enforced. Why this relaxation on the part of the police?

THE JOINT CAUCUS ACT.

An important question to be passed upon by the voters at the state election will be the adoption or rejection of the act providing for joint party caucuses for all political or municipal parties.

If the act be accepted then thereafter all the ward caucuses of all political parties will be held at the same time and place. From the fact that but one primary is provided for each ward there are serious barriers to the practical working of the act in this city. Few if any of the ward rooms would be big enough to accommodate all.

How could all the voters of ward eight be crowded into the Branch street engine house or how could all the voters of ward seven be provided with voting facilities in the Fletcher street engine house? As for ward four it is well known that the Lyon street ward room is packed to suffocation at every democratic caucus. What would be the condition of affairs if all the republicans of the ward had to assemble there and select their candidates at the same time? The thing is an actual impossibility.

Hence unless provision be made for precinct caucuses, which to our mind seems undesirable, there are insuperable obstacles to the practical working of the act in this city. Consequently it would be the best policy for Lowell voters to reject the act this year. By next year there will be a clearer idea of the law and its effect. Its working in other cities will serve to guide the voters of this city. There is no hurry about adopting the new law. We can get along very well with our present mode of selecting candidates. In the long run it may be superior to the new method provided for by the act to be submitted to the voters in November.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE WATER BOARD.

The eyes of the state are upon us for more reasons than one. The calamitous explosion brought us wide notoriety of a kind that was not at all desirable. But for the explosion we were not responsible, although it spread disaster on all sides.

But immediately after comes an epidemic of typhoid fever that has already cost as many as half a dozen lives. For that epidemic and all the lives it cost the water board is primarily responsible. We have heard the explanation of the water board and most people have accepted it, but in spite of the claim that the source of contamination of our water supply has been shut off, the cases of typhoid continue to appear and the usual percentage of the cases results in death.

There is reason to believe also that the fatalities resulting from the disease are even greater than reported as there are some doctors quite unwilling to let it appear that they lose a typhoid patient. They are ready to assign other causes of death when a typhoid patient succumbs to the disease.

If an individual was run down on the street and killed there would be a great outcry against the guilty party, but here is a case in which as many as half a dozen lives are taken through carelessness or mismanagement on the part of the water board.

The public has demanded that the source of the contamination of our water supply be removed; as still the typhoid cases are becoming more and more numerous. It appears, therefore, that the cause is still operative despite the statement of the waer board.

When is the epidemic to be checked? What steps have been taken to prevent a repetition of the breaks which are said to have caused the trouble?

What steps have been taken to ascertain that all the sources of contamination have been removed or cut off? It would seem that there are still undiscovered sources of contamination as otherwise the epidemic would show signs of subsiding. On the contrary, however, the cases of typhoid reported daily show that the progress of the disease is now almost as great as at any time since its first appearance.

The water board is directly responsible for all, the Locks and Canals company indirectly. In cases where through carelessness or mismanagement a loss of life has resulted, the grand jury has indicted the parties for manslaughter.

The Newark, N. J., case is an example that should be followed in other cities for the public good.

If the water board can show that the Locks and Canals company is guilty then let the responsibility rest upon that company, but until this is proven to the satisfaction of the public the board itself will have to bear the responsibility.

What the public demands now is some assurance that the water furnished the people of this city is pure and free from typhoid germs.

The state board of health made an analysis a short time ago, but that did not show that the water was then free from typhoid germs or even from the evidences of sewage. What has been done since by the water board to purify the city water? It seems that more extraordinary steps may be necessary to purify the water and check the epidemic. The pipes have been flushed and that should carry off the contamination if there was no influx of impurities to the city mains. The water board seems to be satisfied that the source of contamination has been effectually shut off. The steady growth and continuance of the typhoid epidemic seems to prove the contrary. Which is right?

A few smallpox cases would spread great alarm, but already the deaths that have resulted from the typhoid epidemic outnumber the deaths in any of the outbreaks of smallpox during the past decade.

It does seem that the water board scarcely appreciates the seriousness of the situation.

WITH A SHOTGUN

A Bold Burglar Was Held Up

MONEY AND LOOT FOUND IN HIS POCKETS

Says He Lives in New York

By Associated Press to The Sun

BROCKTON, Sept. 3.—James E. Sawyer a West Bridgewater constable delivered for safe keeping at the Central police station yesterday afternoon a young man, who is held there charged with daylight burglary at the home of Mrs. Mary Howland, in West Bridgewater.

He gave his name first as John Enway, then said it was Tony Rose. He said he lived at 11 West street, New York, but had no special residence at present.

Constable Sawyer says that George Shipman of West Bridgewater saw the man leave an electric car just before noon and go boldly to the front door of Mrs. Howland's home, unlock it and walk in.

Shipman knew that Mrs. Howland was away, and so got his shotgun and went over to the house on West Center street. The burglar leaped out of the window and Shipman held him up. The man was later turned over to Constable Sawyer, who handcuffed him and brought him here for appearance in the police court today.

When searched the man had $9 in one pocket and $3 and some change in another. He said he got the $9 at West Bridgewater, but the $3 were his. His pockets also contained two gold rings, a gold-plated key chain, attached to a bunch of keys, gold watch and chain, cigar case, bottle of perfumery, gold-bowed spectacles, pair of kid gloves and a book containing a large number of names and addresses of different places.

He said he was 29 years old. He is of dark complexion, 5 feet 4½ inches in height, and has blue eyes. After his arrest the man handed the officer a small box, which he said he found in the house where he was arrested. It contained a pair of sleeve buttons, gold neck chain and a ring. He intimated that he had made another break in West Bridgewater earlier in the day, and that he might have a confederate working in the town.

Officer Crooker of Holbrook has been notified and may try to connect the man with some recent breaks in his town, which are supposed to have been committed by a dark complexioned man, and it is thought he may be the man who worked so boldly recently in Whitman.

Albert Dowd, the 17-year-old boy who went away with $130 of his father's money while the latter was attending a ball game at Spalding park last Monday, was arrested for the Lowell police in Providence, R. I., yesterday. Inspector Donaldson went to Providence for young Dowd today. In consequence of information received by Lieut. Brosnan, who is acting night captain in the absence of Captain Kew, he decided that young Dowd had gone to Providence and telephoned the police of that place to be on the lookout for him, with the result that his arrest followed. WALTHOUR'S RACE

By Associated Press to The Sun

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 3—Bobby Walthour defeated Harry Caldwell by one and a half laps last night at the Coliseum in one of the fastest 20-mile motor paced races that has ever been ridden on this track. State records from eleven to eighteen miles were broken by Caldwell but he was beaten in the last mile through losing his pace. Walthour changed motors early in the race with one of the prettiest pick-ups that has ever been made on a bicycle track. Walthour finished the race behind Hunter, who was riding the "Red Devil," on which the rear tire had been worn down to the canvas, causing it to slip on the banks. Both pace maker and rider continued their record-breaking clip with full knowledge of their peril. The 15 miles was reeled off by Caldwell in 18.58.3, a state record, while the 20-mile was in 25.31.2. The two-mile handicap was won by F. Keighley of this city and the five mile open by Marcus Hurley of New York.

AT HIGH SPEED

UNKNOWN AUTO STRUCK AND KNOCKED DOWN MAN.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WORCESTER, Sept. 3.—Israel Rose, 69 years old, an East Brookfield farmer and father of 18 children, was struck by an unknown automobile and fatally injured, near the corner of Main and Tirrell streets, in this city, about 10 o'clock last night.

He was standing on an electric car toward the center of the city, but left it at the corner of Tirrell street to wait for a Spencer-bound car to take him home. As he stepped from behind the car he came directly in front of an auto running at great speed toward Leicester.

The drivers of the automobile did not slacken their speed a particle, but kept on their wild run. Rose was thrown to the stone pavement with tremendous force and received a lacerated scalp wound, and when picked up was unconscious.

He was taken to the City hospital in the ambulance, and the physicians say he is suffering from concussion of the brain.

The identity of the auto and its occupants is unknown, but the police have started a hunt for the men who are responsible for the accident.

THE WHITE HOUSE

HAS BEEN REOPENED TO THE PUBLIC.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—After being closed several weeks, while the interior was being renovated, the White House was again opened to visitors yesterday. A large number of tourists went through the east room and the basement and first floor hallways. The three parlors and state dining room can be seen from the hallways of the first floor, to which visitors are admitted.

The ceilings of the parlors are covered with white cotton cloth so as to protect them during the summer season, and much of the furniture is likewise covered. The piano in the east room has been taken to New York for repairs.

This is the gold-leaf piano presented to the White House by one of the large piano concerns of the country. It was used at musicales and concerts last winter and will be again in use this winter.

N. E. STATISTICS

FIGURES SHOWING THE NATIVE BORN POPULATION.

The latest bulletin of the Boston statistics department contains a compilation from the reports of the twelfth census that shows by states and territories the distribution of New England born and Massachusetts-born population. It appears that there are 3,811,295 native-born persons in New England. Of these, 1,660,223 or 43.56 per cent., were born in Massachusetts. Of the 528,480 persons contributed by New England to other states and territories, 183,194 or 34.66 per cent. were born in Massachusetts. Maine has the largest percentage of persons born within the state and still living there—33.24 per cent. Rhode Island has the smallest -72.70 per cent. New Hampshire has the largest percentage of persons born in other New England states and Maine the smallest, the figures being 20.16 per cent. and 4.61 per cent., respectively. In Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island the largest percentage of the persons born in other states comes from Massachusetts; in Vermont and Connecticut the largest percentage comes from New York; in Massachusetts, from Maine. The total Massachusetts-born white population of this state numbers 1,543,089. Of these, 748,993 are of native parentage and 781,831 of foreign parentage, while 12,265 are classed as colored—the latter designation covering negroes, Chinese, Japanese and Indians. The total New England-born population of Massachusetts is 1,804,423. Of this, 950,138 are of native parentage and 840,696 of foreign parentage. The total American-born population of the state is 1,950,022, comprising 1,032,264 of native parentage and 897,336 of foreign parentage, besides 29,372 classed as colored. Of the states outside of New England, New York furnishes the largest number of Massachusetts residents—a total of 70,299. Pennsylvania comes next, with 11,030. It is notable that 5238 natives of Ohio live in Massachusetts, 4913 natives of Illinois and 1810 of California. In the population of Massachusetts natives of every state and territory of the American Union, together with the District of Columbia, and also of Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines, are included. The smallest contribution to our population is made by Alaska, which is represented by nine persons born there. Next come the Philippines with eleven persons.

CLOSE OF WAR

CAME ON DECEMBER 10, 1898 SAYS DARLING.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling has decided that for purposes affecting deserters from the United States navy, the Spanish war ended December 10, 1898, the date of the signing of the treaty of peace. This conclusion disagrees with a ruling of the war department to the effect that the war was not closed for a demonstration purpose in that department until April 11, 1899, the date of the exchange of ratifications of the treaty.

Discourses on Ways and Means of Having the Good Times Usually Enjoyed Only by Girls Born With a Silver Spoon. Raps Higher Education. Praises Country Life -:-

THE poor envy the rich for many reasons, but to my mind the one great advantage the latter have is the power of leading healthful, strength giving, wholesome, well rounded lives—that is, if they choose to do so, which they unfortunately often do not. The man or woman of money has the great advantage of being able to live much in the open air and of enjoying all the year round sports which are events to other people—horseback riding, hunting, polo and long cruises on beautiful yachts to foreign shores and over wind swept oceans.

The girl with money can improve herself in a thousand ways. If she is born homely, with a poor complexion or a scrawny neck, these can be remedied by costly treatment and massage. She cannot help being graceful because from her earliest years she has graceful examples set before her, she learns suavity from her French nurse and dainty posings in the smart dancing class she attends from babyhood. She is not allowed to grow sallow over problems which confront hard working girls nor dim her eyes with too much study. She has just enough book knowledge to enable her to carry on a conversation, and the rest is obtained by travel and association with clever people—the very best knowledge in the world. Then, too, she knows the thousand and one things so much more necessary than mere book learning. She can sail a boat, help lead a cotillon, play golf, ride to hounds, drive a four-in-hand, shoot, swim and fence, not to speak of ordering an intricate household. Above all she starts in life fearless, independent and with a sound brain in a sound body.

Useless Book Knowledge.

But cannot the girl with moderate means imitate her in some respects, or rather cannot the parents of the girl upon marriage and who hopes for a little home of her own and a reasonable amount of society, be it exalted or otherwise.

For instance, if you cannot afford both it is better to have a girl taught dancing than Greek. She will forget the Greek after the first year of her married life (if not before), and if she is a bad dancer she will be forever out of things and will miss at least a third of the good times going. A good dancer is always at her ease and is bound to in moderate circumstances follow the same idea, for they have the ordering of that girl's life? If you and I will look upon our girlhood we can count the money which was wasted in teaching us useless things—things that now bring us neither profit nor pleasure. The higher education is all very well for certain girls, but it is a poor education for the average one. The girl I mean who does not look with scorn upon marriage and who hopes for a little home of her own and a reasonable amount of society, be it exalted or otherwise.

For instance, if you cannot afford both it is better to have a girl taught dancing than Greek. She will forget the Greek after the first year of her married life (if not before), and if she is a bad dancer she will be forever out of things and will miss at least a third of the good times going. A good dancer is always at her ease and is bound to be a social success. She is a woman her husband is proud to take around, for although a man may not care for that sort of thing himself he does not particularly like to see his wife a wallflower.

A course of massage treatment of a skinny neck—treatment which will enable its owner to wear a dinner gown and look attractive in in the evening, is far preferable to the ability to converse about social economy or higher mathematics.

She can play golf.

I certainly am not in favor of anything which is useless—education or anything else.

Even the girl who makes her own way in the world, who has to earn her bread and butter—not to speak of jam—may come in on this. (Dear me, how slangy I am getting!)

I know of one girl, a schoolteacher, who has given herself horseback lessons and singing lessons, both great sources of enjoyment to herself and her friends. Another girl has divided her wages in three parts, one for living expenses, one for necessary clothes, the third for self improvement. Most girls spend it all for clothes.

And Why the City?

Then, too, there is this to be considered: Why live in a city cooped up in any sort of a small, dark apartment for the sake of sleeping and eating next to the Greatroxes and the Van Dollars, who never in the world bother their heads about one, when one can live in a pretty little suburb, enjoy real healthy country life, golf, driving, etc., for the same price one pays for the stuffy little apartment in town.

The sentiment in favor of suburbs is rapidly growing. The Saturday half holiday, the better rapid transit accommodations, and, above all, the gay yet wholesome suburban society life are responsible for this. In former times to live in the suburbs meant to be buried alive. Now it is no such thing. People of moderate means can have a better time in a small suburb or town than they can in the city. Golf and country clubs are responsible for this, and it is a fact that in many cases the owners of town sites have actually paid for the erection of a country club in order to attract residents. So, you see, it has become an important and recognized factor.

We are certainly learning to live, to enjoy existence in the English and the French manner, and not to gallop through it eating indigestible food served in any old way, living in overcrowded and badly ventilated houses and going through life ignoring all its finer points, as foreigners have accused us of doing.

The Glorious American Girl.

The anæmic, stoop shouldered, peevish, overdressed American girl has disappeared. In her place stands a splendid athletic, wholesome young creature, and suburban and out of door life is largely responsible for her.

I have a prophetic feeling that the time will come when women will have their own athletic and their own yacht clubs. Why, if you please, cannot two women go off for a summer vacation on a catboat or a small yacht without losing any of their womanliness? Men have such a jolly time that way. Last week I went aboard a little yacht on which two men had cruised around all summer, merely running in for a few days in the harbor of a yacht club, the courtesy of any number of clubs being always extended to a man belonging to one good one. The little boat was fitted with everything one could desire, and there was a delightful afterdeck, where the owner and his chum could sit and enjoy their cigars as their yacht swept along through the blue summer seas. That I do call a vacation—not this stuffy hotel life, with its gossip, its overdressing and its dearth of any real enjoyment.

A splendid, wholesome young creature.

PATENT LEATHER PRECEPTS.

Patent leather shoes and boots need special care to keep them nice. When they are fresh and new they should be wiped after every wearing and put away in some place, secure from dust, where the air is neither too hot nor too cold. Extremes of temperature injure the leather. When the shoes begin to show signs of wear they should be wiped with a sponge and warm water, and, after being carefully dried, should be brushed over lightly with patent leather varnish sold for the purpose. Remember never to put patent leather near the fire, for the heat is very likely to crack it.

BEAUTIFUL CHINA.

One of the most attractive dinner sets seen in the displays of summer china is royal dresden copied from a very old design. The sole decoration is a single rose spray in the middle of each piece. A most realistic rosebud tops the covers of the sugar bowls, tea and coffee pots and the smaller covered dishes.

THE SOCIAL WAR OF A DUCHESS

IT appears that Constance Edwina Cornwallis-West, known as Shelagh Cornwallis-West before her marriage to his grace Hugh Richard Arthur Grosvenor, second duke of Westminster, variously likewise earl and marquis of this, that and the other, has set her little head and her English foot against the further social recognition of American women in British society, has snubbed them even to the point of very un-high bred rudeness.

Shelagh, Shelagh, why did you do it?

You should have no particular grudge against American ladies. You yourself have a good enough position. Your husband has an income of $5 a minute, so 'tis said. While you are not nearly so beautiful or fascinating as many of the American women in London society, it is said that you know how to dress almost as well as they do, which is to your credit. It is true that, just on the eve of your marriage to 'is grace, 'is grace was served with a summons to appear in an unpleasant lawsuit brought by an enraged member of the British military, but then that has dropped out of mind; you got your big blond duke safe enough and should not have become soured against us, particularly as no American woman had anything to do with that unpleasant law case. You got your dukelet. True, it is more than possible that if the dukelet had been very poor instead of very rich he would have chosen for his wife not you, but the daughter of some healthy, hard working American billionaire, a girl who could get him out of bankruptcy, support him handsomely, bruce him up and stand behind him while he took his seat in the house of lords and finally establish, to go along with his strawberry leaf title, a really noble family line. She would have done this all by virtue of her strong, clean, working people's blood.

Duchess of Westminster.

But it did not happen. Your dukelet is rich because his grandfather, the first duke, increased his fortune by methods akin to those in vogue among plebeian American money "magnets," as they are sometimes called. He knew how to juggle his income returns with the best of them, that first duke. I have read a letter of his to a newspaper protesting hotly against the "wild guesses" as to the amount of his income that were published sometimes. He said report made him out more than twice as rich as he was. But the fact remains that he never would tell exactly how rich he was. A recent English writer confesses: "In these days there is always something peculiarly fascinating about the possession of great wealth." Just so.

Was it because she is so radiantly beautiful that you began your assault on American women by cruelly snubbing sweet, innocent Gladys Deacon in your husband's box at the Chester races? You are not nearly so beautiful or so "stylish" as Miss Deacon, not nearly so handsome and fascinating as your own mother was when she belonged to the "Prince of Wales' set," but then you are good looking enough and well dressed enough not to display jealousy toward American ladies. Worst of all, you let your husband display the same rudeness to the sweet American girl when Colonel and Mrs. Cornwallis-West brought Miss Deacon to the Westminster stand at the races even though Cornwallis-West is your own brother and a gallant soldier and a gentleman. You are young, but then you are older than your husband, and you ought to have toned him down by this time to observe at least common courtesy and good manners.

You have much to learn, Shelagh. The sooner you learn it the better for yourself. Know, first of all, you cannot possibly hurt American ladies socially. You are backing against the hard wall on when you attempt it. Already you begin to get your "comeuppance." That ball of yours, which was to be the social event of 1903 and to which you omitted to send invitations to every American woman in London society whom you dared leave out—did you not on that account receive a direct social slap in the face from your king, Albert Edward himself? He declined to attend you ball at all; the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the king's brother and sister-in-law, also refused to attend, and the actual reason was that you had snubbed American ladies who are the friends of royalty.

When he was only Prince of Wales, Albert Edward was noted for his tactfulness and genuine kindness of heart. He was too well bred to manifest toward persons entitled to respect the rudeness you and your husband were guilty of at the Chester races and your ball. How did you feel when, at that ball, your biggest lion was a young lady who had been an actress on the variety stage? It was nothing against the young lady; quite the contrary. But after all it wasn't quite like having the king and the Duke of Connaught among your guests, was it?

The good will Albert Edward showed to Americans socially when he was Prince of Wales he manifests still in the larger national field, and the American people appreciate it. There is a dream among thinkers who dwell in the United Kingdom on your side of the water, those in our great republic this side of the Atlantic, those, too, who inhabit the great continent of far-away southwestern seas among these, I say, there is a dream that English speaking peoples, united in the common ideas of human brotherhood, will be called to hold the vanguard of human civilization itself against the destructive forces even now making inroads on it. The English speaking peoples, Americans, Irish, Scotch, Canadians, English, Australians, all of them form the most powerful, most intelligent, most prosperous brotherhood ever united by common ties of kinship and the love of liberty, law and order. Human destiny itself, upward moving, glorious, demands that they go forward together, upholding one another's hands, brotherly. And you think you'll stop it by administering your infantile snub to a couple of American ladies in London society!

Heaven have mercy on your soul! Heaven broaden you to a comprehension of that larger, kindlier, sweeter wisdom which radiates ever from the soul of true womanhood!

What's the good, Shelagh?

You can't do it. Your own kin and fellow countrymen will rise up against you. If American women have in British society a vogue that you are jealous of, who are to blame for it but Englishmen themselves, sprigs of young nobility who came over here and, with tears in their eyes, as it were, besought rich American girls to marry them and keep them out of the poorhouse, or at least relieve them from the necessity of shipping as table waiters on the transatlantic steamers. There be sons of British lords who are that very thing today, Shelagh.

Whether the millionaire American girls did well to take the noblemen is neither here nor there. Considering how women like you have sometimes treated our American ladies when they have thus rescued your Englishmen from the bankruptcy court, if not worse, it would probably have been just as well if they had stayed on their own side of the water and married just chivalrous, plain American husbands. But something must perhaps be forgiven to the natural jealousy the attractive American girl arouses in the British feminine breast.

Or is it because you don't like your brilliant and bonny American sister-in-law, young Cornwallis-West's wife, that you thus leap into the arena with a war whoop against all American women? Who knows? But, finally, I permit myself to commend to your consideration two general propositions. The first one who attempts to stir up race prejudice is an enemy to civilization. The second—it is the mark of crassest, most ignorant provincialism to hold one's own town superior to other people's towns. See?

PAPER NAPERY AND TABLEWARE.

Everything in the shape of doilies, casserole frills and sherbet cups is now made of paper. They are as dainty as possible and are made to imitate the dainty Tenerife work, Mexican drawn work and all lace patterns in the most wonderful manner. Despite their fragile appearance they are proof against liquids and do not get soggy. Salad and ice cream cases come in a variety of pleasing forms, and it is possible to carry out a color scheme with trifling expense.

For children's parties these paper dishes, supplemented by paper napkins, will relieve the anxious hostess of much apprehension in regard to breakage. For picnics they are invaluable. Not only do they save the bother of packing up and carrying home dishes, but they add materially to the beauty of the occasion.

FOR WOMEN CYCLERS.

Lady Marjorie, in the Cycle, says:

"I should like to ask all my friends to cultivate a pleasant, cheerful expression when cycling. So many girls when learning pucker their brows and look so terribly anxious and uncomfortable that when the ordeal of their initiate is over the strained look upon their faces becomes a habit and is very difficult to overcome. Keeping the eye fixed rigidly upon the front wheel or looking anxiously ahead for troubles in the way of approaching vehicles, hills, etc., engenders this habit.

"Sit up and smile and look happy. You will find how much more you will enjoy your ride and with what a different aspect your friends will look upon cycling as a woman's pastime."

AN ILLITERATE ANTI.

A man opposed to woman suffrage sent to the Woman's Journal a document setting forth his principles in the following remarkable grammar and spelling:

"When arguning the right of Woman's Suffrage you clame that Women ought to have a right to vote because she payes taxes. Allow me to inform you that Women do not pay taxes. A person tax is Poll tax (and this alone men have to pay). Taxes on property, is property tax and the property payes it. If women ar allowed to vote they ought to pay Poll tax, to be equil with men. From one who is in favor of women attending to their buisness which is household duttis, and men attending to theirs."

THE BREATHING FAD

IT is not all a fad, or even half a fad.

Scientists agree that the air contains in itself the elements of human food, if man only knew how to extract them and combine them properly. It is believed, too, that the sun's rays convey to earth the germs of all life—that they are in the atmosphere. The more air we can breathe, therefore, and the purer it is, the more of both life and nourishment we shall draw into us. Hence the meaning is easily comprehended of Eleanor Kirk's famous saying, "Eat some air."

It is not enough to breathe as the quadrupeds do. We who have intelligence can improve on them, can develop and increase the power, health, endurance and beauty of our bodies till they are the fit housing of immortal souls. There is a breathing to be learned that will of itself help lift us to the plane of constant joy and elasticity.

The crown of womanhood is perfect health. To gain this we should use all the means at our command. Fortunately the essential materials to this end were also wisely ordained to be the cheapest, and they are air and water. The frequent bathing of the body and the habit of drinking plenty of water form an important part of the beginning of wisdom toward getting perfect health. Next undoubtedly comes habitual deep breathing, thorough aeration of the blood. You cannot have this and wear tight corsets or any confining bands about the waist. It is impossible. Let me give you the process of breathing for health, not merely for animal existence.

Have all your clothing entirely loose. Then begin and fill yourself with air, slowly, slowly. Make no effort to swell your body. It will swell itself if you just let it. Do not make any effort to breathe with your nostrils. The nostrils are merely passages to let the pure air in and the exhausted air out. The breathing effort itself should be made from the very center of your body.

Note how the great, splendid bulk of air you take in raises your chest and enlarges it. This is the true lifting of the chest you read so much about. After you have noted how the long, deep breath lifts your chest to a beautiful fullness, resolve to yourself that henceforth you will make yourself habitually carry your chest in that noble, elevated manner and then do it. The lifted chest must be kept so by the muscles about the waist, which some women allow to sag and weaken in so disgraceful a manner.

After you have slowly drawn in all the air you can hold—and you must feel as though your whole body is full of air from your toes up—then proceed to exhale. Do this slowly, taking fully as much time to exhale as you did to inhale. This is an important point in breathing instructions, that we shall exhale a breath as slowly as we inhale it. Oriental teachers enjoin this specially on their disciples.

Acquire the habit of breathing as above and you will wonder at the excellent results that follow. Have the air always the purest you can get. Half of the colds, grips and pneumonia attacks would be avoided if people ventilated their sleeping rooms properly. Immortal human beings ought at least to provide for themselves as good ventilation as turfmen provide for a race horse. It will help you much to think always that when you breathe deeply and fully you are taking in food in its purest form, which is the actual fact. Remember this and nourish yourself duly.

When you are very weary and nerveless, try the effect of the following breathing process: Have your clothing entirely free. Lie flat upon your back, out straight, every muscle in your body relaxed. Especially let the muscles around your forehead, eyes, mouth and the base of the brain lie so loose that you are not conscious of them. After having thus relaxed, begin and breathe slowly and fully from the lowest point of your body, at the very tip of the spine. Think of the breath as being drawn to this point while you inhale. Then exhale slowly and think of a nerve current as passing from the tip of your spine up the spinal cord into your brain. If you do this and note carefully you will feel an actual vibratory sensation quivering at the base of your brain and up into your head and eyes. Practice this breathing five to ten minutes at a time, especially after you are done work in the evening, and you will find it exceedingly restful and life giving. MARY GOULD LYTLE.

THE DUCHESS OF SUTHERLAND AS A COMMERCIAL TRAVELER.

The Duchess of Sutherland, who is gifted with a spirit which never wearies of doing good, showed her enthusiasm for improving the condition of the highland crofters in a characteristic fashion during a recent visit to Russia. She took with her several trunks filled with samples of the tweeds made by the Scottish peasantry, whom she and other ladies are so anxious to serve. Then she sent round to the tailors and invited them to inspect the goods and give orders for them. In this way she expects to open up a new market and thus benefit those whom she is desirous of helping in the best possible way—by enabling them to help themselves.

WHAT PRICE WEDDING?

We have grown up with the idea of different classes of funerals. In Paris the same sort of thing is done with regard to weddings, and the result strikes one as decidedly peculiar. People who wish to take one another "for better, for worse" can do so in one of ten different classes. A first class wedding costs $115, the second class runs into $95, while the nuptial knot may be tied in the tenth class for $1.20. "Why should two people spend even a dollar to be made thoroughly miserable for life?" is what a cynic said. Happily the world is not made up of cynics.

FALCONRY.

One of the fads of the fashionable society woman in England is falconry, and this old fashioned sport has quite superseded the joys of hunting, shooting and fishing. It is a very expensive amusement. A perfectly trained hawk costs about $600. The Duchess of Marlborough is particularly interested in this picturesque sport, one of its great advantages being that it can be followed all the year round.

NEW CAR LINE

Will Connect Lowell With Manchester

AND MANCHESTER WITH THE SEA

Connects With Pelham Line at Hudson

A new electric car line is in process of construction which will connect with the Pelham-Hudson line near Hudson and make direct connection with Manchester and the other cities and towns in the contemplated route.

The new route will thus give Manchester people a direct trip by trolley to the sea.

It is understood that another road connecting Manchester with the Hudson & Pelham line, by a more direct route, is under contemplation but the road now in process of construction appears to have met with the favor of the railway people, probably because it goes through a more thickly populated country. The road-bed of this new line has been built mostly through private land, thus insuring speed and comfort.

With the increased traffic that will follow the new road, it is thought that a double track will be built between Pelham and Nashua.

The Electric Railway Employes' Mutual Relief association is planning a lively winter season.

A new entertainment committee has been appointed as follows: E. E. Blaisdell, C. P. Gabrielle, Mose Sweeney, Otis Giles and Pearl Atwood. Mr. Atwood was also appointed to the investigating committee in place of E. Webber, who has left town.

MILLIONAIRE'S SON

SAYS PAWN TICKET IS HIS ONLY ASSET.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Charles Emil Rubsamen of Passaic, N. J., a son of the late Charles L. Rubsamen, who amassed a fortune of several millions in the silk business, owes Mrs. Grace M. Fredericks of 107 West 103d street, this city, $659.47 for board and lodging for himself and a woman and for borrowed money. The young man pleads his inability to settle the bill.

Mr. Rubsamen was examined in supplementary proceedings by Mrs. Fredericks' lawyer, William P. Burr of 35 Nassau street. He said his total assets were one pawn ticket, representing a watch and chain given to him last Christmas by his mother and pawned next day. The ticket he had turned over to his brother Ernest.

Rubsamen has a wife and four children in Passaic, but contributes nothing to their support. The brother, who holds the pawn ticket, says Charles owes him at least $2,000.

DOG SUFFOCATED

THIEVES KILL ANIMAL AT BRIDGEWATER AND RIFLE HOUSE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BRIDGEWATER, Sept. 3—The house on South street, occupied by Justin Hill, was entered by burglars yesterday during the absence of the family, and a sum of money secured.

The thieves found a hound that the family had left at home. The dog was hitched to a hogshead which was used as a kennel, and this the thieves turned over on the animal and suffocated him.

STAY OF LIFE

AGED DOG HAS MADE A GREAT FIGHT.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WINSTED, Conn., Sept. 3.—After persistent but unsuccessful efforts to kill him, a bulldog belonging to Jeremiah Falvey of the Cyclone Hill district, has been granted another stay of life.

Because of its advanced age the dog became a nuisance to Mr. Falvey's mother, and a few weeks ago she engaged Benjamin Morgan to kill it. Morgan fired a dozen shots at the dog, but only one took effect, that passing through the ear. The dog was then given some poisoned meat and buried in a lot some distance in the rear of the Falvey house.

To the surprise of Mrs. Falvey, the dog reappeared the following day.

Yesterday Falvey took the dog out in a boat in the lake, tied a rope around its neck, and after fastening a large stone to the other end of the rope, threw the dog, rope and stone into the water.

Falvey had arrived home and was telling his mother that he bet the bulldog would return again when sure enough the dog came walking into the dooryard with the cord still around its neck.

Mrs. Falvey has now decided to keep the dog till it dies a natural death.

LABOR DAY NEWS

How the Parade Will Form

The different divisions of the Labor Day parade will form as follows: 1st division, South street 2nd, Highland street; 3rd and 4th, Thorndike street. Bands will be assigned to the different halls to escort the different unions to the common. The chief marshal, division marshals and aids will meet at 22 Middle street, this evening, to complete arrangements.

BRICKLAYERS' UNION.

The bricklayers' union met last night and decided not to parade on Labor Day because so few of their members are working in town at the present time.

An invitation from the brethren of Haverhill to participate in the labor demonstration at Canobie lake on Labor day, as the guests was read, and it was voted that the invitation be accepted.

POLO NOTES.

Walter E. Petty, manager of the Muncie polo team, has his team made up for the season of 1903-04, and as it is made up mostly from the members of the champion Lowell team for two years, there is little doubt but that Muncie will land the pennant.

Eddie Higgins, of Providence, will play first rush, while his partner will be "Bob" Hart. Fred Jean will captain the team and play at centre, while little Tommy Holderness will be at his old position at half back. Davy Cusick, the champion club swinger, will occupy a position in front of the cage.

In regard to the make-up of the team, the Muncie Star has the following:

Polo fans of Muncie could have asked Manager Petty to do but little better. Each of the five men signed has played in this city and have a host of admirers and friends here. Their ability to play polo and play it in championship form is unquestioned. With five such men Muncie ought to head the cakewalk next season. All that is necessary is the development of team work. With Fred Jean, the famous center who led the champion Lowell team to victory for two seasons, to captain this team, it will soon be working like a clock.

It is hardly necessary to mention the players individually. Eddie Higgins won a home in Muncie two years ago when his brilliant work brought the fans to their feet in every game. There is hardly a faster man in the game. "Bubby" Hart will make a good mate. He is fast, has the weight and can drive at the nets from any direction.

Fred Jean is in a class by himself as a middleman. Wherever he has played the followers of the game have accorded him the honor of being the peerless player of all players. As a half-back Tommy Holderness is little but he is mighty. For two years he played half-back on the champion Lowell team. Dave Cusick will receive a royal welcome back to Muncie. The flaxen-haired boy played a brilliant game before the basket last year under adverse circumstances. The defense of the team before him was not as strong as it should have been. Cusick worked like a Trojan in every game and kept at the head of the goal tenders with ease.

The announcement of the line-up will make the fans doubly anxious to see the season reopen. Manager Petty will be congratulated in getting the team that he has signed for next year, according to his telegram.

CYCLE NEWS

It remained for the giant from the hills of Old New Hampshire to smash the hour record, completing over fifty miles in the sixty minutes, and but for the fact that his pacing machine went to the bad during the latter part of the race he would have ground out over 51 miles during the hour. He rode on an average of a 1.12 clip for every mile, but prior to the 46th mile he was going at the rate of 1.10. His fastest mile was the 45th which he covered in 1.09 3-5, but the 46th was the fatal mile, his time for that one being 1.33. This was due to the fact that his machine got out of order and he went several laps unpaced. It was hard luck for Harry after working so hard, but there is little doubt but that he will cover the 51 miles or possibly 52 before the end of the season.

The same Harry Caldwell who was scheduled to appear at the local coliseum to meet Walthour, but who had to cancel his engagement after two postponements, will meet George Leander, the six-day champion, at the coliseum track tomorrow. Leander is going good, having defeated Lawson and Stinson at Providence on Monday night.

Tonight Bobby Walthour, who rode circles around Stinson, will meet Gussie Lawson, the terrible Swede, in a fifteen-mile motor paced race at the coliseum in Lakeview avenue. Nelson was supposed to meet Lawson, but owing to the former's illness Walthour was substituted.

On Saturday night the winners of the two previous nights will meet and the wise ones have picked Walthour and Caldwell as the winners. If the above named riders win their races the race on Saturday night will be one of the best that can be billed.

LAWRENCE, Sept. 3.—Lawrence and New Bedford split even in yesterday's double-header, New Bedford winning the second game in ten innings. In the second game New Bedford had all the better of it as regards hitting, but Harrison kept them scattered and at the end of the ninth inning the score was tied 2 to 2. New Bedford scored two more in the tenth on Valdois' error and hits by Gutheen and McCarthy.

NO ERRORS FOR FALL RIVER.

By Associated Press to The Sun

HAVERHILL, Sept. 3.—Fall River defeated the home team in an errorless game today by superior batting. The visitors started out strongly on Dupee but after the fifth inning could do nothing against him until the ninth. The locals scored entirely on home runs by Kelley, Calhoun and O'Brien. DIAMOND NOTES.

It kind of looks as if the pennant would float o'er the Lake.

Manager Patsey Donovan of the St. Louis National League club was a spectator at yesterday's game. Manager Donavon was favorably impressed with the work of the Lawrence team and said that the New England league patrons were seeing as good baseball as any minor league in the country furnished.—Lawrence Sun.

Tom McCarthy made a great stunt with New Bedford Tuesday. In the first game he got one hit and in the second, three hits. He accepted five chances without an error and made three runs.

Nashua has the series with Manchester, having won nine out of the fifteen games. Labelle won three and lost one game to Manchester, while Colony won four and lost one. Morrissey pitched five games against Nashua, winning two and losing three. The last four games played have been victories for Nashua.

The Manchester Union gives this account of the trouble:

In addition to the wretched exhibition given by the local players, Mr. Kerins, umpire, rendered a few decisions that were poor, but which were of the same calibre that he has been handing out since his appearance in this city. The appearance of such a man as Kerins on a ball field is enough to take the gimp out of any ball team. On two or three occasions yesterday Kerins allowed the visitors to kill time by throwing the ball about the diamond.

Again in the second inning, when Whiting jostled him about the diamond, and poked him in the ribs, he wanted to fight, and had it not been for the interference of the players there would have been a slugging match instead of a ball game.

The row started as the result of Kerins calling a ball on Hafford, which it was plain to see struck him on the elbow. The ball bounded back to the stand. Hooker was on first base, and he went to second and continued to third. Whiting and the umpire had engaged in conversation and the other players were also taking a hand. Cote threw the ball to Rapp, who did not see it, and Hooker came in. In the meantime Whiting rushed at Kerins and poked him in the ribs. Kerins ordered him off the grounds, and Whiting threw his glove at him, hitting him in the head. Kerins then rushed at Whiting, when the police came into evidence and put a stop to the proceedings. Whiting was benched, and Leith took his place. Whiting's conduct was uncalled for, but Kerins should have shown that he was running the game, and not attempt to give an exhibition of a fight.

In the second inning Kane had his finger hurt, and he retired in favor of Murray, who came in from center field. Graham went to center and Morrissey to right, and in this way the Manchesters finished out the game.

After the game Kerins made a monkey out of Whiting before many spectators. He went into the hotel where both teams were and told Whiting that if the latter was desirous of showing his ability as a scrapper, he would accommodate him forthwith, and would go any place with him that he might designate. Whiting promptly quit.

FALL RIVER, Sept 3—The announcement was made yesterday that William Lindsay of London, Eng., would present the city of Fall River with a building to cost, with equipment, $100,000, to be used as a school of draughting and designing in connection with the Bradford Durfee Textile school, now practically ready for dedication and occupancy.

The donor was born, raised and educated in this city. In recent years he has made a large fortune in London. The building will adjoin the textile school on Elm street, and will be known as the William Lindsay school in honor of the donor's father, who was for many years a leading manufacturer and treasurer of the Weetamoe mills.

WILL GO TO JURY

Supreme Court Decides on McDermott Case

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—The suit for $10,000 damages for personal injuries brought by Margaret Irene McDermott against the Boston Elevated company will be submitted to a jury. The supreme court yesterday sustained exceptions taken by the plaintiff to the ruling of the superior court on motion of the defendant that for want of due care the plaintiff could not recover. The ruling was made at the close of the evidence for the plaintiff at the trial sometime ago.

The plaintiff, aged six years, was on her way to school at the time of the accident at the intersection of Highland avenue with Cherry street, Somerville. Several of her playmates had crossed the street and she followed but as she reached the track the car came along, knocking her down.

The court says: "The plaintiff was properly on the crosswalk where foot travelers crossing Highland avenue at that point would be and had a right to rely on the presumption that the servants of the defendant, knowing the use of the walk by children going to the Burns school, would pay that regard to those lawfully in the street at that place which reasonable care and diligence required. It might be found that it would be childlike and natural for her to follow her companions and to pay no close attention to surrounding conditions. For these reasons it can not be said as matter of law that the plaintiff's failure either to look and ascertain if a car was coming, or to listen for the ringing of the gong, or to fully appreciate the possibility that cars passing the crossing would run at such speed that she might be struck before she passed over the track, was contributary negligence. Upon the evidence a jury could find that the plaintiff was in the exercise of such care as might be expected of the ordinary prudent child of her age, and there must be a new trial."

AS A REWARD

JOHN D. DICKIE MADE JANITOR OF NEW COURT HOUSE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

LAWRENCE, Sept. 3.—The statement that John D. Dickie had been appointed by the county commissioners to the position of janitor of the new court house here occasioned much comment here yesterday. The question is asked if this is not a reward for Dickie's work in the last contest for the republican nomination between Commissioner Sawyer and Joseph E. Buswell of Methuen.

Dickie was a zealous worker for the former, and it is said took a prominent part in securing a portion of the delegates here for the candidate from the lower end of the county. The salary will be $1000, acording to the report.

PARTNER ARRESTED

SAMUEL BEEGEL HAS RETURNED TO HIS WIFE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Samuel Beegel, until recently a manufacturer of trunks, was sued some time ago by his wife for a separation and left town, as he sets forth in law papers filed in the supreme court yesterday, on the advice of his partner, Abraham Goldenblum, so as to escape paying allmony to his wife. Beegel returned to town a few weeks ago and affected a reconciliation with his wife. He asserts that he then discovered that his partner had, during his absence, sold out their business—the Eagle Trunk & Bag company.

Yesterday Steur & Hoffman, in behalf of Beegel, made an application to Justice Blanchard, in special term, part 1., of the supreme court, to have a receiver appointed for the assets, outstanding accounts and effects of the copartnership conducted by Beegel & Goldenblum, pending the determination of a suit which Beegel has begun to compel Goldenblum to account to him for his share of the proceeds of the sale of the business.

Beegel sets forth in his complaint that his partner, in violation of their copartnership agreement and without his consent and against his wishes, sold and disposed of the entire stock and business of the copartnership and has since reepatedly refused to account to him—the plaintiff—for his share of the profits.

SECURITIES GONE

Well Known Clubman and $560,000 are Missing

By Associated Press to The Sun

BALTIMORE, Sept. 3.—Society and club circles were greatly exercised yesterday by the announcement that William T. Tucker, connected with the firm of Tucker, Smith & Co., and a member of the Maryland, Baltimore and Elkridge clubs, had disappeared, and that $560,000 in securities of the estate of his father, the late Wesley A. Tucker ,is missing.

The securities had been deposited by his mother in a box in the vaults of the Mercantile trust and deposit company.

Tucker left Baltimore six weeks ago. Recently his mother was summoned from Europe by cable. She returned by the next steamer and, accompanied by one of her daughters, Mrs. George H. Glover of New York, and an officer of court having jurisdiction over the estate, went to the deposit company. It was necessary to break open the strong box as the mother did not have the key.

Then the startling revelation came that there was a defalcation amounting to $560,000, and that of all the property existing when given over to the care of William T. Tucker there was only $93,000 left.

It appears that Mrs. Tucker had absolute faith in her son and refused to credit stories of his dissipation, and was deaf as well to suggestions that the estate be taken out of his hands.

The implicit confidence placed in him is demonstrated by the fact that he was authorized to open the safe deposit box alone, an exceptional privilege.

Tucker, who is 35 years old, had been plunging in stocks. Two women figure in his escapades. One went to Central America with him, but returned later.

Recently he was defendant in a suit brought by Miss Sarah G. Morris of Baltimore, who demanded $41,000 damages. Of this amount she declared that $2400 had been loaned by her to Tucker. She asked $25,000 for breach of promise and $10,000 for alleged assault.

To recover the $2400 suit was brought for $6000.

The woman who is said to have accompanied Tucker to Central America is said to have lived in South Baltimore. Acquaintances of Tucker do not even know her name and had never heard of her until recently.

The trust company was not in any way identified with the estate. Tucker was co-trustee with his mother.

It was a rule of the company to advise against co-trustees granting authority to each other to open safe deposit boxes which they jointly held unless both were present. When Mrs. Tucker and her son gave notice of their arrangement, the management of the trust company advised against it, and has since adopted a rule by which no boxes can be rented to co-trustees under such terms.

Tucker was under no bonds, and there is no evident chance of recovering any of the losses to the estate. There is possibility of suit against a brokerage house which represented him in the sale of securities belonging to the estate, but no decision has been reached on this point.

The young man is understood to have left a written confession. It is also stated that he told the woman who went with him to Central America when they arrived there, that he was short in his accounts with the estate, and this caused her to return to Baltimore.

Information of Tucker's whereabouts was received by the family through this source.

In connection with the discovery of the shortage and disappearance of Tucker it is recalled that he was for a short time trustee of the estate of the late H. C. Smith. He held this place about a year, but heirs of the estate objected to him, and insisted that a corporate trusteeship be substituted. It was then arranged to place the Smith estate in the hands of the Safe Deposit and Trust company.

Mr. Smith was a partner of the late Wesley A. Tucker in the firm of Tucker, Smith & Co. William T. Tucker is the only surviving son of Wesley A. Tucker. The estates of Wesley A. Tucker and H. C. Smith were worth about $650,000 each.

RECEIVER NAMED

Misapplication of Funds is Claimed

STREET RAILWAYS ASKED FOR SETTLEMENT

Creditors for $300,000 Assented to

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—Rufus B. Dodge of Worcester was yesterday appointed receiver of the Pinehurst park and the Overlook hotel properties, which have been run in connection with the Worcester & Southbridge street railway company.

The railway company went into the hands of receivers Saturday. The appointment of Mr. Dodge was made by Chief Justice Mason in the equity session of the superior court on application of the two railway receivers, Charles M. Thayer of Worcester and John A. Hall of Southbridge, who, by order of the court, are not only receivers for the Worcester company, but also for the Worcester, Rochdale & Charlton Depot street railway company.

The park and hotel properties were pleasure resorts to which the cars of the company were run. They were purchased and improved, it is claimed, with the money of the company by Wilford A. Bailey, while he served as treasurer of the corporation.

The court gave a brief hearing on the motion of receivers Hall and Thayer for the appointment of a receiver for the park and hotel. Mr. Hall said he and Mr. Thayer had concluded after an investigation of the affairs of the company that part of the money used for building and improving Overlook and Pinehurst had been raised on notes of the Worcester & Southbridge street railway company. They supposed it was the purpose of Treas. Bailey to take in and manage the properties in connection with management of the company. But before the step could be taken the collapse came, preventing Mr. Bailey from carrying out his intention. The receivers claim an equitable interest in the properties.

The hotel is in Charlton and the park is a picnic ground a short distance outside of Worcester. There is a hotel in the park, which is well furnished.

The court was informed that attachments were threatened and unless the properties were placed in the hands of a receiver they would be greatly injured.

Creditors representing claims for more than $300,000 assented to the appointment of Mr. Dodge as receiver. His bond was fixed at $50,000.

CAUSE OF THE MOVE

CLAIMED FUNDS OF STREET RAILWAY WERE MISAPPLIED.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WORCESTER, Sept. 3—The rumors regarding the misapplication of the funds of the Worcester & Southbridge and the Worcester, Rochdale & Charlton Depot street railway companies by ex-Treasurer Wilford A. Bailey, which have been in circulation for the past few days, were borne out last night by a statement by Charles M. Thayer, one of the receivers of the companies, after the appointment of Rufus B. Dodge as receiver for the Pinehurst park and Overlook hotel properties had been announced.

While these two ventures have been run in connection with the street railway companies they have been developed by Mr. Bailey and stand in the name of Charles A. Hamilton, a young lawyer in the office of Charles M. Thayer, who used to be Mr. Bailey's counsel before the trouble developed. Mr. Bailey has claimed that the big properties were being managed by the Worcester & Southbridge development company, which was made up of 15 wealthy men, but the identity of these men remains a mystery, he having refused repeatedly, it is said, to tell who they were.

The investigation of the affairs of the street railway companies, it is stated, shows there is something wrong with the funds, and Mr. Thayer told the court, according to his statement to a correspondent, that the receivers think that money raised for the street railway has been put into Overlook and Pinehurst properties.

The receivers of the street railway companies believe the companies are equitably entitled to this money, but just how much is not known, and they asked for the receiver to guard their interests as well as the interests of the other creditors. They do not know what their rights are in opposition to Mr. Bailey's creditors, and they want the matter straightened out.

Mr. Dodge filed his bond for $50,000 last night and took possession of the park and hotel today. When asked what he intended to do with them he said he might run them until the end of the present summer season, because he understands they are being well patronized.

By Associated Press to The Sun

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 3—Mrs. Elizabeth J. Foye, who died at her home here several weeks ago, was known to be well off financially, but no trace of her money was found until this week. Her relatives made a thorough search and succeeded in unearthing more than $6000.

Under a carpet they found a large amount and an old stovepipe yielded considerable more silver and bills. The relatives think there is still much more money left, and are making a systematic search of the old house. Mrs. Foye was considered very peculiar, and resided alone for years.

5000 PEOPLE GATHERED TO SEE THE RACE

The Finish Was a Close One

By Associated Press to The Sun

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 3—A record-breaking crowd of 15,000 people, attracted by the supreme contest of the grand circuit meeting here—the $10,000 stake for 2.11 class pacers—gathered yesterday at Narragansett park and saw Star Hal, a brown horse owned by W. L. Snow of Hornellsville, N. Y., capture the race and the purse in three straight heats. Seven horses faced the starter, King Direct being favorite, with Blasde Pointer second choice. Before the horses had reached the first quarter Star Hal took the pole and led a procession to the head of the stretch, where he was overhauled by Miss Williams and King Direct, the latter driven by Geers. The finish saw the three horses so nearly abreast that the judges' decision was necessary to convince the crowd that Star Hal was the winner. King Direct fought for supremacy through the entire second heat, but he was obliged to take second place to Star Hal, who won by a narrow margin in 2.06¾, the fastest time made during the day.

The card of the day consisted of four races and the unfinished 2.19 trot of Tuesday in which Navlind and Polo Direct each had two heats to their credit. Navlind took the deciding heat and the race in masterly fashion.

Captain, the favorite in the 2.25 trot, captured the first two heats without difficulty and the third after a struggle with Texas, who forced him to cover the mile in 2.10¾. The 2.10 trot with 10 starters and the 2.13 pace with 12 furnished the sport of the day, outsiders winning both. In the latter race Frank Wilson, the favorite, was drawn after he had gone two miles, because of illness. Johnny Wiseman, a Wilkes horse owned in Concord, N. H., after coming sixth in the first heat, got the next two and the race in driving finishes with Rockport and Knox's Gelatine Lad.

His praise of Mayor Johnson of Cleveland as the democratic standard bearer in Ohio was received with marked demonstration. Immediately after the meeting, Mr. Bryan left for New York and announced that he would be in Ohio again next month to make a number of speeches in support of the democratic ticket.

29 LIVES LOST

Explosion on Board an Austrian Steamer

BULGARIANS ARE BLAMED FOR THE AFFAIR

Boat Was Sailing Towards Constantinople

By Associated Press to The Sun

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3.—Three explosions occurred yesterday on the Austrian steamer Vaskapu soon after leaving the Bulgarian port of Burgas en route for Constantinople, by which 29 persons perished. The vessel caught fire and had to be beached.

A telegram conveying this news was received by the agent here of the Hungarian Levant line, to which the Vaskapu belongs. The telegram said the Vaskapu has been destroyed in the Black Sea.

The captain and officers of the steamer and six of her crew were killed, a total of 29 lives being lost.

The Vaskapu sailed from Varna, Bulgaria, and after calling at Burgas was steaming through the Black sea to Constantinople, when three explosions took place on board.

The deck of the vessel took fire and she had to be run ashore at Misivria bay, 18 miles north of Burgas, where she is still burning.

The Vaskapu belonged to the Hungarian Levant steamship company of Fiume, Austria, and has been engaged in the Black Sea service. She was built in Newcastle in 1891 and was a steamer of 1076 tons. She was 260 feet long and 36 feet beam and a depth of 16.9 feet.

REPORT DENIED

That There Was Uprising in Macedonia

THOUSANDS OF BULGARIANS CONFRONTED WITH FAMINE

An Eight Hour Fight at Smilovo

By Associated Press to The Sun

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 3—The report published here of the outbreak of a general rising in Northern Macedonia is denied in official and revolutionary circles. Well informed persons, however, assert that the report was correct, but that its premature publication disarranged the plans of the revolutionists and, therefore, it is denied.

According to rebel reports from Monastir thousands of Bulgarians in that village are confronted with famine in addition to Turkish persecution. Peasants who are continuously arriving from Monastir complain of the attitude of Hilmi Pasha and the Turkish atrocities.

The news is published here of an eight hour fight which occurred at the village of Smilovo Aug. 28, between 500 insurgents and eight battalions of Turkish troops supported by artillery. Thirty-five insurgents are reported to have been killed, while 80 Turks were killed or wounded. On the following day the Turks returned and burned the village. Seven other villages in the neighborhood are said to have also been burned by the Turks.

According to a Macedonian dispatch Aug. 30, the Bulgarian insurgents sustained a serious reverse at Smilovo Aug. 28, when 1000 of them were said to have been killed, while the Turkish losses were insignificant.

CONANT'S SALE

OF THE J. H. BURKE & CO., ESTATE YESTERDAY.

Conant & Co., had a very successful auction sale of eighteen parcels of real estate, the property of J. H. Burke & Co., yesterday. The sale was conducted under an agreement for the dissolution of partnership and was in every way successful, the attendance being large and the prices obtained higher than were anticipated.

The bidding was fast and sharp enough, upon everything but the vacant land. The six parcels of renting property brought $24,555, or $2727 more than their assessed value. The vacant lands did not bring their assessed values. We append herewith the full list of the properties, the purchasers of the same, and the prices that were realized. The Critchett land in Dracut brought $155, and its purchaser was C. E. Guthrie. The large block at the corner of Coburn and West Third streets, in which are the stores which have been occupied by the owners, was bought by Thomas F. Morris for $10,000. The store house and stable property on West Third street was bought by Thomas F. Morris for $1800. The thirteen tenement block numbered 76 to 82 West Third street was bought by Thomas F. Morris for $5600. The four family house numbered 72 and 74 West Third street went to M. F. McCafferty for $2900. The two family house and cottage at the corner of West Third and Albion streets was purchased by Mrs. E. W. Willett for $3055. A vacant lot of 4600 square feet on West Third street went to Bernard J. Callahan for 8 1-2 cents a square foot, an adjoining lot went to O. F. French estate went to Mrs. Henry Emond for 8 1-2 cents a square foot. A lot of land on Humphrey street, containing 5582 square feet was bought by James Burns for 1-2 cents a square foot, and five lots of land on the same street, with a total area of 27,915 square feet, bought by John Flynn for 1-4 cent a square foot.

Druggists say they have never handled a medicine that gave such universal satisfaction.

Paw Paw gives new life and strength to the stomach so that it digests everything that goes into it; its effect upon the nerves is marvellous, it seems to relieve them of all strain and irritation. For insomnia it is proving a great blessing, as scores of people declare that Paw Paw soothes and quiets the nerves so that one can enjoy a good night's rest and get up in the morning feeling strong and refreshed.

Professor Munyon especially asks every weak and debilitated person to try his Paw Paw remedy. He says it makes old folks feel young and weak folks feel strong. That it will take away all need and desire for alcoholic stimulants. Alcoholic drink lifts but lets you fall. Paw Paw lifts and holds you, it gives exhilaration without intoxication.

On sale at all druggists. Price $1.00 (pint bottle). Paw Paw Pills 25c a bottle.

OFFICERS CHOSEN

By the Army of the Philippines

By Associated Press to The Sun

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 3.—The National Society of the Army of the Philippines yesterday elected the following officers:

President, Gen. Charles King, Wis.; first vice president, Col. J. W. Pope, Colo.; Secretary, E. A. Fowle, Missouri; treasurer, J. E. White, Illinois; chaplain, Captain James M. Malley, Nebraska.

Aside from the election of officers, the feature of the day was the parade which was participated in, not only by the Philippine veterans, but by the local G. A. R. posts. The reunion came to a close yesterday with a camp fire at the People's church. Gov. Van Zant made an address on behalf of the state, and Gen. Irving Hale, retiring president of the Army of the Philippines, responded. Gen. Hale said:

"The society is founded on a just war, humanely waged, with honest administration and a glorious result to all concerned, in the most unique experience in the history of the nation.

"A year ago we were smarting from mosquito-like attacks on the army of the Philippines by fellow-patriots and statesmen in this country—some from sincere but mistaken motives of humanity and others from political demagogery, using the army as a club to assassinate the administration in facing its duty and the responsibility in the Philippines. But the army found valiant defenders in its commander-in-chief, the president, the secretary of war and the great majority of the people. Today the mosquitoes are practically exterminated, as the American people have always eradicated unjust traducers of the American soldiers in the performance of his duty.

"Investigation has proved that the improprieties committed in the Philippines were remarkably few under the provocation and that the army, in the face of maddening hardships and difficulties and exasperating treachery and savagery, has conducted a war so humane in general that it has astonished the observers of foreign nations and even the Filipinos themselves. Whether or not the constitution technically follows the flag, that flag wherever it floats has brought and always will bring humanity, justice, civilization and good government.

THE CANDIDATES

Ticket Named by Pennsylvania Democrats

By Associated Press to The Sun

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 3.—The democratic state convention yesterday nominated the following ticket by acclamation:

Auditor General: Senator Arthur G. Dewalt, of Lehigh county.

State treasurer, Senator Joel H. Hill of Wayne county.

Judges of the superior court, Ex-Judge Calvin Reyburn, of Armstrong county and John A. Ward of Philadelphia.

The platform adopted is briefer than the usual democratic declaration of principles and is devoted entirely to state issues. The greater part of it deals with the last legislature and its work and the conduct of the state government.

The convention was well attended for an "off-year" in state politics.

SEEN AND HEARD

Four wagons loaded with stoves passed through Market and Prescott streets yesterday and one man exclaimed: "There goes a few gentle reminders of the coal famine."

The spacious and well appointed residence now being constructed at the corner of Gates and Westford streets will be occupied by the owner, Mr. Breen, the Chelmsford street furniture dealer.

A dog with a wild eye and a tail that he liked to chase caused somewhat of a panic at the corner of Market and Central streets yesterday afternoon. The majority of those who watched him chase his tail thought the dog was mad. A newsboy was the first to holler "mad dog," and in less time than it takes to tell it the dog had the street to himself. Men, women and children vacated the place in a hurry. When the dog tired of chasing his tail he lay down on the sidewalk and slept as sweetly innocent as though nothing had happened. It evidently didn't occur to him that he had been causing heart failure.

The sidewalks in different parts of the city are being repaired. This would hardly fit in as a news item but I want to say that piles of sand here and rocks there when you're in a hurry to get somewhere is a darn nuisance. The repairs, however, are needed and the inconvenience that the good citizen suffers while the work is going on is soon forgotten and the smoothness of the new sidewalk is much appreciated.

Some of the most prominent business men in the city were witnesses in a larceny case in police court Wednesday. They were men that had been caught by two young fellows who represented themselves as collecting agents for Freight Handlers' union of the Boston & Maine railroad. In summing up Judge Hadley told the prominent business men that they ought to be more cautious about paying out money. "Inquire into the situation before you pay the money," said his honor, and the prominent business men looked just a little bit sheepish.

Letter to J. J. KERWIN, Lowell, Mass.:

Dear Sir:—As your business is to get people into and out of trouble, suppose you consider their paint; it makes 'em almost as much trouble as money, except of course matrimony.

They buy poor paint a good deal; they don't mean to; they don't know any better; they buy without thinking. Bad paint isn't good. It looks good enough for a year; then begins to get rusty; but changes so slowly, one don't notice it.

Looking isn't all. The business of paint is to keep a house dry inside, the wood and iron of it; keep it from rotting and rusting. Takes good paint to do it.

Good and bad paint are sold at one price or about that. One can't go by the price at all; as with lawyers, the price has nothing to do with goodness or badness; and costs are worse yet; the painter and sheriff come in for their share.

But the probability is that a man, who paints Devoe, will come out on top.

Yours truly,
F. W. DEVOE & CO.

P. S.—The Adams Hardware and Paint Co. sell our paint.

ON WINDOW LEDGE

PORTER OF A HOTEL WENT TO SLEEP.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Hermann Schwartz, a porter on the 19th floor of the American tract society building, went to sleep on a narrow ledge, less than three feet across, and 260 feet above the street, yesterday.

A crowd gathered on the street below to watch him as he lay snoring 19 floors above the sidewalk.

Finally someone notified Supt. Roberts of the tract building, and he sent his head porter up there. The window was raised and the porter and Roberts seized Hermann by the collar and dragged him inside the window.

"What's the matter?" gasped Herman, as he landed inside the office with a thump. "So long's my work is done, can't I take a nap?"

Now Hermann is looking for another job.

GAS EXPLOSION

MADE EVERY BANANA JUMP OUT OF ITS SKIN.

By Associate I Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3—John Marchi and F. M. Stancio occupy the basement at 161 Commercial street as a banana ripening conservatory. The cellar is heated by a gas stove, and last night at 6 Marchi lighted the gas in the stove, twirled the plump, green bunches about a bit, and went home.

There was a little, imperceptible leak in the gas pipe. The stove worked steadily, the bananas stretched their skins in the tropical heat, and the tiny little leak spurted out the thinnest hair streak of combustible gas.

The gas stuck to the top of the cellar as long as there was room, then it was forced lower and lower until it met the stove.

That was at 9.40 and the explosion came at exactly the same second.

It was loud enough to scare the dwellers in Fleet street, two blocks below. It blew out the cellar door and hoisted it up the steps on to the sidewalk. It set the Marchi-Stancio partition in the cellar afire, but two boys put that out with a cupful of water.

A passing citizen pulled in an alarm from box 15, but the fire was out when the department arrived.

The force of the explosion was sufficient to blow out the window of the Park sausage and provision company on the ground floor, and to blow out the front of its front door. The door still held by the top hinges, however.

The curious thing about the explosion was that it skinned all the bananas in the cellar.

PLAYED "ROBBER"

JOHNNY LANGER CAME NEAR BEING HANGED.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Johnny Langer, 6 years old, was sentenced to be hanged until he was dead, in Union Hill, yesterday, for being a "robber."

Had not his mother arrived on the scene at an opportune moment the child would probably have paid the penalty.

Johnny's playmates, about a dozen of them, all under 12 years old, had already strung him up by a clothes line attached to the top of a grocery wagon, and his body hung limp and almost lifeless.

The boys had been playing "cops and robbers," and Jimmy was one of the "robbers."

"I had been to the grocery store," said the mother, "and was returning home when several children ran toward me shouting, 'O, Mrs. Langer, they're hanging Johnny.'

"I was horrified upon reaching the wagon to see that the boys had a clothesline tied about my child's neck. And they were just pulling away at it as if it was fun. It's lucky I was there, or I am sure he would have been choked to death. I wouldn't tell my husband about this for worlds. I'm sure he'd murder some of those kids if I did."

FELL FROM BRIDGE

FRANK JONES, AGED 12, DROWNED WHILE FISHING.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BRAINTREE, Sept. 3.—Frank Jones, the 12 year old son of Mrs. Jennie Jones of Hancock street, was drowned in the paper mill pond at South Braintree just before noon yesterday.

The Jones boy, in company with another lad named Ralph Blanchard, were fishing at the pond, but at different points. The Jones boy sat on a small bridge, and it is supposed he slipped off.

Blanchard says he did not see Jones fall and the first he knew his companion was missing was when he found Jones' cap and fishing rod floating in the water.

A searching party recovered the body about two hours after the alarm was given. The body was viewed by Medical Examiner J. C. Fraser of Weymouth.

William T. Wade of Perry street is spending his vacation at his old home, Lewiston, Me.

14,000 TROOPS

Will Take Part in Big Encampment

By Associated Press to The Sun

JUNCTION CITY, Kas., Sept. 3.—The plans for the big camp at Fort Riley during the manoeuvres show that it will be one of the most spectacular ever planned. The 14,000 troops that are to participate will be encamped on the Republican river flats just north of Junction City in the form of a gigantic fan, which will have the apex near the bluffs half a mile farther north of the town. At the apex of the camp will be the headquarters of the commanding general and his staff.

On the ribs of the fan will be encamped in regimental formation, the various regiments and battalions of cavalry, infantry, engineers and signal corps, and the batteries of artillery composing the division of manoeuvres. Streets will divide the camps and form, when tents are pitched, the ribs of the fan.

This form of encampment will enable the commanding general to be at all times within easy communication with all parts of the camp. An extensive line of water pipes will be held at the camp site before the arrival of the troops.

The space between the headquarters of the commanding general and the camp of the various organizations will be large enough for a review of the troops that will be assembled on the reservation for the manoeuvres.

GUILTY OF CONTEMPT

ASSISTANT STATE ATTORNEY SENTENCED TO JAIL.

By Associated Press to The Sun

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Frederick L. Barnett, assistant state attorney, must spend ten days in the county jail and pay a fine of $50 for contempt of court unless he successfully appeals from a decision of Judge Kavanaugh yesterday afternoon.

He is accused of contempt in having assisted in causing the arrest of Walter H. Hoyt, a playwright, after he had been freed on habeas corpus.

Hot times took place between Judge Kavanaugh and Mr. Barnett Tuesday and yesterday in a new habeas corpus hearing for Hoyt, and after the court had again freed the playwright he sentenced Mr. Barnett.

Thomas J. Howard, a detective, and Louis Houston, messenger for the governor of Ohio, were each committed for 10 days. Mr. Barnett and the other defendants gave notice of appeal and a bond for their appearance today.

Judge Kavanagh declared in an oral opinion that the defendants had shown an "open, wilful and flagrant defiance of the court." He declared the writ of habeas to be the highest right in this country.

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 3.—John H. Booth of Meriden, who has confessed to robbing the International silver company of thousands of dollars' worth of bullion silver, the police yesterday recognized as the man who was arrested just 40 years ago in connection with the robbery of the Townsend bank of this city of $90,000 in cash and bonds.

Though alleged at that time to have received from Cashier Jeremiah Townsend, who robbed the bank, $60000 of the booty, nothing was ever proved against Booth. Cashier Townsend was sent to state prison and Booth was released.

Booth at the time of the bank robbery lived with his sister, Mary Booth, in this city. Afterward, he removed to Meriden and lived with his family until his recent arrest.

FRAUD RAMPANT

Charge Made by Republican Congressman

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 3.—Representative Frank Wachter of Maryland declares the entire federal service is honeycombed with corruption and incompetency, and he proposes to introduce a resolution for the investigation of every department of the government at the next session of congress.

"Every one who has been brought into close contact with the departments knows these things," he said, "and it is time that we had a general house-cleaning."

Wachter is a republican and was recently defeated for the office of mayor of Baltimore. In addition to the postal scandal and the Indian land frauds, involving another department and agricultural officials, it is charged that there was a collusion between the seed contractor and the inspectors, and the department of justice has several officials who are accused of complicity in the Indian land frauds.

Customs scandals and irregularities in the letting of contracts have been mentioned often in connection with the treasury department, including the customs scandal in Porto Rico.

The charge has been made that the war and navy departments were controlled by cliques for their personal benefit.

$250,000 SUIT

Son of Millionaire Dolan the Defendant

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Argument in a legal motion yesterday before Justice Blanchard in special term, part 1, of the supreme court, disclosed the fact that about a year ago Clarence W. Dolan of Philadelphia, who is a son of Thomas Dolan, the street car line promoter and wealthy manufacturer, was sued by Josephine Martin for $250,000 for breach of promise of marriage. The argument, which for the first time made public the fact that young Mr. Dolan had been sued for breach of promise of marriage, also disclosed that he settled the suit by paying Miss Martin's counsel $7500.

The facts came out in connection with an application which David Hirschfield, now counsel for Miss Martin, made to Justice Blanchard for the issuance of an order adjudging Dethlef C. Hansen, counsel for the plaintiff in her suit against Mr. Dolan for alleged breach of promise, to be in contempt of court for the alleged failure to pay Miss Martin $568 which she asserted he had failed to turn over to her and which she said she was entitled to as part of her share of the $7500 which Mr. Dolan paid to settle her suit.

Shamrock III Defeated by Reliance in Final Race

THE TIME OF RACE

	START	OUTER MARK	FINISH
Reliance	1:01:56	3:41:35	5:28:00
Shamrock III	1:02:00	3:51:45

THE RELIANCE FINISHED THREE MILES AHEAD OF SHAMROCK III.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, SEPT. 3.—RELIANCE HAS SUCCESSFULLY DEFENDED THE AMERICA'S CUP. THE THIRD AND FINAL RACE WAS WON TODAY AND SHAMROCK III WAS BADLY DEFEATED, BEING TWO MILES OR MORE BEHIND AT THE FINISH.

THE WIND WAS GOOD, INCREASING FROM FIVE MILES AN HOUR AT THE START TO TEN MILES AT THE FINISH.

STORY OF THE RACE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—With a fog heavier than on any previous morning and but a five or six mile wind from the northward, the conditions this morning for the fourth attempt this week to sail the third of the series of the international yacht races, were far from ideal. With all, however, there was more wind than on the three previous days, when all attempts at a race were futile and there were hopes that the fog would lift and wind would increase in velocity as it blew from a favorable quarter.

At 7 o'clock the fog could not be penetrated beyond 100 feet, but in less than two hours there were indications of its lifting. The wind still held true and at 8:55 was reported officially at Sandy Hook at five miles. The sun, too, began to break through the mist and it then began to clear rapidly. Soon it was possible to see half a mile or more, blue skies were in evidence, and the prospects of a race were more encouraging than on any previous day this week.

At 8.45 o'clock Captain Wringe and Captain Barr gave orders not to make sail until the dropping fog lifted further. Captain Barr said there would be a great clearance of the fog before he would think of risking Reliance outside of the hook.

At 9.15 o'clock, however, Reliance crew began putting up their stay sail and jib in stops and Shamrock followed shortly after.

At 9.20 Reliance started for the lightship in tow, raising her mainsail as she went. At that time the wind, according to the official observer, had dropped to three miles an hour from the northeast.

Sir Thomas Lipton's guests arrived about 9.35 on the Fletcher and for the first time saw Shamrock III making preparations to leave. Shamrock left in tow at 9.38 with only her foresails in stops.

When the yachts reached the lightship the wind had hauled around to the southeast and was blowing about five miles an hour. It was clearing gradually but the fog was still so heavy that at 10.35 the committee boat Navigator signalled a postponement of the start until later in the day.

As in yesterday's proceedings, there was nothing for the boats to do but to manoeuvre about the start, in hope for some wind. By 11:45 o'clock the sun came out warm and bright. It continued to burn away the fog and by noon it was comparatively clear. The wind had increased at that time to six miles according to the official observer at Sandy Hook, and showed some signs of becoming strong enough to make a race.

As the weather was gradually growing clearer, the committee decided to wait until 1 o'clock, the latest hour under the rules, before starting the race. At this time the wind had increased to seven miles and as it was from the southeast, the course was undoubtedly a 15-mile beat in that direction and a run home.

The yachts manoeuvred about until the starting gun was fired. Both boats headed for the line, with Reliance slightly in the lead. They went over the line on the starboard tack but moved very slowly. Their sheets were well flattened for the beat to windward.

Immediately after crossing the line the yachts apparently went about on the port tack and headed for the Jersey shore.

The preparatory gun was fired at 12.45 and the warning gun ten minutes later. The American boat crossed about a minute after the starting gun was fired, followed about 20 seconds later by Shamrock.

With the light air and a perfectly calm sea, the Reliance had exactly the condition in which she is admittedly unapproachable and immediately she began to open a lead, pointing out steadily to windward. As they held in on the port tack, the wind freshened and the yachts began to move at a fair rate, producing a little foam under their bows as they moved through the water.

The yachts had not sailed many minutes before the wind began to strengthen. Reliance continued to gain, eating out to windward of Shamrock, although the latter seemed to foot almost as fast.

The yachts made a fine smart fight, sailing in the fresher wind, traveling well and pointing high to windward. The port tack, which was taken soon after the yachts started was held until they had reached a point a mile northeast of Long Branch and about the same distance off shore. Reliance had outsailed her adversary on this board, so that when Shamrock went about on the starboard tack at 2.08, a move which Reliance duplicated five seconds later, the latter was more than half a mile in the lead and almost as far to windward.

At half past two, the indications were that the yachts would turn the outermark within another hour, which would give them three hours in which to return.

Both boats heeling well in the freshening breeze.

JIMMY GARDNER

Put It All Over Spike Sullivan

(Special to Sun.)

FALL RIVER, Sept. 3.—The Gardner-Sullivan fight here last night lasted fifteen rounds. The bout was declared a draw. Jimmy Gardner appeared in the ring first in fine condition, wearing bandages, and seemed unconcerned as to the result. Tom King of Fall River and Martin Canoe, the coming champion, were in his corner. After much waiting the 2000 spectators hooted for Spike Sullivan to appear. At 9.30 Spike made his appearance with his brother Dave, but refused to fight unless Jimmie removed the bandages which covered both his hands.

Dave Sullivan explained to the audience that neither rules nor club allowed the use of the bandages and Spike refused to go on.

The management was much chagrined at the outlook until Spike with his wood-hammered Irish accent announced that he would fight without any bandages and allow Jimmie to wear his.

Round 15—Both men went at it with tiger like alertness and Jimmie forced much of the fighting, Spike guarding well. Spike landed a blow with more noise to it than steam on Jim's stomach and followed quickly with an uppercut but was slow in resisting the game Lowell boy who punched and pounded Spike's face at will, landing every blow on Spike's chin or mouth and working his left arm to perfection on Spike's stomach. Spike was groggy and failed to return a punch. Gardner showed much science and had it not been for the game Sullivan would have been floored.

Days of Bull Campaign in the Cotton Market Recalled

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Not since the exciting days early in the bull campaign has been anything equal to the confusion in today's cotton market, which attended the publication of the government September report. The figures, 81.2, reflect an improvement in conditions for the month of 2.4 and are 18.1 per cent. above those last year. The statement proved better than generaly expected and was followed by a rush of liquidation that carried prices off sharply. Earlier in the day the market had shown a declining tendency and prices at noon were about 6 to 15 points lower. In less than 10 minutes after the report was received, September sold at 12.13; October at 10.20; December at 9.95 and January at 9.92, those being net losses of from 12 to 26 points. The realizing by early sellers relieved the strain and led to slight recoveries with the market very irregular and unsettled.

PATHETIC SCENE

MICHAEL GRAHAM.

THOMAS ALTIMUS.

Wives of Convicted Men Hear Sentence Pronounced

The wives and parents of Michael J. Graham and Thomas Altimus, the young fellows who succeeded in getting "easy" money from a score of prominent business men in this city, by representing themselves as collecting agents for the Freight Handlers' Association of the Boston & Maine railroad, were in police court today and heard the young men sentenced to the common jail. Altimus for ten months and Graham for eight months. An appeal was taken and they were ordered in $700 each for their appearance before the superior court.

The young men were tried yesterday on the charge of larceny. The real title of their offence was "obtaining money under false pretenses," but that offence and all others of a similar nature now come under the head of larceny.

Graham, so far as the police could learn, had no previous police record, and there was but one offence, that of larceny, standing out against Altimus. J. Joseph Hennessey appeared for them, and inasmuch as they were found guilty of larceny on eleven counts they were fortunate in getting away with such light sentences.

The situation in this case was decidedly sad and pathetic. The wives of the men were shocked beyond expression when they came face to face with the parchment in which their husbands had placed themselves. They believed that the young men were engaged in honest pursuits, and their faith in them was in one way stronger than was the confidence of their parents. Both young men belong to highly respectable and well-to-do families living in North Cambridge. The women left the court room screaming when sentence was pronounced upon their husbands.

LOWELL WON

Manchester Defeated by a Score of 4 to 2

Special to The Sun.

MANCHESTER, Sept. 3.—Lowell and Manchester played a great game of baseball here this afternoon. Lowell won and thus strengthened its hold on first place. A big crowd saw the game, many Lowell people having travelled to the Queen city to root for Lake's team.

It was Lake's intention to put Cross in to pitch but Lew's father is critically ill and Cross remained at home with Manager Lake's permission, and Tommy Burbage was sent in to do the slab work. Billy Merritt was behind the bat. Morrissey and Cote were in the points for Manchester.

Both sides were blanked in the first inning, but Lowell broke the ice in the second and sent two men over the plate but failed to tally again until the eighth, when two more runs were added, making Lowell's total 4.

Manchester tallied in the fifth and seventh, making one run in each of those innings. Both sides were blanked in the ninth. Burbage pitched great ball and received grand support from the entire team behind him. Morrissey, too, gave a grand exhibition in the box.

It is conceded here, now, that Lowell will win the pennant.

Grant and Connors scored in the second inning for Lowell on a hit by Bigelow. Manchester's score in the 5th was made by Cote who came in on a field play. In the 7th Manchester scored, Whiting coming in on a wild throw. Lowell won the game in the 8th when Burbage and Grant scored on an error of Swanders.

THAYER-BROOKS

Brilliant High Noon Wedding at Newport

TRINITY CHURCH CROWDED WITH SOCIETY PEOPLE

The Floral Decorations Were Elaborate

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEWPORT, R. I., Sept. 3—The wedding of Miss Gladys Jennings Brooks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Mortimer Brooks, and Mr. Eugene V. R. Thayer, Jr., took place at Trinity church at high noon today and was a society event interesting the entire colony, the church being filled and there being a very large crowd at the reception held at the bautiful villa of the bride's parents at the foot of Bellevue avenue.

The guests began to arrive at the church well in advance of the time for the ceremony and the streets were crowded with people and carriages for blocks around.

The wedding party arrived at the church a trifle before noon. The bride proceeded down the aisle, resting upon the arm of her father, who later gave her away. She was attended by the Misses Marion Fish, Constance Livermore, Anna Thayer, Katherine Thayer, Adelaide Randolph and Fannie Ikelin as bridesmaids and the ushers were Messrs. Reginald Brooks, DeLancey Jay, Philip Livermore, Theodore Douglass Robinson, Charles E. Perkins, Jr., George Fairchild, Hugh Matturn, George Snow, Reginald Boardman and J. I. Suffordsall.

At the altar the party were met by the groom, who was attended by James Jackson of Boston as best man.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Ernest J. Dennen, assistant rector of the church, assisted by Rev. Sherrard Billings, rector of Groton school.

The floral decorations at the church were elaborate, one of the leading society florists having been engaged in the preparations for the final arrangement for more than a week. The color scheme was white and green with a spring-like tinge given by pink flowers. The historical old church with its elaborate colonial interior finish lent itself admirably to the decorators' art. At the entrance plants and flowers were massed in great banks and the aisles were turned into avenues with rose tree borderings, great bunches of white roses topping the trees which were further dressed in liberal white satin bows. Four score of these trees were required. The chancel was massed with palms and garlands of white roses and the altar was banked with the same. Garlands of white roses, lilies of the valley and orchids intertwined with green dressed the altar rail. Upon the cream walls of the church hung garlands of green and along the balconies garlands of green and pink with wide sache ribbons of pale pink. In every available niche palms were piled, while the high pulpit with its sounding board was dressed in pink and white flowers.

The bride was attired in a rich Parisian gown of white satin trimmed with old point lace and she wore the lace veil worn by her mother upon the occasion of her marriage. The maids wore white mousseline de soie and picture hats.

The bride carried a shower bouquet of white orchids and the maids carried pink roses, the "showers" being of small pink buds.

The gentlemen wore boutonnieres of lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony the wedding party and guests were driven direct to "Rockhurst," the fine estate of the bride's mother, for the reception. Here the florist had prepared in the ball room a bower of white roses and lilies of the valley, against a background of palms and one other elaborate flower work in the dining room halls and tents, the latter having been erected for the serving of the wedding breakfast, during which two orchestras supplied continuous music.

The couple slipped away from their friends after the reception formality and started upon their wedding tour, the itinerary of which is of course not announced.

HIS FAITHFUL DOG

Died Because He Couldn't Live

AND HIS MASTER WENT ON A SPREE

Best Friend He Had in the World

Clarence H. Sprague of North Chelmsford was in police court today and pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with drunkenness. Judge Hadley decided that a few days in jail would do Clarence all the good in the world and he ordered him in the sum of $300 until Tuesday morning. "I appeal," said Maurice. He then proceeded to tell the court a pitiful tale about a faithful dog of his that lay down and died a few days ago. Clarence is a married man but he told Judge Hadley that the dog was the best friend he had in the world. "The dog's death started me drinking," he said, and the court told him that the sorrow occasioned by the death of man or beast could not be drowned by drink. "He was a corking good dog, though," said Maurice as he resumed his seat in the dock.

FOR KEEPING LIQUOR.

Joseph Corcoran, charged with the illegal sale of liquor, was fined $100. He appealed.

LIQUORS FORFEITED.

When it came to forfeiting liquors in police court today three men hobbed up and claimed certain packages that had been confiscated by the police. John Martell claimed a case of beer and a quart of whiskey that had been taken from his room. James H. Carmichael appeared for him and the court allowed John to have the case and the quart.

When the liquor seized at the Old Middlesex Tavern when it was raided by Capt. Kew and a posse of officers a week or so ago were declared forfeited today, William H. Vining, a brother to the proprietor of the tavern, and Alvin J. Preston stepped up and submitted claims for two cases of beer.

Owing to the absence of Capt. Kew the government asked for a continuance for one week. Judge Hadley told the men who claimed the beer that if the evidence was not sufficient to support their claims they would be liable to the commonwealth for a bill of costs.

THE ARMY STAFF

MAY REALIGN THE DIFFERENT DEPARTMENTS.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—The Post says the general staff of the army is considering the advisability of realigning the departments to conform to changes in the transportation situation.

It is possible, says the Post, that one or more departments will be created. The department of the east, for example, may be divided into two, the new one to be designated either as the department of the south or the gulf. Kansas, Oklahoma and Indian Territory may be taken from the department of Missouri and combined into one department.

Another proposition even of more interest to the country that is being considered by the general staff is the rehabilitation of numerous forts and posts in various parts of the country, but mainly in the west, which have practically been abandoned for several years. Now that the army consists of nearly 70,000 men it is discovered that the posts which have been in repair are not numerous enough to accommodate the troops comfortably. It is not improbable that in this necessity some new posts will have to be established.

THE COMMON JAIL

MAURICE JACOBS. MICHAEL O'BRIEN.

Petty Thief and His Pal Were Sentenced Today

In police court Michael O'Brien and Maurice Jacobs, who were found guilty of the larceny of certain revolvers and dog collars, yesterday, were sentenced by Judge Hadley today; O'Brien to eight months in the common jail and Jacobs to six months at the same institution. Deputy Welch communicated with the Somerville police by telephone this forenoon and learned that O'Brien had been arrested in that city for the larceny of $10 July 22 and that he was known in Somerville and Boston as a petty thief.

Jacobs had once been arrested for larceny. His case went to the superior court and he was placed on probation.

ALL FOUND GUILTY

Tammany A. C. Men are Convicted

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3—Nine defendants were arraigned before Judge Williams in the Roxbury court yesterday on the charge of illegally carrying on and promoting a boxing match at the Tammany A. C. two weeks ago. The men were Representative Daniel Donnelly, John Mack, David Leahy, George Byrne, Robert Armstrong, John Thompson, John F. Doyle, Harry Sanborn and Sandy Ferguson, and each was found guilty on two counts.

Capt. Hanley and Sergt. O'Neil of division 10 conducted the government's case and Hon. Charles H. Innes appeared for the defendants.

Sergt. O'Neil testified that on the evening of Aug. 20 he telephoned from Chelsea to the club asking that two tickets be reserved for him. A patrolman from another station was with him when he telephoned, and a messenger boy was sent to get the tickets. Two officers from division 14 used the tickets.

Later he and Patrolman Skillings called at the club and the patrolman paid David Leahy $6 for tickets in an envelope marked for Mr. Sheridan. Upon cross-examination Sergt. O'Neil said he was a member of the club, but had never received a membership card. When he joined the club some weeks ago he filed an application and while he had been in the clubhouse several times, he had never seen a membership card. When he applied for admission he stated that he was a police officer.

Special Officer Kilday testified that he went to Chelsea with the sergeant and heard him telephone. He attended the exhibition in the evening. While he is not a member of the club he has been there several times and has seen the membership cards. He has also seen them presented by applicants for admission when there was an exhibition.

John Crowley, a messenger boy, testified that he was sent from Chelsea by Sergt. O'Neil, who gave him $6 for two tickets. He filled out two membership blanks and was given the tickets. Patrolmen Wylie and Skillings of division 14 testified that they were admitted to the club on the tickets ordered by telephone. Capt. Hanley testified that he sent officers to the club on the night of Aug. 20.

None of the defendants took the witness stand, and upon the conclusion of the government's case Mr. Innes made his argument. He said that nothing was shown to prove that his clients had acted in contravention to the law governing such exhibitions, and asked for their acquittal.

Judge Williams then found each defendant guilty on two counts and fined each $25 on each charge, an aggregate of $450. All appealed.

Daniel Donnelly, one of the accused, is a member of the legislature from ward 7, while all the others have been more or less prominently identified with boxing in Boston since it was revived.

"Life looks dark indeed when a woman feels that her strength is sapping away and she has no hopes of ever being restored. Such was my feeling a few months ago when I was advised that my poor health was caused by prolapsus or falling of the womb. The words sounded like a knell to me, I felt that my sun had set; but Lydia E. CHURCH AND CARRIAGE FACTORY SAVED

Haverhill and Amesbury Sent Help

FIRE STARTED IN THE WALKER FACTORY

The Whole Town Was Threatened

By Associated Press to The Sun

MERRIMAC, Mass., Sept. 3.—Fire, which at one time seemed to threaten the whole town, caused a damage of $25,000 at the wooden factory of the Walker Carriage company here, today. The absence of wind made it possible for the local fire department, aided by divisions of the Amesbury and Haverhill departments, successfully to cope with the fire and prevented it from reaching adjoining buildings. The Baptist church and the Pease Carriage factory building were in danger, and it was only by the hardest kind of work on the part of the firemen that the structures were saved.

The Walker establishment was located on Mechanic street in the center of the town. It is a large, roomy wooden structure, three stories in height with a large wing in the rear. It was here that the fire was discovered by a citizen shortly before six o'clock. An alarm was sounded immediately; the whole town was aroused and all available men at once proceeded to check the progress of the flames. To this end the steamer and hand engine of the town were brought into service and an effective bucket system of throwing water on the building was employed. The inflammable nature of the structure made it easy for the fire to spread and the probability of a serious conflagration led to the asking of Haverhill and Amesbury to send apparatus. Haverhill dispatched a steamer and hose wagon and Amesbury a hose wagon. By the time this combined department had got to work, the large wing of the factory was burning furiously and nearby structures were threatened. The firemen, however, confined the blaze to the wing of the building. This contained the blacksmith shop, the body-makers room and the trimming room. The entire building was damaged by smoke.

The Walker company came here from Amesbury in July, purchasing and refitting the old Stevens factory. The first shipment of goods was made only yesterday. The fire of today is a serious blow to the concern. There is, however, a partial insurance. A score of men employed in the body-makers' room lost all their tools.

The Walker company is composed of James L. Walker and his son.

GLIDDEN'S TRIP

An Interesting Account of His Automobile Ride

Charles J. Glidden, who with Mrs. Glidden is making an extended automobile trip, writes as follows from Sweden:

SKELEFTEA, Sweden, Aug. 13, 1903. (Latitude 64 deg. 50 min.)

Fifth day north of Stockholm—120 miles in five hours. Population of city 2000.

We have now reached a parallel of latitude equal to the highest that could be obtained in Norway. The noted building here is the church of which the famous apostle of Lapland, Per Hogstrom, was pastor in 1809.

More of the heavy grades were encountered today and successfully climbed, with the usual precautions. A 30 per cent. grade can be imagined by recalling the grade of Corey Hill, Brookline, which is about 15 per cent., with an excellent surface.

The peasants seemed to realize the difficulty in ascending some of these grades, as in a number of instances a crowd of them were standing at the top, and when the car successfully bowled over the summit of the hills loud was the applause.

A pleasing and touching incident occurred at the outskirts of this town. A number of citizens and ladies had gathered and as we neared them a beautiful Swedish flag was hoisted to a mast-head, amid cheers and the waving of handkerchiefs.

The authorities turned the road over to us today and we had clear sailing on an excellent surface the entire distance, only passing the mail coach, thus enabling us to make this a record drive for Sweden at an average speed of 24 miles per hour.

LULEA, Sweden, Aug. 11, 1903 (Lat. 65 deg. 35 min.)

The little flag episode of yesterday induced us this morning to mount our Swedish and American flags on a small pole which Mrs. Glidden carried, and we waved them at the crowds. The enthusiasm was greater than ever. As we are nearing the Lapland district the advice given in a Swedish touring club book may be interesting to note:

"The Lapps are not savages; have been to school like other people. Don't give them tobacco; kind treatment and behavior toward them will pay better. Don't compliment the Lapp girls nor ask a Lapp how many reindeer he possesses, which is equivalent to asking a man how much he is worth."

The horses are attached to the vehicles by only two hitches. It is amusing when we turn the sharp corners to see how rapidly one can be taken out of the shafts and into the woods, while the occupants of the cart vacate it.

The roads continue good. Two ferries were crossed today at Pitsund and at Lulea. The boats were small but of sufficient size to carry us. En route here we passed through the town of Pitea (3000 population), one of the oldest in Sweden and part of which is built upon the island of Pitholm.

Lulea has a population of 8000 and is the largest city in northern Sweden. Removed from its original site, seven miles down the river it has a $100,000 church and is an important ore shipping port during six months in the year. During the other six months the gulf is frozen two feet deep. The iron ore is practically on the surface at Gellivare and there are extensive mines 100 miles northwest, owned by the government. During the winter this ore is carried on the railroad to Narvik, Norway, an open port. Nearly 1,000,000 tons of ore are exported annually and it is considered the best iron produced.

The character of the hotels are changing somewhat. Tonight, after a 120 mile drive (6 hours) in the rain on a fair to bad road, we are located in the Gastgifvaregard, an institution for travellers supplied by the government, neat and clean and with wholesome food.

HARPARANDA, Sweden, Aug. 15.—(Latitude 65.50). This, the most northern town in Sweden, with a population of 1500, is located at the extreme northern end of the gulf of Bothnia, opposite which, and across the river Torne, is the Russian-Finland town of Torneo. Winter in this section extends from Nov. 15 to My 15, with an average snow level of six feet. On Dec. 22 the sun shines less than our hour, only three-quarters of the orb being visible.

The drive here of 110 miles, over bad roads, occupied six hours and covered nearly all points of the compass, the route full of curves and undulations. We only gained 15 minutes of latitude, but we went eastward nearly two full degrees of longitude.

Our progress continues to be bulletined at every point, and the usual crowds greet and cheer us as we pass.

KOMMIS, Sweden, near Lapland, and Russian Finland frontiers, Aug. 16, 1903 (Lat. 66 deg. 33 min.; E. lon. 23 deg. 31 min.).

We carried the American flag in the first automobile (16 horse-power Napier) to cross the Arctic circle today. Our drive has been continuous from the Massachusetts Automobile club house, Boston, excepting waterways. The passengers were Charles J. Glidden, Mrs. Glidden, Charles Thomas, engineer, of London, and August Langell, interpreter.

The motor car and its passengers will be transported by steamer to Frederikshaven, Jutland, the most northern point in Denmark (a six days' sail on the gulf of Bothnia and Baltic sea), and our drive continued toward Copenhagen, Berlin, Vienna, Paris and Liverpool. During our entire journey thus far nothing whatever has happened to the motor car. This is truly a remarkable record for any kind of a mechanical invention and thoroughly demonstrates the reliability of the car as well as the tires, which are now in a fair condition and good for many miles' drive.

Our Swedish drive of 1540 miles to this point was through 500 cities, towns and settlements. No ragged clothed children nor beggars have we seen and not over five cases of intoxication. Great kindness is shown to all dumb animals, seen in only one instance, and that under trying conditions, have we seen a horse struck.

The haying season is at its height and the entire family is to be seen working in the fields. The harvest commences in September and by the end of the month the preparations for the long nights are completed, except the filling of the woodsheds to meet a low continuous temperature registering 40 below zero. During the long winter some of the men cut wood, others lie about, smoking, taking care of their stock, remaining indoors, sleeping more hours than they are awake.

On our drive north of Harparanda, we passed many settlements of Finns. The Lapps at this season are herding reindeer in the mountains a few miles westward. The reindeer at all times of the year feed on dry moss, nothing else. They are valued at 30 kroner ($8) each. A Lapp is fairly well to do if he owns from 200 to 300, but a few very wealthy ones own from one to three thousand. The reindeer is used as a draught animal and for food, its horns for spoons, bones for needles and hides for coats, gloves and bed clothing.

Russia this year has driven out into Sweden 10,000 Finns. The government of Finland has been until recently in the people's own hands. The Finnish soldiers were removed to central Russia, and government officials dismissed and Russians put into all offices. All the Finns who expressed dissatisfaction at the regime have been ordered out of the country. Sweden gains by the expulsion, as the Finns are a law-abiding, industrious people. They were much interested in the automobile and appear a more intelligent class than the Lapps. The older Finns do not speak the Swedish language, but the children who attend school talk Swedish and are rapidly improving themselves.

Only one foreigner besides ourselves has registered at the Harparanda hotel for three years, and he was a journalist from Paris.

The drive to the circle from Harparanda and return, 125 miles, was accomplished on a bad reindeer in 10 hours. At Matarengi, 15 miles from the circle, we took aboard the car the postmaster of the district, to whom at the circle Mrs. Glidden presented the American flag carried from Boston. He gave us a document, of which the following is a copy:

"NORRA, POLCIRKELN DEN.

16 Aug., 1903.

"Undertecknad erkenner harmed emottagit af Herr Charles J. Glidden of Boston, Mass., U. S. A., en Amerikans flagga hvilken summa forde med sig i sin automobil som detta var den forsta automobil som passerat norra polsirkeln vill jag bevara sommna flagga som ett minne (tecnad).

"A. MARTINELI,

"Postmastare i of vertornea."

Translated, this is as follows:

"NORTH POLAR CIRCLE.

Aug. 16, 1903.

"The undersigned acknowledge to have received from Mr. Charles J. Glidden of Boston, Mass., U. S. A., an American flag which he brought with him in his automobile. As this was the first automobile to pass the Arctic circle I will keep this flag as a souvenir.

"A. MARTINELI,

"Postmaster of Upper Tornea."

On our return from the circle the streets of Harparanda were filled with people, who loudly applauded the success of our undertaking in driving the first automobile the entire length of Sweden and across the Arctic circle.

Sam Wah Lung of South Lawrence presided at the meeting.

The society will be known, as near as translation into English will allow, as the Lord Sons of Confucius. One of the chief objects of the order will be to advance and retain the teachings and creed of Confucious among the Chinese of this country.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

The regular semi-monthly meeting of Industry Council, Royal Arcanum, took place last evening at the headquarters of that order in Odd Fellows' Temple, Middlesex street, with a fair representation of the membership in attendance. In the absence of Regent Joseph H. Gormley, Vice Regent Frank Fox presided. One candidate was initiated.

Independence Council, Junior O. U. A. M., met in regular session last evening at Odd Fellows' Temple. Supreme Judge W. L. S. Gilcrease of Methuen delivered a brief but interesting address. Two applications for membership were received. There will be an initiation at the next meeting.

R. F. Butler Post 42, G. A. R., held its first fall meeting in the Memorial hall quarters last night. The comrades were entertained by Adjutant George E. Worthen, who has just returned from the glorious climate of California, where he went as a delegate to the department convention in San Francisco. He had been in 20 states and traveled 7800 miles. He was eloquent over the grandeur of the trip and proud to have fought for such a great country. Talk about the dangers of foreign immigration said Adjutant Worthen, there is room to spare for all of them. You can put 27 Massachusetts in Texas alone.

ROBBER CAUGHT

Found Lying Across Railroad Tracks

By Associated Press to The Sun

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Sept. 3.—The sheriff has secured a prisoner under unusual circumstances. He is believed to be wanted in Placer county for stage robbery. He was found lying across the railroad track at Barstow unconscious from a terrible blow on top of the head. He evidently had been placed there to be cut to pieces by the west bound Overland train. In his pockets was found a mask and the card of "M. J. Reilley," of the Silverton, Col., waiters' union. The man was found on the track several hours after the theft of a Wells-Fargo treasure box and it is believed by the police that he participated in and that he was later struck on the head by his partners in the crime and left for the train to end their work.

PARKS WILL LEAD

Will Ride at Head of Labor Day Parade

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Samuel Parks will ride at the head of the Labor parade next Monday, and there is a strong probability that William S. Devery, who has been his friend, will ride beside him. That the man who has just come from prison will be the grand marshal of the parade was decided at a meeting of the United Board of Building Trades yesterday.

Eight other walking delegates, who will act as aids to Parks, will be on horseback. They are: Timothy McCarthy, who was indicted with Parks; Richard Carvel, M. Goldnets, J. Mullaney, P. O'Neil, Wm. Fife, Frederick Leman and James Ainslow. Parks' organization, the Housemiths and Bridgemen's union, will have the right of line.

Parks was forced to take to his bed yesterday. To the reaction coming after his release from Sing Sing prison and the excitement attending his welcome by his labor union friends was added a return of his malarial trouble and a decided increase in his temperature.

When asked how many men would be in line Labor Day, Parks said: "If there had not been all this trouble in the ranks, there would have been 100,000 men, but now I don't suppose there will be more than 25,000 or 30,000."

He did not seem to realize that when he said this he was admitting that 70,000 must have deserted from the faction which he leads.

When questioned about a report that he had said he had under way a new plan which would turn the tables on the employers he said: "Wouldn't I be foolish, if I had any such plan, to talk about it so that the bosses would learn all about it and be warned?"

The bas-relief when found was already packed for dispatch abroad. It is expected that other precious objects which recently disappeared will be recovered.

FIRE ON BROADWAY

Vellieux's Cash Market Badly Gutted

A lively blaze started in Vellieux's public cash market in Broadway shortly after eight o'clock last night, which necessitated the ringing in of an alarm from box 39. The local department responded promptly, and through their efforts the fire was placed under control before very much damage was done.

The fire was first discovered by Matthew Mitchell, who rushed down Broadway to where Sergt. John B. Crowley was standing, and the latter broke in the door of the store and removed what books and papers he could find to a place of safety. In the meantime an alarm from box 39 at the corner of Fletcher and Broadway was pulled in.

When the department arrived on the scene the appearance of the blaze was suggestive of a stubborn battle, but after a stream of water and a few lines from the Central chemical company had been directed onto the flames the fire was checked in short order. The interior of the building suffered to a great extent from fire, while Mr. Vellieux's stock was damaged by smoke and water. The stock is insured in the agency of Frank M. Brogan.

J. A. Green, the owner of the building, stated last night that the damage to the building would amount to over $200, and the proprietor of the store stated that a similar amount would just about cover his loss. Both losses are covered by insurance. The origin of the blaze is unknown, and of course the innocent rat and the sulphur-headed sticks have another charge to answer for.

Frank M. Brogan had the insurance.

IN THE NIGHT

Clothesline Thieves Have Operated in Belvidere

Nocturnal marauders with an eye to clotheslines visited the premises of Mrs. Bridget Lawler at the corner of High and Andover streets a few nights ago and relieved two clotheslines of considerable weight. The clothesline thieves have been operating somewhat extensively in Belvidere. It is believed that the theft at the Lawler estate was made between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning, as some body in the house heard a noise in the yard about that time. Complaints by those whose lines have been stripped have been made at police station and the police are looking for the thieves.

DR. LOUGEST

Has Had More Experience in the Treatment, and Made More Great Cures of Difficult, Protracted and Chronic Diseases and Weaknesses of Men Than Any Other Living Specialist

Dr. Lougest's treatment has been tested on more than twenty thousand (20,000) young, middle-aged and old men, who, as the results of errors or excesses, were tortured by the woes of nervous debility or decay. It has never yet failed, even in the worst cases, to bring back manly power, remove every trace or symptom of weakness, build up the physical and mental health, and prepare man anew for the duties and pleasures of both married and single life.

Lost Manhood, seminal weakness, effects of youthful indiscretions, nervous debility, pimples and blotches, hair falling out, loss of memory and energy, impotence, rheumatic pains, dischargs and all private diseases quickly and permanently cured by an original and never-failing treatment. Blood poison, ulcers, stricture, varicocele and diseases of the kidneys, bladder and blood cured in the shortest possible time, without the use of mercury or hindrance from business. Dr. Lougest's treatment for the complete cure of Stricture and all unnatural discharges is the most wonderful of modern times. No matter how long the discharge has continued nor how many self-styled specialists have failed to relieve, let alone cure, Dr. Lougest will positively guarantee to stop the discharge entirely within 10 three days by means of his New Method Treatment. This treatment removes medicine positively without pain, detention from business or the use of obnoxious or injurious medicines. No Experiment! No Failure! Nine-tenths of all the long standing discharges, strictures and weaknesses of men are caused by the experiments of the many inexperienced and self-styled specialists of the present day.

Many a man who has been fooled by the "Pay When Cured" racket, knows that it is the last and only resort of a dying-out pretender to get a patient into his clutches. Beware of such schemes. Don't be deceived by misleading statements such as these seemingly charitable offers.

Don't entrust your lives to anyone not qualified by years of experience to treat you. Don't even step your foot across the threshold of an office run by inexperienced, irresponsible, illiterate pretenders. You had better save your money and let your disease take its own course than be practised and experimented upon and in the end lose both your money and life.

Dr. Lougest's offices occupy the entire building of five floors at 313 Columbus avenue, and they are supplied with every known means and device that science, skill, knowledge and money can provide that will aid in determining the exact location and nature of these diseases and effecting their cure promptly and thoroughly, and by the same cure methods as are used in the most Celebrated Paris Hospitals, which invariably result in

Ernest Harmon of Chase Avenue Attempted Suicide

Ernest J. Harmon, a man about 50 years of age and residing at 45 Chase avenue, Pawtucketville, this morning during a temporal aberration of mind made an attempt on his life by jabbing a dull scissors in his neck. Despite the fact that medical aid was promptly summoned he was in a very weak condition when taken to St. John's hospital. His condition grew rapidly worse and at the time of going to press there was little hope for his recovery.

Harmon was employed in the street department of the city, having for a number of years been stationed in Merrimack street sweeping the street. He was an honest and industrious man and has a wife, two sons, Charles M. and Ernest N., and a daughter Etta J.

For the past two or three months Harmon had been complaining and seemed to be very despondent, having little or nothing to say at home and was always very moody. His wife and members of the family had advised him to visit a physician, but he refused to do this and at the mention of a doctor being called he at times became almost frantic. He seemed to have a horror for doctors and at different times believed that the members of his family were trying to have him sent to an hospital. Time and time again when no reference whatsoever had been made to a doctor or hospital he would start from one of his despondent spells and emphatically state that he would not go to the hospital.

While he seemed to be all right physically it was decided that it would be better for him to attend to his duties in order to have something to keep him from becoming despondent, for while at work he seemed to be in good spirits, but just as soon as work was over and he had nothing to occupy his mind he became despondent. At times it seemed as though he was improving in spirits, but he would again lapse into low spirits and have little or nothing to say.

It was thought that during some of his despondent fits he might attempt to take his life and on account of this several revolvers which were in the house were put away where he could not get at them as were his razors and other dangerous articles.

Last night he returned home from work at his usual time and after eating supper sat around and retired early. About 2 o'clock this morning he left his bed and went down stairs. His wife and daughter who have been constantly on the alert, hearing him getting up, followed him down stairs and prevailed upon him to go back to bed again.

He finally consented and going up stairs went back to bed and stayed there until about 4 o'clock, when he again rose and descending to the floor below put on his shoes and taking a pair of old, dull scissors went through the kitchen into the shed and out into the garden, where he jabbed the dull prongs into his throat.

The first his wife knew of the affair was when she heard loud cries, and rushing down stairs had just reached the rear door when she saw her husband in his night attire coming towards the house.

He had both his hands to his throat and upon seeing his wife cried, "I've done it, Mary! I've done it!" His wife was horrified with fear and appealed to the other members of the house to do for her husband as comfortable as possible until the doctor who was summoned could arrive.

Dr. Alonzo G. Dennis was the physician summoned and he was prompt in arriving, but immediately upon seeing the condition of the man he telephoned for the ambulance. When the ambulance arrived Harmon was removed to St. John's hospital.

HAD RELIGIOUS MANIA.

Harmon was a well-known character in and about city hall and at the municipal building the news of his rash act was learned with regret though it did not occasion much surprise as it has been known for some time that Harmon was suffering with mental trouble though physically well and able to do his work.

His mania appears to have been of a religious nature and for the past few years he has been laboring under the delusion that he was not doing enough good to his fellowmen. He religiously refused to accept a cent of money for working on Sunday, always stating that money earned on Sunday was the Lord's money and should go to the Lord. Hence, whenever he had to work on the Sabbath, invariably he gave the money received to some church or religious society.

One day last winter he went into Lang's drug store opposite city hall after receiving his pay and made several purchases of medicine, stating that he knew some poor people who were ill but who had no money to buy medicine. The clerk at the drug store also presented him with some and he went away happy. Later he appeared at the city dispensary and gave a bottle of the medicine to Clerk Mason instructing him to give it to some poor person who might call there.

Among the paupers who call at the office of the overseers of the poor for aid is an old and decrepid woman who made regular visits from Belvidere to the office last winter. She is bent over and walks with great difficulty and one day she attracted the attention of Harmon, who was sweeping in Moody street. He stopped her and inquired all about her condition and then told her that though he was a poor man himself, he would like to help her and instructed her to call around the following Friday, pay day. The old woman was on hand and Harmon upon receiving his pay, gave her a part of it. After that he gave the woman money regularly every week.

THOUGHT HE OWED THE CITY.

But it was an imaginary debt to the city that bothered Harmon most and it was his principal thought all day yesterday. It seems that every Saturday night at 11 o'clock a gang of men leave the city stables and go through the principal streets picking up papers so that the streets will be presentable for the early churchgoers. Each man has a certain territory to cover and when he has finished his territory his work is done and he receives a full day's pay. Some nights the work would be done in four hours, five hours or even eight hours, but generally they finished up within five hours and received eight hours' pay for the work. Harmon was one of these men and when the eight hour law for city employes went into effect he became much interested in it and did much talking about it, though no one paid any attention to him.

Finally a few months ago Harmon went before Mr. Beals one day and informed him that he had been cheating the city for some time. "I have been working five and six hours and have been drawing eight hours' pay for it," said he. "I have been doing wrong and I want to pay back what I owe. I have $15 in the bank and that is the amount that I owe, so I think I will give it to the city treasurer."

Supt. Beals tried to convince him that he was all right and owed nothing, but poor Harmon was sure that he had been cheating, and after that he pestered the superintendent, stopping him wherever he saw him to ask him to accompany him to the city treasurer while he paid over the money.

A few days ago Supt. Beanls made an arrangement with City Treasurer Stiles whereby the treasurer was to take the money if Harmon presented it and then have it in a bank in trust for him.

Yesterday morning Harmon met Supt. Beals on the street and informed him that the matter were on his track and that he was going to give himself up after he paid the city treasurer the $15. The superintendent talked with him until the hallucination had left him and then Harmon returned to his work.

Supt. Beals deeply regrets Harmon's act. In conversation with The Sun reporter he said: "Harmon was one of the most faithful workers I ever had under me. He was working all the time. He had been a week-and-half per some time but was able to do his work at all times. I sincerely hope the poor fellow will recover."

He was at work on a machine when he got his finger caught in the gears. He was removed to the Emergency hospital, where it was found necessary to amputate the finger. NO JURY YET

SERIOUS PROBLEM IN TRIAL OF ALLEGED RIOTERS.

By Associated Press to The Sun

DANVILLE, Ill., Sept. 3.—The jury problem in connection with the trials of the alleged rioters is becoming serious. All of the 600 names so posted in the jury box by the board of supervisors have been drawn out and still the jury is not complete and there are three more trials to come. The nature of the trial and the large number of peremptory challenges allowed is responsible.

Yesterday saw the exhaustion of an entire venire of sixty without the selection of a single juror, only eight jurors so far having been chosen. Judge Thompson appointed L. D. Gass, cashier of the First National bank, special deputy sheriff to bring in jurors, but this move did not prove any more successful.

SULTAN'S SPEECH

The Annniversary of His Accession Observed

DESIRES WELFARE OF ALL THE PEOPLE

He Will Help the Greek Sufferers

By Associated Press to The Sun

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3—On the anniversary of his accession (Tuesday) the sultan received in audience at the palace the head sof the religious communities and the ecumenical patriarch made a speech of congratulations. In reply thereto, his majesty, contrary to precedent, spoke at some length, saying:

"All my desires are for the welfare of the population, without distinction of race or religion. As to the detestable and regrettable deeds to which the patriarch alluded, I am convinced that the movement does not proceed spontaneously from the population, but is instigation from abroad. I hope the measures taken will insure tranquility. I call God to witness the sincerity of my declaration and that all my aspirations and work are for the welfare and prosperity of all my subjects."

Turning then to the Bulgarian exarch, the sultan bade him communicate his words to his flocks.

Next, addressing the Greek patriarch, the sultan said he regretted the Greek population had also suffered from the recent troubles and declared he would be pleased to contribute to the subscriptions being raised in the patriarchate in behalf of the sufferers.

His majesty further remarked that he was sorry that some of the soldiers had been guilty of acts contrary to his orders and desires.

The sultan personally assured Mgr. Mayan, the Armenian patriarch, that his words applied to Armenians as well as the people of other nationalities.

The porte's note of warning to the embassies and legations, informing them that acording to police information the Bulgarian agitators were projecting outrages against the embassies, legations and public buildings in Constantinople, saying the Ottoman government had taken precaution, and requesting the heads of the foreign missions to do likewise, was issued in consequence of the receipt at the Russian embassy of an anonymous letter threatening outrages at the winter residences of the Russian ambassador and consul general.

PILOT FOR TROOP TRAINS.

By Associated Press to The Sun

SOFIA, Bulgarian, Sept. 3.—The sultan has ordered the vali of Salonica to see that all troop trains are preceded by pilot engines. The Turkish railroad officials are said to have notified the porte that the roads will not convey soldiers without prepayment of the cost of their transportation.

THE RELIEF FUND

IS NOT YET UP TO FIFTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS.

The relief fund for the Riverside park sufferers has not yet reached $15,000, remaining at $14,937.50. The committee hopes that the public will continue their generous offerings, as they would like to see the figures aggregate $20,000.

ACCOUNTS COMMITTEE

MAY HOLD UP SALUTE BILLS AGAIN.

The committee on accounts will meet at city hall tomorrow afternoon at 1.30 o'clock to inspect and approve bills for the month of August.

Among the bills will be that of the military companies for the Fourth of July salutes ordered by the mayor. The committee held up the bills and asked his honor to appear before them and explain the bill. His honor did not appear but sent a letter and the committee at its last meeting read the letter but adjourned without taking action upon the bill. It will not be surprising if the committee finishes its meeting tomorrow without reference to the matter, thus allowing the bill to go over for another month.

THE CITY STREETS

Are Giving Employment to Many Men

LARGE FORCE IN STREET DEPARTMENT

Pavers Working Day and Night

The street department is busy these days and is much in evidence as it is doing considerable work on the principal streets.

Two crews of pavers are working day and night on the sidewalks of the principal streets making much needed repairs. The sidewalk were certainly in a miserable condition when the department tore them up.

With the new brick sidewalks will undoubtedly come several granolithich sidewalks in front of the larger places of business.

The crews are at work macadamizing on Fulton and Bellevue streets and Varnum avenue, while the different carpenters are building fences on Varnum avenue to replace those taken down when the street was widened. Edgestones are also being laid in Varnum avenue.

There are gangs at work scraping streets while two gangs of sweepers are at work on the paved streets, together with 40 sparrow men.

Thus it will be seen that the street department is running full blast at present.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE.

The Colonial Comic Opera Co., presented the pleasing opera "Said Pasha" to a large and appreciative audience at the Lakeview theatre last evening. Despite the fact that this is the second performance of "Said Pasha," during the season the opera is so popular that nothing but large houses have greeted it this week.

Peter Maguire takes the part of "Said Pasha" and plays his part to perfection. He is in good voice and his vocal selections are well applauded. Victor Gilbert, son of James Gilbert, has played in many prominent parts during the season but as "Hassen Bey" he shows off to good advantage. He has a remarkably fine voice and received encore after encore after his rendition of "I Love You." Mr. Gilbert who is quite young, will continue with his musical studies at the close of his engagement at Lakeview and has a bright future before him.

Joseph W. Smith, as "Teranno," the Mexican nobleman, pleases the audience with his voice, which has served as a magnet in drawing patrons to the theatre for the past two seasons. George McFarlane and Ben Lodge, the two fun makers, portray the parts of "Hadad," and "Nockey." Mr. MacFarlane's fine voice grows sweeter and sweeter at every performance and he is by far the best baritone that has ever appeared in this city. Ben Lodge and his "why" furnishes plenty of fun for the audience and when he lights a match "to see if he can lift the cup," he brings down the house. Lodge's funny situations and comicalities will be missed by the patrons of the theatre after Labor Day.

Frank Nelson plays the part of the Rajah, and people who have not seen Mr. Nelson had better make a trip to the theatre before it closes Labor Day. It would be difficult to describe his ability as an actor, for his portrayal of the part is excellent and faultless. He has a powerful voice which brings terror and at the same time pleases the audience.

Esther Barton takes the leading role of "Serena," the Pasha's daughter, and her voice has improved wonderfully over last week. She is lively, witty and her catchy actions and pleasing voice captivate the audience. Blanche Paquette, as "Alli," the ideal queen of Alira, plays her part in an admirable manner and her solo, "Good Night," is loudly applauded. Miss Paquette through her ability as an actress and her good voice has been promoted from the ranks of the chorus to that of a leading role, she being admirably fitted for the latter position. Miss Mae Huntington, a charming little actress, plays the difficult part of "Habah Sojah to perfection. The chorus is also in fine voice.

"Said Pasha" will be repeated afternoon and evening, the last performance being given next Monday evening. The company will then bid adieu to its patrons and the doors of the theatre will be closed until next season.

APPETITE FOR LIQUOR

IMPARTED TO CHILDREN BY MILK THEY DRINK.

By Associated Press to The Sun

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—The theory that germs of an appetite for liquor are imparted to Chicago babies through the medium of milk from cows that eat the refuse from Peoria distilleries has suggested itself to Assistant State Food Inspector R. M. Patterson.

Mr. Patterson has just returned from Peoria, where he found the distillery fed cows whose milk had been regularly shipped to Chicago. He questioned the dairymen to sell no more milk from these cattle.

"I cannot say that I saw any of the cattle under the influence of liquor," said Mr. Patterson, "but I know that the corn mash has a peculiar effect on them and it is against the law to sell such milk."

GRADE CROSSINGS

Committee Will Report to Aldermen

RECOMMENDING PETITION TO SUPERIOR COURT

For Appointment of Grade Crossing Commission

The special committee of the city council on the abolition of grade crossings will meet tomorrow evening with City Engineer Bowers at City Hall, to discuss their recent tour of inspection and formulate a report to the board of aldermen.

It is probable that the committee will ask the aldermen to petition the superior court for the abolition of certain local grade crossings and in that event the superior court will grant the petition and appoint a commission consisting of three men to attend to the work of making the changes, the commission having full and final charge of the work. The commissions in such cases are generally composed of one man representing the city, one representing the railroad, and a third selected by the first two. This commission consults the plans of the city engineer and if it finds it necessary has plans of its own drawn. The work is then done at the city's expense, but the city is later reimbursed. The city stands 10 per cent. of the cost, the railroad 25 per cent. and thestate 65 per cent. The last grade crossing to be removed in this city was that at Pawtucket street.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3—Frank J. Hearne, formerly president of the National Tube company, has been placed in full control of the Colorado Fuel & Iron company. Mr. Hearne, who is said to be the joint choice of the Gould-Rockefeller interests in the company, was elected president of the company and chairman of the board of directors at a meeting held in this city.

No action on the dividend on the preferred stock of the company was taken. The preferred stock, of which $2,000,000 is outstanding, bears interest at the rate of 8 per cent. This dividend is cumulative. It is payable semi-annually in September and April, and the August directors' meeting is the one at which the declaration usually is made.

None of the details of the plan which is being worked out to provide fresh funds to the amount of $13,000,000, was taken up at the meeting.

The executive committee elected consists of F. J. Hearne, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., George Gould, F. T. Gates and John C. Osgood.

QUICK SEWER WORK

Middlesex Street Job Beats the Record

A 2200 Feet Sewer Laid in Less Than Two Months at Two-Thirds of Its Estimated Cost

The sewer committee will meet tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, and act upon new work, as the work laid out some time ago will be finished next Wednesday and the money appropriated all spent.

A gang of 120 sewer employes are at present putting the finishing touches on the Middlesex street sewer and will finish the job next Wednesday.

Supt. Beals is proud of the department's work on the Middlesex street sewer and from all accounts he has reason to be. The work on the sewer was begun on July 14, and on Sept. 9 it will be finished. It is 2200 feet long and 1600 feet is of brick, while the remaining 600 feet is laid with 15-inch pipe. It will be the quickest sewer job on record and will be done for two-thirds of the estimated cost. The city engineer's estimate was $17,000 and the job completed will cost $12,000.

ALASKAN CASE

United States Presents Its Side to Tribunal

Commission Elected Lord Chief Justice Alverstone Chairman—The Oral Arguments Will Begin on September 15

By Associated Press to The Sun

LONDON, Sept. 3.—The Alaskan boundary commissioners held their first meeting this morning in the conference room of the foreign office.

Prior to the formal assembling, the commissioners selected Reginald T. Tower, of the British diplomatic service, formerly attached to the legation at Washington and recently minister to Siam, as secretary. J. R. Carter, second secretary of the United States embassy, and Mr. Pope, a representative of the Canadian government, were appointed assistant secretaries.

Lord Chief Justice Alverstone, was subsequently chosen chairman of the commission.

It was stated that the oral arguments would commence September 15, and Lord Alverstone expressed the hope that they would be finished by October 9.

Lord Alverstone, after formally announcing that the commission was in session, asked counsel when they decided to begin oral arguments. Sir Robert B. Finlay, the attorney-general in behalf of the British counsel, suggested that at least two weeks would be required for preparation, to which John M. Dickinson, representing the American counsel, assented, though he said the American counsel would be ready in a week.

Lord Alverstone asked when the oral arguments would be finished.

Attorney General Finlay suggested October 15, but his lordship remarked that he thought a shorter period was advisable, and October 9 was fixed upon.

The commission decided to sit five days per week, commencing Sept. 15, and excluding Saturdays and they will be in session from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., daily and granted permission for a limited number of representatives of the press to attend the sittings.

In order that the presentation of the cases may be exhaustive, it has been arranged that three of the counsel for each government shall make arguments, the British opening and being followed alternately by Americans and British, the former securing the advantage of delivering the closing argument.

The commission removed the injunction of secrecy on all documents hitherto exchanged and the sitting was adjourned, the commissioners, agents and counsel proceeding to the quadrangle, where they were photographed.

The conference room of the foreign office, where the commissioners meet, is the coolest apartment in the British public building. At the end of the room, a platform had been constructed and on it was a long desk with a blue covering. Behind this desk were six comfortable chairs, which were occupied by the commissioners whose international reputations emphasized the importance of the occasion. Elihu Root and Lord Alverstone sat in the center. Separate tables were provided for counsel.

Canadian counsel were the first to arrive in the chamber. They were followed by John W. Foster, former secretary of state and his assistants, who were accompanied by Ambassador Choate. The commissioners came in a few moments later and immediately began a private conference which resulted in the selection of the officers and at which they exchanged credentials and took the oath required by the treaty.

A few minutes after eleven o'clock the commission took their seats, Senator Turner on the extreme right, then Sir Louis Jette, formerly lieutenant-governor of Quebec; Mr. Root, Lord Alverstone, Senator Lodge, A. B. Aylesworth, Mr. Foster and Clifford Sifton (Canadian minister of the interior.) The agents of the respective governments sat at desks on the extreme right and left of the commission, while counsel and the stenographers occupied desks facing the commissioners.

The documents covering the American presentation of the case are comprised in three volumes, making a total of about 1100 pages. In addition, there also are two volumes of maps. The largest of the volumes of text contains the original statement by the American commissioners while one of the smaller volumes presents the American counter-case in rejoinder to the British case and the other the argument of the American commissioners.

In the first volume the questions at issue, namely, what is intended to be the point of commencement of the line of demarkation between the United States and Canada; what is the Portland channel; what course the line should take to the entrance of that channel; to what point of the 56th parallel the line should be drawn from the head of Portland channel, and other familiar questions are discussed. There also is extensive discussion of the extent of the strip of territory along the coast on the mainland that Russia conveyed to the United States by the treaty of 1867. It appeared from the document that Great Britain concedes that the line begins at Cape Muscon.

The United States contends that it was the contention of the powers that signed the treaty of 1825 to confirm in full sovereignty to Russia a continuous strip or listre along the continental shores of the northwest coast of America extending from Portland channel to the 141st meridian of longitude west of Greenwich, and that such strip was to be ten marine leagues measured from the heads of all gulfs and other arms of the sea, unless there was within that distance a range of mountains. The contention is further made that there is no such mountain range. It also is urged that the United States has occupied this strip of territory ever since its acquisition from Russia and that Russia had controlled it since the treaty of 1825, until ceded to the United States in 1867.

REJOINDER TO BRITISH CLAIMS.

In its counter-statement, the American commission makes rejoinder to points covered in the presentation of the British side of the case, which it appears contains twenty or more documents which heretofore have not been given to the public. The additional evidence referred to bears upon the negotiations which took place between Great Britain and Russia during the years 1823 to 1825 and it is contended that this new evidence in no way alters any material contention made in the original allegations but on the contrary, "it confirms and strengthens the position of the United States."

These documents consist largely of statements made, and letters written by Mr. Pelly, who was at that time deputy governor of the Hudson Bay company, and it is contended that his letters fully sustain the assertion that fixing a line of demarkation the British government acted solely in the interests of that company.

BRITISH PROTESTS FILED.

The commissioners discussed at some length the claims made by their opponents that many protests have been filed by British officials against the American claim in reference to the boundary line. They admit that from time to time there have been formal representations but these they assert were in the main without sufficient data to justify serious consideration. Indeed, they say that never until after the Klondike gold discoveries were made in 1896 did the British government take up the question seriously. They admit that in 1898 attention was called to the claim of the British government that the ten league strip extended only from the main waters of the ocean but they say that this contention was not made absolutely clear until the British case was delivered to the present tribunal on the second of May last. In support of the American contention that the strip should measure from tide-water and from the heads of bays and inlets a number of deposition are produced in connection with the counter-case going to show the occupation of this strip by settlers from the United States since 1880. Special effort is directed toward showing the control of the country about the head of the Lynn canal, including the sites of the towns of Dyea, Skaguay, White Pass and Lake Bennett. It also is stated that numerous documents have been preserved which had been given to Indian chiefs and others by officials of the United States annually for twenty years after the United States acquired the territory. It is contended that this occupation and control were known to the Canadian government and its people.

THE TREATY OF 1825.

Discussing the boundaries proposed by Great Britain, the commission make reference to the instability of the Canadian contention on this point and concludes that "the United States has from the time of the cession of Alaska to the present day, maintained but one interpretation of the treaty of 1825. Its position has been open and known to the world. It is the same which was presented to the tribunal in its case and which it now reiterates in this counter-case."

ARGUMENT IN THE CASE.

The argument in the case is a careful study of maps, treaties, and other documents bearing upon boundary contention and it is intended to drive home the facts presented in the statements to which reference has been made. Considerable space is devoted to the part played by the Klondike gold discoveries in arousing Great Britain's interests in the controversy and in this connection notice is taken on an assertion made by the British commissioners that the towns of Dyea and Skaguay owed their existence to the migration to the Klondike. They assert on the contrary that Dyea was founded in 1886 and Skaguay in 1888. They contradict flatly a contention made by the British commissioners to the effect that "Canada's claim to the territories at the head of Lynn Canal was at the time well known to the United States government."

"This," they say, "is a gratuitous assertion. There is no proof to sustain it. Canada never put forward any such claim to the United States. The claim was first made in 1898 by Great Britain before the joint high commission."

"It is said that 'if the Canadian government had instructed British vessels to disregard these regulations there would have been grave danger of a serious collision.' There undoubtedly would have been a collision, just as certainly as if they had been instructed to disregard the regulations of the port of New York."

Strong exception also is taken to the contention that there was a reservation on the part of Great Britain when the United States volunteered to create a port of entry at Dyea. The argument asserts that whatever reservation there was, was made by a commissioner of customs and that he had no authority in the premises.

BOSTON SUFFERS

IN THE MATTER OF GRAIN FREIGHTS.

By Associated Press to The Sun

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 3.—Western grain shippers through the ports of New York and Boston are loudly complaining that the new transatlantic steamship combine is going to be the death of their trade. The International Mercantile Marine company refuses to carry grain at less than 3 cents a bushel. The consequence is that shipments are being diverted to Canadian and southern ports.

The matter of railroad rates from Chicago to Atlantic ports is also the subject of earnest discussion. It is claimed that it is ridiculous on the part of the trunk lines to charge 7 cents from Chicago to New York, when the Grand Trunk charges only 4½ cents from Chicago to Montreal.

AN IRATE PARENT

Had to Pay a Fine in Court

SEQUEL TO AN ARMENIAN LOVE STORY

Brought Out In Brighton Court

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON Sept. 3.—One of the concluding scenes of a romantic love drama, the romance of which is entwined about two continents, was laid in the Brighton police court yesterday morning. The case was that in which Boghas Mamocomian of Portland, Me., was fined $30 for assaulting Mary Mooradian of 78 Market street, Brighton.

The curtain rang up on this little drama in far-distant Armenia, where Sireniq Mamocomian and a boy named Armiuak, children of close neighbors, played together in the sun-blistered streets of their native town. Inseparable companions were they, although the boy was some four years the older.

One day, in defiance of the customs of their people, they plighted their troth without acquainting their relatives. They were too young to yet think of obtaining the consent of their relatives to the marriage, so they maintained secrecy.

Before either had become of the proper age for the realization of their hopes the family of Sireniq came to America. Armiuak promised to soon follow, and both the youthful lovers vowed to remain constant.

True to his promise, Armiuak soon followed, and after procuring himself a position in the factory of the Hood Rubber company in Watertown, he set out to locate his fiancee. He soon found that she was with her parents in Portland.

Then began a correspondence that sufficed to appease the ardor of these Oriental sweethearts until such time as Armiuak should have learned his trade as a shoemaker and have saved enough money to give his bride a comfortable home.

This portion of his hopes was realized some six months ago, and straight way he made for the Maine metropolis. He declared himself and was accepted, and in accord with an Armenian custom made Papa Mamocomian richer by $150.

The six months' probation had nearly passed and the wedding day was near at hand when Satouik, who was blossoming out into a beautiful specimen of young womanhood, attracted the attention of another ardent young Armenian, who made Papa Mamocomian a flattering offer for his daughter's hand.

The old man, who had often felt the want of a dollar, suddenly became partial to the latter suitor. He, however, did not find favor in the dreamy eyes of the girl, and when her father made known his intention of marrying her to the last suitor on the scene she quietly wrote the fact to Armiuak.

Losing no time, Armiuak journeyed to Portland and the lovers arranged an elopement.

Last Sunday was the date set for this and without any trouble the pair evaded the vigilance of the girl's father and coming to Boston, disappeared.

But papa was not to be beaten so easily, and he at once gave chase.

He easily traced the pair to Boston, but after that the trail became indistinct and he was forced to grope around in search of a clue.

Yesterday morning he received word that his daughter was at the house of Mary Mooradian, on Market street. He lost no time in finding the place and on his arrival he demanded to see his daughter. On Mrs. Mooradian informing him that she was not in her house the irate parent proceeded to avenge his troubles on the crockery ware and anatomy of Mrs. Mooradian. He finally landed in Station 14 and thence to the police court. He was committed, as the necessary $30 was not forthcoming.

When the curtain rang down on yesterday's scene Cupid had the strife well in hand.

WALL STREET GOSSIP.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WALL STREET—10:10 a. m.—The weakness caused in the London by the unexpected advance of one per cent. in the bank of England discount rate was reflected very slightly in the opening market here. Dealings were on a very small scale and while declines predominated, there were a few scattering gains. St. Paul fell 5-8 and running sales of 1000 shares of Achison were at 65 3-4 and 65 1-2 compared with 65 1-2 last night.

11 a.m.—Considerable amounts of Reading were offered for sale during the first hour, which forced the price below 54. Other stocks also weakened. In sympathy. Missouri Pacific, St. Paul and Rock Island lost a point each and other standard stocks substantial fractions. Amalgamated yielded a point, Consolidated Gas 1½, and Metropolitan Street Railway 2%, but the specialties otherwise were neglected.

Noon.—Metropolitan securities broke abruptly 6½ and then rallied 4¾, and Metropolitan Street Railway rallied 2. Pullman lost 2. The general list hardened slightly but was intensely dull. Bonds were dull and irregular.

1 p. m. Efforts to sell Colorado Fuel found a very limited market and the stock was offered down with variations of 1 and 2 points between sales until it reached 34 a drop of 7. The western railroad stocks fell off sharply as do under the leadership of Union Pacific, which declined to 75. Northwestern gave way 2, North American 1½ and Peoples Gas 1.

MAINE FARMERS

Engaged in an Exciting Man Hunt

By Associated Press to The Sun

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 3.—The man hunt which the people of Gorham and vicinity have been keeping up since Friday last to find the man who committed the atrocious assault on 9-year-old Nina Hamblen on that day, has been without result so far, though every police officer in the county and hundreds of citizens are searching day and night for the man.

Last night the police received information that the man wanted may be making tracks for Boston along the line of the railroad, and the search was taken up with renewed vigor and some prospect of success.

Sheriff Pennell has offered a reward of $100 for information regarding the man, but such a stimulus was not needed, for the maddened farmers are only too anxious to find him.

In all directions, in all parts of the county, officers and citizens are seeking the criminal with vigor, and if he is caught summary vengeance may be exacted.

The child may die as a result of the man's assault, and this fact has spurred on the men in the chase.

Owing to a mistake of the Gorham authorities, the assailant gained a start of 24 hours over the officers.

Every farmer, heavily armed, is on the hunt. Horses and buggies are speeding over the country, each carriage containing a farmer ready to shoot if he sees the fugitive.

The southern and western part of the state is flooded with big printed circulars calling upon the citizens for aid. It gives a description of the man wanted, and reads as follows.

"Age, 24 or 26; slight build; height, 5 feet 4 or 5 inches; weight, about 120 pounds; smooth face; absence of beard noticeable; wore dark blue serge suit, black stiff hat, blue and white striped shirt. Look for spots on back of hands."

Suspicious characters are being rounded up in all sections of the country, and anyone approaching the description is pounced upon at once.

Already at least a dozen persons have been taken on suspicion, but each one has furnished a strong alibi, without which he would not have been released.

Interest in the case is spreading all over the state.

All tramps are being stopped and questioned.

One of the officers yesterday rounded up a party of four tramps and cross-examined them at considerable length.

A stranger identified as the hunted man stopped at the Five Points station of the Biddeford & Saco electric road yesterday. Harry Clark, the station agent, who conducts a small store in connection with his railroad duties, told the officers an hour later that a stranger answering to the minutest detail the description shown him by the officers called at his place and bought a glass of ginger ale.

His customer appeared much exhausted, excited and in a hurry. He drank the soda hastily, proffered a nickel in payment and hurried down the road toward Alfred.

If the man is caught by any of the infuriated farmers a lynching bee may result.

SAILORS FIGHT

In a Knife Duel With Thugs

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—Beaten and stabbed in a fierce hand-to-hand knife duel with water front thugs, three sailors of the German steamer Shonfels were saved from being killed in East Boston just after midnight last night by the prompt response to their cries of Patrolman O'Rourke.

One man has a gash three inches deep in his throat, another has an ugly cut over the eye and the third, while not stabbed, was almost beaten to death.

The Shonfels is at the Eastern docks. She got in on Tuesday after a 50 days' voyage from Calcutta. The men were paid off yesterday and went ashore to spend their money in approved sailor fashion. When three of them were crossing the railroad tracks on Marginal street near Orleans, finding their way back to their ship, they were attacked by three toughs. The police say the thugs, knowing that the ship's men would have money about them, lay in wait for any that might return to the vessel late at night.

The sailors were attacked in the darkness of the railroad crossing, and there, struggling and tripping over the tracks, the six men had a hand-to-hand fight. When the thugs found the sailors were not easily subdued they drew knives, and the sailors did also. The sailors yelled loudly in their foreign tongue, and Patrolman O'Rourke came on the run. As soon as the toughs saw him they got away and disappeared in the darkness.

The sailors were carried on board their steamer, seriously hurt, and treated there by a doctor. They cannot speak English and could not give many details. Robbery was the motive, for Patrolman O'Rourke found on the tracks several bundles of clothes which the sailors were carrying, and they were torn and ripped open as if to see what was inside.

The sailors were unable to give any clear description of their assailants.

When a city official wants a reelection to office he should be ready if called upon to show that he had done something to merit a reelection.

Nothing tests a law or anything else like practical application. Under the new automobile law it is found that any boy who can read and write English can get registered as a chauffeur. That is a defect in the law that should be remedied as soon as possible. As it stands now it is a practical inducement to incompetents to get registered. It is a dangerous law. The oversight here evident in the statute shows the results of hasty legislative work.

THE POLICE TO BLAME.

The local police have all to do with the enforcement of the no-license law. When the police court dock is filled with drunks and the police appear against them the conviction must come home to the minds of the spectators that the police are more to blame than the persons who are there to answer the charge of drunkenness. The police are themselves indirectly to blame; but yet they place the entire blame upon the prisoners. Judge Hadley has repeatedly told the officers that the number of drunks in court gives ample proof of the laxity with which the no license law is enforced. The demonstration given early in the year proved conclusively that the law can be enforced. Why this relaxation on the part of the police?

THE JOINT CAUCUS ACT.

An important question to be passed upon by the voters at the state election will be the adoption or rejection of the act providing for joint party caucuses for all political or municipal parties.

If the act be accepted then thereafter all the ward caucuses of all political parties will be held at the same time and place. From the fact that but one primary is provided for each ward there are serious barriers to the practical working of the act in this city. Few if any of the ward rooms would be big enough to accommodate all.

How could all the voters of ward eight be crowded into the Branch street engine house or how could all the voters of ward seven be provided with voting facilities in the Fletcher street engine house? As for ward four it is well known that the Lyon street ward room is packed to suffocation at every democratic caucus. What would be the condition of affairs if all the republicans of the ward had to assemble there and select their candidates at the same time? The thing is an actual impossibility.

Hence unless provision be made for precinct caucuses, which to our mind seems undesirable, there are insuperable obstacles to the practical working of the act in this city. Consequently it would be the best policy for Lowell voters to reject the act this year. By next year there will be a clearer idea of the law and its effect. Its working in other cities will serve to guide the voters of this city. There is no hurry about adopting the new law. We can get along very well with our present mode of selecting candidates. In the long run it may be superior to the new method provided for by the act to be submitted tothe voters in November.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE WATER BOARD.

The eyes of the state are upon us for more reasons than one. The calamitous explosion brought us wide notoriety of a kind that was not at all desirable. But for the explosion we were not responsible, although it spread disaster on all sides.

But immediately after comes an epidemic of typhoid fever that has already cost as many as half a dozen lives. For that epidemic and all the lives it cost the water board is primarily responsible. We have heard the explanation of the water board and most people have accepted it, but in spite of the claim that the source of contamination of our water supply has been shut off, the cases of typhoid continue to appear and the usual percentage of the cases results in death.

There is reason to believe also that the fatalities resulting from the disease are even greater than reported as there are some doctors quite unwilling to let it appear that they lose a typhoid patient. They are ready to assign other causes of death when a typhoid patient succumbs to the disease.

If an individual was run down on the street and killed there would be a great outcry against the guilty party, but here is a case in which as many as half a dozen lives are taken through carelessness or mismanagement on the part of the water board.

The public has demanded that the source of the contamination of our water supply be removed; as still the typhoid cases are becoming more and more numerous. It appears, therefore, that the cause is still operative despite the statement of the waer board.

When is the epidemic to be checked? What steps have been taken to prevent a repetition of the breaks which are said to have caused the trouble?

What steps have been taken to ascertain that all the sources of contamination have been removed or cut off? It would seem that there are still undiscovered sources of contamination as otherwise the epidemic would show signs of subsiding. On the contrary, however, the cases of typhoid reported daily show that the progress of the disease is now almost as great as at any time since its first appearance.

The water board is directly responsible for all, the Locks and Canals company indirectly. In cases where through carelessness or mismanagement a loss of life has resulted, the grand jury has indicted the parties for manslaughter.

The Newark, N. J., case is an example that should be followed in other cities for the public good.

If the water board can show that the Locks and Canals company is guilty then let the responsibility rest upon that company, but until this is proven to the satisfaction of the public the board itself will have to bear the responsibility.

What the public demands now is some assurance that the water furnished the people of this city is pure and free from typhoid germs.

The state board of health made an analysis a short time ago; but that did not show that the water was then free from typhoid germs or even from the evidences of sewage. What has been done since by the water board to purify the city water? It seems that more extraordinary steps may be necessary to purify the water and check the epidemic. The pipes have been flushed and that should carry off the contamination if there was no influx of impurities to the city mains. The water board seems to be satisfied that the source of contamination has been effectually shut off. The steady growth and continuance of the typhoid epidemic seems to prove the contrary. Which is right?

A few smallpox cases would spread great alarm, but already the deaths that have resulted from the typhoid epidemic outnumber the deaths in any of the outbreaks of smallpox during the past decade.

It does seem that the water board scarcely appreciates the seriousness of the situation.

WITH A SHOTGUN

A Bold Burglar Was Held Up

MONEY AND LOOT FOUND IN HIS POCKETS

Says He Lives in New York

By Associated Press to The Sun

BROCKTON, Sept. 3.—James E. Sawyer a West Bridgewater constable delivered for safe keeping at the Central police station yesterday afternoon a young man, who is held there charged with daylight burglary at the home of Mrs. Mary Howland, in West Bridgewater.

He gave his name first as John Enway, then said it was Tony Rose. He said he lived at 11 West street, New York, but had no special residence at present.

Constable Sawyer says that George Shipman of West Bridgewater saw the man leave an electric car just before noon and go boldly to the front door of Mrs. Howland's home, unlock it and walk in.

Shipman knew that Mrs. Howland was away, and so got his shotgun and went over to the house on West Center street. The burglar leaped out of the window and Shipman held him up. The man was later turned over to Constable Sawyer, who handcuffed him and brought him here for appearance in the police court today.

When searched the man had $9 in one pocket and $3 and some change in another. He said he got the $9 at West Bridgewater, but the $3 were his. His pockets also contained two gold rings, a gold plated key chain, attached to a bunch of keys, gold watch and chain, cigar case, bottle of perfumery, gold-bowed spectacles, pair of kid gloves and a book containing a large number of names and addresses of different places.

He said he was 29 years old. He is of dark complexion, 5 feet 4½ inches in height, and has blue eyes. After his arrest the man handed the officer a small box, which he said he found in the house where he was arrested. It contained a pair of sleeve buttons, gold neck chain and a ring. He intimated that he had made another break in West Bridgewater earlier in the day, and that he might have a confederate working in the town.

Officer Crocker of Holbrook has been notified and may try to connect the man with some recent breaks in his town, which are supposed to have been committed by a dark-complexioned man, and it is thought he may be the man who worked so boldly recently in Whitman.

Albert Dowd, the 17-year-old boy who went away with $130 of his father's money while the latter was attending a ball game at Spalding park last Monday, was arrested for the Lowell police in Providence, R. I., yesterday. Inspector Donaldson went to Providence for young Dowd today. In consequence of information received by Lieut. Brosnan, who is acting night captain in the absence of Captain Kew, he decided that young Dowd had gone to Providence and telephoned the police of that place to be on the lookout for him, with the result that his arrest followed. The boy's home is at 393 Mammoth road.

WALTHOUR'S RACE

Caldwell Defeated by the Champion

By Associated Press to The Sun

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 3—Bobby Walthour defeated Harry Caldwell by one and a half laps last night at the Coliseum in one of the fastest 20-mile motor paced races that has ever been ridden on this track. State records from eleven to eighteen miles were broken by Caldwell but he was beaten in the last mile through losing his pace. Walthour changed motors early in the race with one of the prettiest pick-ups that has ever been made on a bicycle track. Walthour finished the race behind Hunter, who was riding the "Red Devil," on which the rear tire had been worn down to the canvas, causing it to slip on the banks. Both pace maker and rider continued their record-breaking clip with full knowledge of their peril. The 15 miles was reeled off by Caldwell in 18.58.3, a state record, while the 20-mile was in 25.31.2. The two-mile handicap was won by F. Keighley of this city and the five mile open by Marcus Hurley of New York.

AT HIGH SPEED

UNKNOWN AUTO STRUCK AND KNOCKED DOWN MAN.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WORCESTER, Sept. 3.—Israel Rose, 69 years old, an East Brookfield farmer and father of 18 children, was struck by an unknown automobile and fatally injured, near the corner of Main and Tirrell streets, in this city, about 10 o'clock last night.

He was standing on an electric car toward the center of the city, but left it at the corner of Tirrell street to wait for a Spencer-bound car to take him home. As he stepped from behind the car he came directly in front of an auto running at great speed toward Leicester.

The drivers of the automobile did not slacken their speed a particle, but kept on their wild run. Rose was thrown to the stone pavement with tremendous force and received a lacerated scalp wound, and when picked up was unconscious.

He was taken to the City hospital in the ambulance, and the physicians say he is suffering from concussion of the brain.

The identity of the auto and its occupants is unknown, but the police have started a hunt for the men who are responsible for the accident.

THE WHITE HOUSE

HAS BEEN REOPENED TO THE PUBLIC.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—After being closed several weeks, while the interior was being renovated, the White House was again opened to visitors yesterday. A large number of tourists went through the east room and the basement and first floor hallways. The three parlors and state dining room can be seen from the hallways of the first floor, to which visitors are admitted.

The ceilings of the parlors are covered with white cotton cloth so as to protect them during the summer season, and much of the furniture is likewise covered. The piano in the east room has been taken to New York for repairs.

This is the gold-leaf piano presented to the White House by one of the large piano concerns of the country. It was used at musicales and concerts last winter and will be again in use this winter.

N. E. STATISTICS

FIGURES SHOWING THE NATIVE BORN POPULATION.

The latest bulletin of the Boston statistics department contains a compilation from the reports of the twelfth census that shows by states and territories the distribution of New England born and Massachusetts-born population. It appears that there are 3,811,-295 native-born persons in New England. Of these, 1,660,223 or 43.56 per cent., were born in Massachusetts. Of the 528,450 persons contributed by New England to other states and territories, 183,194 or 34.66 per cent. were born in Massachusetts. Maine has the largest percentage of persons born within the state and still living there—93.24 per cent. Rhode Island has the smallest—72.70 per cent. New Hampshire has the largest percentage of persons born in other New England states and Maine the smallest, the figures being 20.16 per cent. and 4.61 per cent., respectively. In Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island the largest percentage of the persons born in other states comes from Massachusetts; in Vermont and Connecticut the largest percentage comes from New York; in Massachusetts, from Maine. The total Massachusetts-born white population of this state numbers 1,543,089. Of these, 748,998 are of native parentage and 781,831 of foreign parentage, while 12,265 are classed as colored—the latter designation covering negroes, Chinese, Japanese and Indians. The total New England-born population of Massachusetts is 1,804,423. Of this, 950,-138 are of native parentage and 840,-696 of foreign parentage. The total American-born population of the state is 1,950,022, comprising 1,032,264 of native parentage and 897,386 of foreign parentage, besides 29,372 classed as colored. Of the states outside of New England, New York furnishes the largest number of Massachusetts residents—a total of 70,220. Pennsylvania comes next, with 11,030. It is notable that 5238 natives of Ohio live in Massachusetts, 4913 natives of Illinois and 1810 of California. In the population of Massachusetts natives of every state and territory of the American Union, together with the District of Columbia, and also of Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippines, are included. The smallest contribution to our population is made by Alaska, which is represented by nine persons born there. Next come the Philippines with eleven persons.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling has decided that for purposes affecting deserters from the United States navy, the Spanish war ended December 10, 1898, the date of the signing of the treaty of peace. This conclusion disagrees with a ruling of the war department to the effect that the war was not closed for a demonstration purpose in that department until April 11, 1899, the date of the exchange of ratifications of the treaty.

Discourses on Ways and Means of Having the Good Times Usually Enjoyed Only by Girls Born With a Silver Spoon. Raps Higher Education. Praises Country Life -:-

THE poor envy the rich for many reasons, but to my mind the one great advantage the latter have is the power of leading healthful, strength giving, wholesome, well rounded lives—that is, if they choose to do so, which they unfortunately often do not. The man or woman of money has the great advantage of being able to live much in the open air and of enjoying all the year round sports which are events to other people—horseback riding, hunting, polo and long cruises on beautiful yachts to foreign shores and over wind swept oceans.

The girl with money can improve herself in a thousand ways. If she is born homely, with a poor complexion or a scrawny neck, these can be remedied by costly treatment and massage. She cannot help being graceful because from her earliest years she has graceful examples set before her, she learns suavity from her French nurse and dainty posings in the smart dancing class she attends from babyhood. She is not allowed to grow sallow over problems which confront hard working girls nor dim her eyes with too much study. She has just enough book knowledge to enable her to carry on a conversation, and the rest is obtained by travel and association with clever people—the very best knowledge in the world. Then, too, she knows the thousand and one things so much more necessary than mere book learning. She can sail a boat, help lead a cotillon, play golf, ride to hounds, drive a four-in-hand, shoot, swim and fence, not to speak of ordering an intricate household. Above all she starts in life fearless, independent and with a sound brain in a sound body.

Useless Book Knowledge.

But cannot the girl with moderate means imitate her in some respects, or rather cannot the parents of the girl in moderate circumstances follow the same idea, for they have the ordering of that girl's life? If you and I will look upon our girlhood we can count the money which was wasted in teaching us useless things—things that now bring us neither profit nor pleasure. The higher education is all very well for certain girls, but it is a poor education for the average one. The girl I mean who does not look with scorn upon marriage and who hopes for a little home of her own and a reasonable amount of society, be it exalted or otherwise.

For instance, if you cannot afford both it is better to have a girl taught dancing than Greek. She will forget the Greek after the first year of her married life (if not before), and if she is a bad dancer she will be forever out of things and will miss at least a third of the good times going. A good dancer is always at her ease and is bound to be a social success. She is a woman her husband is proud to take around, for although a man may not care for that sort of thing himself he does not particularly like to see his wife a wallflower.

A course of massage treatment of a skinny neck—treatment which will enable its owner to wear a dinner gown and look attractive in in the evening, is far preferable to the ability to converse about social economy or higher mathematics.

She can play golf.

I certainly am not in favor of anything which is aimless—education or anything else.

Even the girl who makes her own way in the world, who has to earn her bread and butter—not to speak of jam—may come in on this. (Dear me, how slangy I am getting!)

I know of one girl, a schoolteacher, who has given herself horseback lessons and singing lessons, both great sources of enjoyment to herself and her friends. Another girl has divided her wages in three parts, one for living expenses, one for necessary clothes, the third for self improvement. Most girls spend it all for clothes.

And Why the City?

Then, too, there is this to be considered: Why live in a city cooped up in any sort of a small, dark apartment for the sake of sleeping and eating next to the Greatroxes and the Van Dollars, who never in the world bother their heads about one, when one can live in a pretty little suburb, enjoy real healthy country life, golf, driving, etc., for the same price one pays for the stuffy little apartment in town.

The sentiment in favor of suburbs is rapidly growing. The Saturday half holiday, the better rapid transit accommodations, and, above all, the gay yet wholesome suburban society life are responsible for this. In former times to live in the suburbs meant to be buried alive. Now it is no such thing. People of moderate means can have a better time in a small suburb or town than they can in the city. Golf and country clubs are responsible for this, and it is a fact that in many cases the owners of town sites have actually paid for the erection of a country club in order to attract residents. So, you see, it has become an important and recognized factor.

We are certainly learning to live, to enjoy existence in the English and the French manner, and not to gallop through it eating indigestible food served in any old way, living in overcrowded and badly ventilated houses and going through life ignoring all its finer points, as foreigners have accused us of doing.

The Glorious American Girl.

The anæmic, stoop shouldered, peevish, overdressed American girl has disappeared. In her place stands a splendid athletic, wholesome young creature, and suburban and out of door life is largely responsible for her.

I have a prophetic feeling that the time will come when women will have their own athletic and their own yacht clubs. Why, if you please, cannot two women go off for a summer vacation on a cat-boat or a small yacht without losing any of their womanliness? Men have such a jolly time that way. Last week I went aboard a little yacht on which two men had cruised around all summer, merely running in for a few days in the harbor of a yacht club, the courtesy of any number of clubs being always extended to a man belonging to one good one. The little boat was fitted with everything one could desire, and there was a delightful afterdeck, where the owner and his chum could sit and enjoy their cigars as their yacht swept along through the blue summer seas. That I do call a vacation—not this stuffy hotel life, with its gossip, its overdressing and its dearth of any real enjoyment.

A splendid, wholesome young creature.

PATENT LEATHER PRECEPTS.

Patent leather shoes and boots need special care to keep them nice. When they are fresh and new they should be wiped after every wearing and put away in some place, secure from dust, where the air is neither too hot nor too cold. Extremes of temperature injure the leather. When the shoes begin to show signs of wear they should be wiped with a sponge and warm water, and, after being carefully dried, should be brushed over lightly with patent leather varnish sold for the purpose. Remember never to put patent leather near the fire, for the heat is very likely to crack it.

BEAUTIFUL CHINA.

One of the most attractive dinner sets seen in the displays of summer china is royal dresden copied from a very old design. The sole decoration is a single rose spray in the middle of each piece. A most realistic rosebud tops the covers of the sugar bowls, tea and coffee pots and the smaller covered dishes.

THE SOCIAL WAR OF A DUCHESS

IT appears that Constance Edwina Cornwallis-West, known as Shelagh Cornwallis-West before her marriage to his grace Hugh Richard Arthur Grosvenor, second duke of Westminster, variously likewise earl and marquis of this, that and the other, has set her little head and her English foot against the further social recognition of American women in British society, has snubbed them even to the point of very un-lish bred rudeness.

Shelagh, Shelagh, why did you do it?

You should have no particular grudge against American ladies. You yourself have a good enough position. Your husband has an income of $5 a minute, so 'tis said. While you are not nearly so beautiful or fascinating as many of the American women in London society, it is said that you know how to dress almost as well as they do, which is to your credit. It is true that, just on the eve of your marriage to 'is grace, 'is grace was served with a summons to appear in an unpleasant lawsuit brought by an enraged member of the British military, but then that has dropped out of mind; you got your big blond duke safe enough and should not have become soured against us, particularly as no American woman had anything to do with that unpleasant law case. You got your dukelet. True, it is more than possible that if the dukelet had been very poor instead of very rich he would have chosen for his wife not you, but the daughter of some healthy, hard working American billionaire, a girl who could get him out of bankruptcy, support him handsomely, brace him up and stand behind him while he took his seat in the house of lords and finally establish, to go along with his strawberry leaf title, a really noble family line. She would have done this all by virtue of her strong, clean, working people's blood.

Duchess of Westminster.

But it did not happen. Your dukelet is rich because his grandfather, the first duke, increased his fortune by methods akin to those in vogue among plebeian American money "magnets," as they are sometimes called. He knew how to juggle his income returns with the best of them, that first duke. I have read a letter of his to a newspaper protesting hotly against the "wild guesses" as to the amount of his income that were published sometimes. He said report made him out more than twice as rich as he was. But the fact remains that he never would tell exactly how rich he was. A recent English writer confesses: "In these days there is always something peculiarly fascinating about the possession of great wealth." Just so.

Was it because she is so radiantly beautiful that you began your assault on American women by cruelly snubbing sweet, innocent Gladys Deacon in your husband's box at the Chester races? You are not nearly so beautiful or so "stylish" as Miss Deacon, not nearly so handsome and fascinating as your own mother was when she belonged to the "Prince of Wales' set," but then you are good looking enough and well dressed enough not to display jealousy toward American ladies. Worst of all, you let your husband display the same rudeness to the sweet American girl when Colonel and Mrs. Cornwallis-West brought Miss Deacon to the Westminster stand at the races—even though Cornwallis-West is your own brother and a gallant soldier and a gentleman. You are young, but then you are older than your husband, and you ought to have toned him down by this time to observe at least common courtesy and good manners.

You have much to learn, Shelagh. The sooner you learn it the better for yourself. Know, first of all, you cannot possibly hurt American ladies socially. You are bucking against the band wagon when you attempt it. Already you begin to get your "comeuppance." That ball of yours, which was to be the social event of 1903 and to which you omitted to send invitations to every American woman in London society whom you dared leave out—did you not on that account receive a direct social slap in the face from your king, Albert Edward himself? He declined to attend your ball at all; the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the king's brother and sister-in-law, also refused to attend, and the actual reason was that you had snubbed American ladies who are the friends of royalty.

When he was only Prince of Wales, Albert Edward was noted for his heartfulness and genuine kindness of heart. He was too well bred to manifest toward persons entitled to respect the rudeness you and your husband were guilty of at the Chester races and your ball. How did you feel when, at that ball, your biggest lion was a young lady who had been an actress on the variety stage? It was nothing against the young lady; quite the contrary. But after all it wasn't quite like having the king and the Duke of Connaught among your guests, was it?

The good will Albert Edward showed to Americans socially when he was Prince of Wales he manifests still in the larger national field, and the American people appreciate it. There is a dream among thinkers who dwell in the United Kingdom on your side of the water, those in our great republic this side of the Atlantic, those, too, who inhabit the great continent of far-away southwestern seas among these, I say, there is a dream that English speaking peoples, united in the common aims of human brotherhood, will be called to hold the vanguard of human civilization itself against the destructive forces even now making inroads on it. The English speaking peoples, Americans, Irish, Scotch, Canadians, English, Australians, all of them form the most powerful, most intelligent, most prosperous brotherhood ever united by common ties of kinship and the love of liberty, law and order. Human destiny itself, upward moving, glorious, demands that they go forward together, upholding one another's hands, brotherly. And you think you'll stop it by administering your infantile snub to a couple of American ladies in London society!

Heaven have mercy on your soul! Heaven broaden you to a comprehension of that larger, kindlier, sweeter wisdom which radiates ever from the soul of true womanhood!

What's the good, Shelagh?

You can't do it. Your own kin and fellow countrymen will rise up against you. If American women have in British society a vogue that you are jealous of, who are to blame for it but Englishmen themselves, sprigs of young nobility who came over here and, with tears in their eyes, as it were, besought rich American girls to marry them and keep them out of the poorhouse, or at least relieve them from the necessity of shipping as table waiters on the transatlantic steamers. There be sons of British lords who are that very thing today, Shelagh.

Whether the millionaire American girls did well to take the noblemen is neither here nor there. Considering how women like you have sometimes treated our American ladies when they have thus rescued your Englishmen from the bankruptcy court, if not worse, it would probably have been just as well if they had stayed on their own side of the water and married just chivalrous, plain American husbands. But something must perhaps be forgiven to the natural jealousy the attractive American girl arouses in the British feminine breast.

Or is it because you don't like your brilliant and bruhy American sister-in-law, young Cornwallis-West's wife, that you thus leap into the arena with a war whoop against all American women? Who knows? But, finally, I permit myself to commend to your consideration two general propositions. The first—one who attempts to stir up race prejudice is an enemy to civilization. The second it is the mark of crassest, most ignorant provincialism to hold one's own town superior to other people's towns. See?

ADVANCE FALL COSTUME OF BLUE BROADCLOTH.

SALT AND PEPPER MIXTURE BOX COAT.

PAPER NAPERY AND TABLEWARE.

Everything in the shape of doilies, casserole frills and sherbet cups is now made of paper. They are as dainty as possible and are made to imitate the beautiful Teneriffe work, Mexican drawn work and all lace patterns in the most wonderful manner. Despite their fragile appearance they are proof against liquids and do not get soggy. Salad and ice cream cases come in a variety of pleasing forms, and it is possible to carry out a color scheme with trifling expense.

For children's parties these paper dishes, supplemented by paper napkins, will relieve the anxious hostess of much apprehension in regard to breakage. For picnics they are invaluable. Not only do they save the bother of packing up and carrying home dishes, but they add materially to the beauty of the occasion.

FOR WOMEN CYCLERS.

Lady Marjorie, in the Cycle, says:

"I should like to ask all my friends to cultivate a pleasant, cheerful expression when cycling. So many girls when learning pucker their brows and look so terribly anxious and uncomfortable that when the ordeal of their initiate is over the strained look upon their faces becomes a habit and is very difficult to overcome. Keeping the eye fixed rigidly upon the front wheel or looking anxiously ahead for troubles in the way of approaching vehicles, hills, etc., educates this habit.

"Sit up and smile and look happy. You will find how much more you will enjoy your ride and with what a different aspect your friends will look upon cycling as a woman's pastime."

AN ILLITERATE ANTI.

A man opposed to woman suffrage sent to the Woman's Journal a document setting forth his principles in the following remarkable grammar and spelling:

"When arguening the right of Woman's Suffrage you claime that Women ought to have a right to vote because she payes taxes. Allow me to inform you that Women do not pay taxes. A person tax is Poll tax (and this alone men have to pay). Taxes on property, is property, tax and the property pays it. If women ar allowed to vote they ought to pay Poll tax, to be equil with men. From one who is in favor of women attending to their buisness which is household dutis, and men attending to theirs."

Bound to be a social success.

SHORT BROWN WOOLEN STREET COSTUME.

THE DUCHESS OF SUTHERLAND AS A COMMERCIAL TRAVELER.

The Duchess of Sutherland, who is gifted with a spirit which never wearies of doing good, showed her enthusiasm for improving the condition of the highland crofters in a characteristic fashion during a recent visit to Russia. She took with her several trunks filled with samples of the tweeds made by the Scottish peasantry, whom she and other ladies are so anxious to serve. Then she sent round to the tailors and invited them to inspect the goods and give orders for them. In this way she expects to open up a new market and thus benefit those whom she is desirous of helping in the best possible way—by enabling them to help themselves.

WHAT PRICE WEDDING?

We have grown up with the idea of different classes of funerals. In Paris the same sort of thing is done with regard to weddings, and the result strikes one as decidedly peculiar. People who wish to take one another "for better, for worse" can do so in one of ten different classes. A first class wedding costs $115, the second class runs into $95, while the nuptial knot may be tied in the tenth class for $1.20. "Why should two people spend even a dollar to be made thoroughly miserable for life?" is what a cynic said. Happily the world is not made up of cynics.

FALCONRY.

One of the fads of the fashionable society woman in England is falconry, and this old fashioned sport has quite superseded the joys of hunting, shooting and fishing. It is a very expensive amusement. A perfectly trained hawk costs about $500. The Duchess of Marlborough is particularly interested in this picturesque sport, one of its great advantages being that it can be followed all the year round.

THE BREATHING FAD

IT is not all a fad, or even half a fad.

Scientists agree that the air contains in itself the elements of human food, if man only knew how to extract them and combine them properly. It is believed, too, that the sun's rays convey to earth the germs of all life—that they are in the atmosphere. The more air we can breathe, therefore, and the purer it is, the more of both life and nourishment we shall draw into us. Hence the meaning is easily comprehended of Eleanor Kirk's famous saying, "Eat some air."

It is not enough to breathe as the quadrupeds do. We who have intelligence can improve on them, can develop and increase the power, health, endurance and beauty of our bodies till they are the fit housing of immortal souls. There is a breathing to be learned that will of itself help lift us to the plane of constant joy and elasticity.

The crown of womanhood is perfect health. To gain this we should use all the means at our command. Fortunately the essential materials to this end were also wisely ordained to be the cheapest, and they are air and water. The frequent bathing of the body and the habit of drinking plenty of water form an important part of the beginning of wisdom toward getting perfect health. Next undoubtedly comes habitual deep breathing, thorough aeration of the blood. You cannot have this and wear tight corsets or any confining bands about the waist. It is impossible. Let me give you the process of breathing for health, not merely for animal existence.

Have all your clothing entirely loose. Then begin and fill yourself with air, slowly, slowly. Make no effort to swell your body. It will swell itself if you just let it. Do not make any effort to breathe with your nostrils. The nostrils are merely passages to let the pure air in and the exhausted air out. The breathing effort itself should be made from the very center of your body.

Note how the great, splendid bulk of air you take in raises your chest and enlarges it. This is the true lifting of the chest you read so much about. After you have noted how the long, deep breath lifts your chest to a beautiful fullness, resolve to yourself that henceforth you will make yourself habitually carry your chest in that noble, elevated manner and then do it. The lifted chest must be kept so by the muscles about the waist, which some women allow to sag and weaken in so disgraceful a manner.

After you have slowly drawn in all the air you can hold—and you must feel as though your whole body is full of air from your toes up—then proceed to exhale. Do this slowly, taking fully as much time to exhale as you did to inhale. This is an important point in breathing instructions, that we shall exhale a breath as slowly as we inhale it. Oriental teachers enjoin this specially on their disciples.

Acquire the habit of breathing as above and you will wonder at the excellent results that follow. Have the air always the purest you can get. Half of the colds, grips and pneumonia attacks would be avoided if people ventilated their sleeping rooms properly. Immortal human beings ought at least to provide for themselves as good ventilation as furmen provide for a race horse. It will help you much to think always that when you breathe deeply and fully you are taking in food in its purest form, which is the actual fact. Remember this and nourish yourself duly.

When you are very weary and nerveless, try the effect of the following breathing process: Have your clothing entirely free. Lie flat upon your back, out straight, every muscle in your body relaxed. Especially let the muscles around your forehead, eyes, mouth and the base of the brain lie so loose that you are not conscious of them. After having thus relaxed, begin and breathe slowly and fully from the lowest point of your body, at the very tip of the spine. Think of the breath as being drawn to this point while you inhale. Then exhale slowly and think of a nerve current as passing from the tip of your spine up the spinal cord into your brain. If you do this and note carefully you will feel an actual vibratory sensation quivering at the base of your brain and up into your head and eyes. Practice this breathing five to ten minutes at a time, especially after you are done work in the evening, and you will find it exceedingly restful and life giving. MARY GOULD LYTLE.

NEW CAR LINE

Will Connect Lowell With Manchester

AND MANCHESTER WITH THE SEA

Connects With Pelham Line at Hudson

A new electric car line is in process of construction which will connect with the Pelham-Hudson line near Hudson and make direct connection with Manchester and the other cities and towns in the contemplated route.

The new route will thus give Manchester people a direct trip by trolley to the sea.

It is understood that another road connecting Manchester with the Hudson & Pelham line, by a more direct route, is under contemplation but the road now in process of construction appears to have met with the favor of the railway people, probably because it goes through a more thickly populated country. The road-bed of this new line has been built mostly through private land, thus insuring speed and comfort.

With the increased traffic that will follow the new road, it is thought that a double track will be built between Pelham and Nashua.

The Electric Railway Employes' Mutual Relief association is planning a lively winter season.

A new entertainment committee has been appointed as follows: E. E. Blaisdell, C. C. Gabrielle, Mose Sweeney, Otis Giles and Pearl Atwood. Mr. Atwood was also appointed to the investigating committee in place of E. Webber, who has left town.

MILLIONAIRE'S SON

SAYS PAWN TICKET IS HIS ONLY ASSET.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Charles Emil Rubsamen of Passaic, N. J., a son of the late Charles L. Rubsamen, who amassed a fortune of several millions in the silk business, owes Mrs. Grace M. Fredericks of 107 West 103d street, this city, $680.47 for board and lodging for himself and a woman and for borrowed money. The young man pleads his inability to settle the bill.

Mr. Rubsamen was examined in supplementary proceedings by Mrs. Fredericks' lawyer, William P. Burr of 35 Nassau street. He said his total assets were one pawn ticket, representing a watch and chain given to him last Christmas by his mother and pawned next day. The ticket he had turned over to his brother Ernest.

Rubsamen has a wife and four children in Passaic, but contributes nothing to their support. The brother, who holds the pawn ticket, says Charles owes him at least $2,000.

DOG SUFFOCATED

THIEVES KILL ANIMAL AT BRIDGEWATER AND RIFLE HOUSE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BRIDGEWATER, Sept. 3—The house on South street, occupied by Justin Hill, was entered by burglars yesterday during the absence of the family, and a sum of money secured.

The thieves found a hound that the family had left at home. The dog was hitched to a hogshead which was used as a kennel, and this the thieves turned over on the animal and suffocated him.

STAY OF LIFE

AGED DOG HAS MADE A GREAT FIGHT.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WINSTED, Conn., Sept. 3.—After persistent but unsuccessful efforts to kill him, a bulldog belonging to Jeremiah Falvey of the Cyclone Hill district, has been granted another stay of life.

Because of its advanced age the dog became a nuisance to Mr. Falvey's mother, and a few weeks ago she engaged Benjamin Morgan to kill it. Morgan fired a dozen shots at the dog, but only one took effect, that passing through the ear. The dog was then given some poisoned meat and buried in a lot some distance in the rear of the Falvey house.

To the surprise of Mrs. Falvey, the dog reappeared the following day.

Yesterday Falvey took the dog out in a boat in the lake, tied a rope around its neck, and after fastening a large stone to the other end of the rope, threw the dog, rope and stone into the water.

Falvey had arrived home and was telling his mother that he bet the bulldog would return again when sure enough the dog came walking into the dooryard with the cord still around its neck.

Mrs. Falvey has now decided to keep the dog till it dies a natural death.

POLO NOTES.

Walter E. Petty, manager of the Muncie polo team, has his team made up for the season of 1903-04, and as it is made up mostly from the members of the champion Lowell team for two years, there is little doubt but that Muncie will land the pennant.

Eddie Higgins, of Providence, will play first rush, while his partner will be "Bob" Hart. Fred Jean will captain the team and play at centre, while little Tommy Holderness will be at his old position at half back. Davy Cusick, the champion club swinger, will occupy a position in front of the cage.

In regard to the make-up of the team, the Muncie Star has the following:

Polo fans of Muncie could have asked Manager Petty to do but little better. Each of the five men signed has played in this city and have a host of admirers and friends here. Their ability to play polo and play it in championship form is unquestioned. With five such men Muncie ought to head the rakewalk next season. All that is necessary is the development of team work. With Fred Jean, the famous center who led the champion Lowell team to victory for two seasons, to captain this team, it will soon be working like a clock.

It is hardly necessary to mention the players individually. Eddie Higgins won a home in Muncie two years ago when his brilliant work brought the fans to their feet in every game. There is hardly a faster man in the game. "Bobby" Hart will make a good mate. He is fast, has the weight and can drive at the nets from any direction.

Fred Jean is in a class by himself as a middleman. Wherever he has played the followers of the game have accorded him the honor of being the peerless player of all players. As a half-back Tommy Holderness is little but he is mighty. For two years he played half-back on the champion Lowell team. Dave Cusick will receive a royal welcome back to Muncie. The flaxen-haired boy played a brilliant game before the basket last year under adverse circumstances. The defense of the team before him was not as strong as it should have been. Cusick worked like a Trojan in every game and kept at the head of the goal tenders with ease.

The announcement of the line-up will make the fans doubly anxious to see the season reopen. Manager Petty will be congratulated in getting the team that he has signed for next year, according to his telegram.

CYCLE NEWS

It remained for the giant from the hills of Old New Hampshire to smash the hour record, completing over fifty miles in the sixty minutes, and but for the fact that his pacing machine went to the bad during the latter part of the race he would have ground out over 51 miles during the hour. He rode on an average of a 1.12 clip for every mile, but prior to the 46th mile he was going at the rate of 1.10. His fastest mile was the 45th which he covered in 1.09 3-5, but the 46th was the fatal mile, his time for that one being 1.23. This was due to the fact that his machine got out of order and he went several laps unpaced. It was hard luck for Harry after working so hard, but there is little doubt but that he will cover the 51 miles or possibly 52 before the end of the season.

The same Harry Caldwell who was scheduled to appear at the local coliseum to meet Wallhour, but who had to cancel his engagement after two postponements, will meet George Leander, the six-day champion, at the coliseum track tomorrow. Leander is going good, having defeated Lawson and Stinson at Providence on Monday night.

Tonight Bobby Wallhour, who rode circles around Stinson, will meet Gussie Lawson, the terrible Swede, in a fifteen-mile motor paced race at the coliseum in Lakeview avenue. Nelson was supposed to meet Lawson, but owing to the former's illness Wallhour was substituted.

On Saturday night the winners of the two previous nights will meet and the wise ones have picked Wallhour and Caldwell as the winners. If the above named riders win their races the race on Saturday night will be one of the best that can be billed.

DIAMOND NOTES.

It kind of looks as if the pennant would float o'er the Lake.

Manager Patsey Donovan of the St. Louis National League club was a spectator at yesterday's game. Manager Donavon was favorably impressed with the work of the Lawrence team and said that the New England league patrons were seeing as good baseball as any minor league in the country furnished.—Lawrence Sun.

Tom McCarthy made a great stunt with New Bedford Tuesday. In the first game he got one hit and in the second, three hits. He scored five chances without an error and made three runs.

Nashua has the series with Manchester, having won nine out of the fifteen games. Lowell won three and lost one game to Manchester, while Conroy won four and lost one. Morrissey pitched five games against Nashua, winning two and losing three. The best four games played have been victories for Nashua.

The Manchester Union gives this account of the trouble:

In addition to the wretched exhibition given by the local players, Mr. Kerins, umpire, rendered a few decisions that were poor, but which were of the same calibre that he has been handing out since his appearance in this city. The appearance of such a man as Kerins on a ball field is enough to take the gimp out of any ball team. On two or three occasions yesterday Kerins allowed the visitors to kill time by throwing the ball about the diamond.

Again in the second inning, when Whiting jostled him about the diamond, and poked him in the ribs, he wanted to fight, and had it not been for the interference of the players there would have been a slugging match instead of a ball game.

The row started as the result of Kerins calling a ball on Hafford, which it was plain to see struck him on the elbow. The ball bounded back to the stand. Hooker was on first base, and he went to second and continued to third. Whiting and the umpire had engaged in conversation and the other players were also taking a hand. Cote threw the ball to Rapp, who did not see it, and Hooker came in. In the meantime Whiting rushed at Kerins and poked him in the ribs. Kerins ordered him off the grounds, and Whiting threw his glove at him, hitting him in the head. Kerins then rushed at Whiting, when the police came into evidence and put a stop to the proceedings. Whiting was benched, and Leith took his place. Whiting's conduct was uncalled for, but Kerins should have shown that he was running the game, and not attempt to give an exhibition of a fight.

In the second inning Kane had his finger hurt, and he retired in favor of Murray, who came in from center field. Graham went to center and Merrissey to right, and in this way the Manchesters finished out the game.

After the game Kerins made a monkey out of Whiting before many spectators. He went into the hotel where both teams were and told Whiting that if the latter was desirous of showing his ability as a scrapper, he would accommodate him forthwith, and would go any place with him that he might designate. Whiting promptly quit.

DESIGNING SCHOOL

FALL RIVER WILL HAVE ONE WORTH $100,000.

By Associated Press to The Sun

FALL RIVER, Sept. 3—The announcement was made yesterday that William Lindsay of London, Eng., would present the city of Fall River with a building to cost, with equipment, $100,000, to be used as a school of draughting and designing in connection with the Bradford Durfee Textile school, now practically ready for dedication and occupancy.

The donor was born, raised and educated in this city. In recent years he has made a large fortune in London. The building will adjoin the textile school on Elm street, and will be known as the William Lindsay school in honor of the donor's father, who was for many years a leading manufacturer and treasurer of the Weetamoe mills.

WILL GO TO JURY

Supreme Court Decides on McDermott Case

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—The suit for $10,000 damages for personal injuries brought by Margaret Irene McDermott against the Boston Elevated company will be submitted to a jury. The supreme court yesterday sustained exceptions taken by the plaintiff to the ruling of the superior court on motion of the defendant that for want of due care the plaintiff could not recover. The ruling was made at the close of the evidence for the plaintiff at the trial sometime ago.

The plaintiff, aged six years, was on her way to school at the time of the accident at the intersection of Highland avenue with Cherry street, Somerville. Several of her playmates had crossed the street and she followed but as she reached the track the car came along, knocking her down.

The court says: "The plaintiff was properly on the crosswalk where foot travelers crossing Highland avenue at that point would be and had a right to rely on the presumption that the servants of the defendant, knowing the use of the walk by children going to the Burns school, would pay that regard to those lawfully in the street at that place which reasonable care and diligence required. It might be found that it would be childlike and natural for her to follow her companions and to pay no close attention to surrounding conditions. For these reasons it can not be said as matter of law that the plaintiff's failure either to look and ascertain if a car was coming, or to listen for the ringing of the gong, or to fully appreciate the possibility that cars passing the crossing would run at such speed that she might be struck before she passed over the track, was contributary negligence. Upon the evidence a jury could find that the plaintiff was in the exercise of such care as might be expected of the ordinary prudent child of her age, and there must be a new trial."

AS A REWARD

JOHN D. DICKIE MADE JANITOR OF NEW COURT HOUSE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

LAWRENCE, Sept. 3.—The statement that John D. Dickie had been appointed by the county commissioners, to the position of janitor of the new court house here occasioned much comment here yesterday. The question is asked if this is not a reward for Dickie's work in the last contest for the republican nomination between Commissioner Sawyer and Joseph E. Buswell of Methuen.

Dickie was a zealous worker for the former, and it is said took a prominent part in securing a portion of the delegates here for the candidate from the lower end of the county. The salary will be $1000, acording to the report.

PARTNER ARRESTED

SAMUEL BEEGEL HAS RETURNED TO HIS WIFE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Samuel Beegel, until recently a manufacturer of trunks, was sued some time ago by his wife for a separation and left town, as he sets forth in law papers filed in the supreme court yesterday, on the advice of his partner, Abraham Goldenblum, so as to escape paying alimony to his wife. Beegel returned to town a few weeks ago and affected a reconciliation with his wife. He asserts that he then discovered that his partner had, during his absence, sold out their business—the Eagle Trunk & Bag company.

Yesterday Steur & Hoffman, in behalf of Beegel, made an application to Justice Blanchard, in special term, part I., of the supreme court, to have a receiver appointed for the assets, outstanding accounts and effects of the copartnership conducted by Beegel & Goldenblum, pending the determination of a suit which Beegel has begun to compel Goldenblum to account to him for his share of the proceeds of the sale of the business.

Beegel sets forth in his complaint that his partner, in violation of their copartnership agreement and without his consent and against his wishes, sold and disposed of the entire stock and business of the copartnership and has since repeatedly refused to account to him—the plaintiff—for his share of the profits.

SECURITIES GONE

Well Known Clubman and $560,000 are Missing

By Associated Press to The Sun

BALTIMORE, Sept. 3.—Society and club circles were greatly excised yesterday by the announcement that William T. Tucker, connected with the firm of Tucker, Smith & Co., and a member of the Maryland, Baltimore and Elkridge clubs, had disappeared, and that $560,000 in securities of the estate of his father, the late Wesley A. Tucker ,is missing.

The securities had been deposited by his mother in a box in the vaults of the Mercantile trust and deposit company.

Tucker left Baltimore six weeks ago. Recently his mother was summoned from Europe by cable. She returned by the next steamer and, accompanied by one of her daughters, Mrs. George H. Glover of New York, and an officer of court having jurisdiction over the estate, went to the deposit company. It was necessary to break open the strong box as the mother did not have the key.

Then the startling revelation came that there was a defalcation amounting to $560,000, and that of all the property existing when given over to the care of William T. Tucker there was only $93,000 left.

It appears that Mrs. Tucker had absolute faith in her son and refused to credit stories of his dissipation, and was deaf as well to suggestions that the estate be taken out of his hands.

The implicit confidence placed in him is demonstrated by the fact that he was authorized to open the safe deposit box alone, an exceptional privilege.

Tucker, who is 35 years old, had been plunging in stocks. Two women figure in his escapades. One went to Central America with him, but returned later.

Recently he was defendant in a suit brought by Miss Sarah G. Morris of Baltimore, who demanded $41,000 damages. Of this amount she declared that $2400 had been loaned by her to Tucker. She asked $25,000 for breach of promise and $10,000 for alleged assault.

To recover the $2400 suit was brought for $6000.

The woman who is said to have accompanied Tucker to Central America is said to have lived in South Baltimore. Acquaintances of Tucker do not even know her name and had never heard of her until recently.

The trust company was not in any way identified with the estate. Tucker was co-trustee with his mother.

It was a rule of the company to advise against co-trustees granting authority to each other to open safe deposit boxes which they jointly hold unless both were present. When Mrs. Tucker and her son gave notice of their arrangement, the management of the trust company advised against it, and has since adopted a rule by which no boxes can be rented to co-trustees under such terms.

Tucker was under no bonds, and there is no evident chance of recovering any of the losses to the estate. There is possibility of suit against a brokerage house which represented him in the sale of securities belonging to the estate, but no decision has been reached on this point.

The young man is understood to have left a written confession. It is also stated that he told the woman who went with him to Central America when they arrived there, that he was short in his accounts with the estate, and this caused her to return to Baltimore.

Information of Tucker's whereabouts was received by the family through this source.

In connection with the discovery of the shortage and disappearance of Tucker it is recalled that he was for a short time trustee of the estate of the late H. C. Smith. He held this place about a year, but heirs of the estate objected to him, and insisted that a corporate trusteeship be substituted. It was then arranged to place the Smith estate in the hands of the Safe Deposit and Trust company.

Mr. Smith was a partner of the late Wesley A. Tucker in the firm of Tucker, Smith & Co. William T. Tucker is the only surviving son of Wesley A. Tucker. The estates of Wesley A. Tucker and H. C. Smith were worth about $650,000 each.

OFFICERS CHOSEN

By the Army of the Philippines

By Associated Press to The Sun

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 3.—The National Society of the Army of the Philippines yesterday elected the following officers:

President, Gen. Charles King, Wis.; first vice president, Col. J. W. Pope, Colo.; Secretary, E. A. Fowle, Missouri; treasurer, J. E. White, Illinois; chaplain, Captain James M. Malley, Nebraska.

Aside from the election of officers, the feature of the day was the parade which was participated in, not only by the Philippine veterans, but by the local G. A. R. posts. The reunion came to a close yesterday with a camp fire at the People's church. Gov. Van Zant made an address on behalf of the state, and Gen. Irving Hale, retiring president of the Army of the Philippines, responded. Gen. Hale said:

"The society is founded on a just war, humanely waged, with honest administration and a glorious result to all concerned, in the most unique experience in the history of the nation.

"A year ago we were smarting from mosquito-like attacks on the army of the Philippines by follow-patriots and statesmen in this country—some from sincere but mistaken motives of humanity and others from political demagogery, using the army as a club to assassinate the administration in facing its duty and the responsibility in the Philippines. But the army found valiant defenders in its commander-in-chief, the president, the secretary of war and the great majority of the people. Today the mosquitoes are practically exterminated, as the American people have always eradicated unjust traducers of the American soldiers in the performance of his duty.

"Investigation has proved that the improprieties committed in the Philippines were remarkably few under the provocation and that the army, in the face of maddening hardships and difficulties and exasperating treachery and savagery, has conducted a war so humane in general that it has astonished the observers of foreign nations and even the Filipinos themselves. Whether or not the constitution technically follows the flag, that flag wherever it floats has brought and always will bring humanity, justice, civilization and good government.

THE CANDIDATES

Ticket Named by Pennsylvania Democrats

By Associated Press to The Sun

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 3.—The democratic state convention yesterday nominated the following ticket by acclamation:

Auditor General: Senator Arthur G. Dewalt, of Lehigh county.

State treasurer, Senator Joel H. Hill of Wayne county.

Judges of the superior court, Ex-Judge Calvin Reyburn, of Armstrong county and John A. Ward of Philadelphia.

The platform adopted is briefer than the usual democratic declaration of principles and is devoted entirely to state issues. The greater part of it deals with the last legislature and its work and the conduct of the state government.

The convention was well attended for an "off-year" in state politics.

SEEN AND HEARD

Four wagons loaded with stoves passed through Market and Prescott streets yesterday and one man exclaimed: "There goes a few gentle reminders of the coal famine."

The spurious and well appointed residence now being congructed at the corner of Gates and Westford streets will be occupied by the owner, Mr. Breen, the Chelmsford street furniture dealer.

A dog with a wild eye and a tail that he liked to chase caused somewhat of a panic at the corner of Market and Central streets yesterday afternoon. The majority of those who watched him chase his tail thought the dog was mad. A newsboy was the first to holler "mad dog," and in less time than it takes to tell it the dog had the street to himself. Men, women and children vacated the place in a hurry. When the dog tired of chasing his tail he lay down on the sidewalk and slept as sweetly innocent as though nothing had happened. It evidently didn't occur to him that he had been causing heart failure.

The sidewalks in different parts of the city are being repaired. This would hardly fit in as a news item but I want to say that piles of sand here and rocks there when you're in a hurry to get somewhere is a dern nuisance. The repairs, however, are needed and the inconvenience that the good citizen suffers while the work is going on is soon forgotten and the smoothness of the new sidewalk is much appreciated.

Some of the most prominent business men in the city were witnesses in a Larceny case in police court Wednesday. They were men that had been caught by two young fellows who represented themselves as collecting agents for Freight Handlers' union of the Boston & Maine railroad. In summing up Judge Hadley told the prominent business men that they ought to be more cautious about paying out money. "Inquire into the situation before you pay the money," said his honor, and the prominent business men looked just a little bit sheepish.

Letter to J. J. KERWIN, Lowell, Mass.:

Dear Sir:—As your business is to get people into and out of trouble, suppose you consider their paint; it makes 'em almost as much trouble as money, except of course matrimony.

They buy poor paint a good deal; they don't mean to; they don't know any better; they buy without thinking. Bad paint isn't good. It looks good enough for a year; then begins to get rusty; but changes so slowly, one don't notice it.

Looking isn't all. The business of paint is to keep a house dry inside, the wood and iron of it; keep it from rotting and rusting. Takes good paint to do it.

Good and bad paint are sold at one price or about that. One can't go by the price at all; as with lawyers, the price has nothing to do with goodness or badness; and costs are worse yet; the painter and sheriff come in for their share.

But the probability is that a man, who paints Devoe, will come out on top.

Yours truly,

F. W. DEVOE & CO.

RECEIVER NAMED

Misapplication of Funds is Claimed

STREET RAILWAYS ASKED FOR SETTLEMENT

Creditors for $300,000 Assented to

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3.—Rufus B. Dodge of Worcester was yesterday appointed receiver of the Pinehurst park and the Overlook hotel properties, which have been run in connection with the Worcester & Southbridge street railway company.

The railway company went into the hands of receivers Saturday. The appointment of Mr. Dodge was made by Chief Justice Mason in the equity session of the superior court on application of the two railway receivers, Charles M. Thayer of Worcester and John A. Hall of Southbridge, who, by order of the court, are not only receivers for the Worcester company, but also for the Worcester, Rochdale & Charlton Depot street railway company.

The park and hotel properties were pleasure resorts to which the cars of the company were run. They were purchased and improved, it is claimed, with the money of the company by Wilford A. Bailey, while he served as treasurer of the corporation.

The court gave a brief hearing on the motion of receivers Hall and Thayer for the appointment of a receiver for the park and hotel. Mr. Hall said he and Mr. Thayer had concluded after an investigation of the affairs of the company that part of the money used for building and improving Overlook and Pinehurst had been raised on notes of the, Worcester & Southbridge street railway company. They supposed it was the purpose of Treas. Bailey to take in and manage the properties in connection with management of the company. But before the step could be taken the collapse came, preventing Mr. Bailey from carrying out his intention. The receivers claim an equitable interest in the properties.

The hotel is in Charlton and the park is a picnic ground a short distance outside of Worcester. There is a hotel in the park, which is well furnished.

The court was informed that attachments were threatened and unless the properties were placed in the hands of a receiver they would be greatly injured.

Creditors representing claims for more than $300,000 assented to the appointment of Mr. Dodge as receiver. His bond was fixed at $50,000.

CAUSE OF THE MOVE

CLAIMED FUNDS OF STREET RAILWAY WERE MISAPPLIED.

By Associated Press to The Sun

WORCESTER, Sept. 3—The rumors regarding the misapplication of the funds of the Worcester & Southbridge and the Worcester, Rochdale & Charlton Depot street railway companies by ex-Treasurer Wilford A. Bailey, which have been in circulation for the past few days, were borne out last night by a statement by Charles M. Thayer, one of the receivers of the companies, after the appointment of Rufus B. Dodge as receiver for the Pinehurst park and Overlook hotel properties had been announced.

While these two ventures have been run in connection with the street railway companies they have been developed by Mr. Bailey and stand in the name of Charles A. Hamilton, a young lawyer in the office of Charles M. Thayer, who used to be Mr. Bailey's counsel before the trouble developed. Mr. Bailey has claimed that the big properties were being managed by the Worcester & Southbridge development company, which was made up of 15 wealthy men, but the identity of these men remains a mystery, he having refused repeatedly, it is said, to tell who they were.

The investigation of the affairs of the street railway companies, it is stated, shows there is something wrong with the funds, and Mr. Thayer told the court, according to his statement to a correspondent, that the receivers think that money raised for the street railway has been put into Overlook and Pinehurst properties.

The receivers of the street railway companies believe the companies are equitably entitled to this money, but just how much is not known, and they asked for the receiver to guard their interests as well as the interests of the other creditors. They do not know what their rights are in opposition to Mr. Bailey's creditors, and they want the matter straightened out.

Mr. Dodge filed his bond for $50,000 last night and took possession of the park and hotel today. When asked what he intended to do with them he said he might run them until the end of the present summer season, because he understands they are being well patronized.

CIGARETTE SELLING

FOUND TO BE A COSTLY BUSINESS.

By Associated Press to The Sun

FRANKLIN, N. H., Sept. 3.—The war on sellers of cigarettes to minors continued yesterday, when three more local dealers appeared to answer to the complaint. Antonio Fraucht and Fred Massa pleaded not guilty, but Judge Clifford found against them and each paid fines of $10 and costs of $5.62. James J. Cunningham, proprietor of the Ocean Wave cafe, pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $10 and costs of $4.62.

UNDER A CARPET

RELATIVES FOUND MORE THAN $6000.

By Associated Press to The Sun

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Sept. 3—Mrs. Elizabeth J. Foye, who died at her home here several weeks ago, was known to be well off financially, but no trace of her money was found until this week. Her relatives made a thorough search and succeeded in unearthing more than $6000.

Under a carpet they found a large amount, and an old stovepipe yielded considerable more silver and bills. The relatives think there is still much more money left, and are making a systematic search of the old house. Mrs. Foye was considered very peculiar, and resided alone for years.

$10,000 STAKE

Was Won by Speedy Star Hal

5000 PEOPLE GATHERED TO SEE THE RACE

The Finish Was a Close One

By Associated Press to The Sun

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 3—A record-breaking crowd of 15,000 people, attracted by the supreme contest of the grand circuit meeting here—the $10,000 stake for 2.30 class pacers—gathered yesterday at Narragansett park and saw Star Hal, a brown horse owned by W. L. Snow of Harmellville, N. Y., capture the race and the purse in three straight heats. Seven horses faced the starter, King Direct being favorite, with Elodie Pointer second choice. Before the horses had reached the first quarter Star Hal took the pole and led a procession to the head of the stretch, where he was overhauled by Miss Williams and King Direct, the latter driven by Geers. The finish saw the three horses so nearly abreast that the judges decision was necessary to convince the crowd that Star Hal was the winner. King Direct fought for supremacy through the entire second heat, but he was obliged to take second place to Star Hal, who won by a narrow margin in 2.09¾, the fastest time made during the day.

The card of the day consisted of four races and the unfinished 2.19 trot of Tuesday in which Navidad and Cola Direct each had two heats to their credit. Navidad took the deciding heat and the race in masterly fashion.

Camden, the favorite in the 2.25 trot, captured the first two heats without difficulty and the third after a struggle with Tiger. The former had to cover the mile in 2.11¾. The 2.30 trot with 10 starters and the 2.13 pace with 12, furnished the surprises of the day, outsiders winning both. In the latter race Frank Wilson, the favorite, was drawn after he had gone two miles, because of illness. Johnny Wiseman, a Wilkes horse owned in Concord, N. H., after coming sixth in the first heat, got the next two and the race in driving finishes with Rockport and Knox's Gelatine Lad.

His praise of Mayor Johnson of Cleveland as the democratic standard bearer in Ohio was received with marked demonstration. Immediately after the meeting, Mr. Bryan left for New York and announced that he would be in Ohio again next month to make a number of speeches in support of the democratic ticket.

BULGARIANS ARE BLAMED FOR THE AFFAIR

Boat Was Sailing Towards Constantinople

By Associated Press to The Sun

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3.—Three explosions occurred yesterday on the Austrian steamer Vaskapu soon after leaving the Bulgarian port of Burgas en route for Constantinople, by which 29 persons perished. The vessel caught fire and had to be beached.

A telegram conveying this news was received by the agent here of the Hungarian Levant line, to which the Vaskapu belongs. The telegram said the Vaskapu has been destroyed in the Black sea.

The captain and officers of the steamer and six of her crew were killed, a total of 29 lives being lost.

The Vaskapu sailed from Varna, Bulgaria, and after calling at Burgas was steaming through the Black sea to Constantinople, when three explosions took place on board.

The deck of the vessel took fire and she had to be run ashore at Misivria bay, 18 miles north of Burgas, where she is still burning.

The Vaskapu belonged to the Hungarian Levant steamship company of Fiume, Austria, and has been engaged in the Black Sea service. She was built in Newcastle in 1891 and was a steamer of 1076 tons. She was 260 feet long and 36 feet beam and a depth of 16.2 feet.

REPORT DENIED

That There Was Uprising in Macedonia

THOUSANDS OF BULGARIANS CONFRONTED WITH FAMINE

An Eight Hour Fight at Smilovo

By Associated Press to The Sun

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Sept. 3—The report published by the Dnevnik of a general rising in Northern Macedonia is denied both in official and revolutionary circles. Well informed persons, however, assert that the report was correct, but that its premature publication disarmed the plans of the revolutionists and, therefore, it is denied.

According to rebel reports from Monastir thousands of Bulgarians in that vilayet are confronted with famine in addition to Turkish persecution. Peasants who are continuously arriving from Monastir complain of the attitude of Hilmi Pasha and the Turkish atrocities.

The news is published here of an eight hour fight which occurred at the village of Smilovo Aug. 26 between 500 insurgents and eight battalions of Turkish troops supported by artillery. Thirty five insurgents are reported to have been killed, while 60 Turks were killed or wounded. On the following day the Turks returned and burned the village. Seven other villages in the neighborhood are said to have also been burned by the Turks.

According to a Macedonian dispatch Aug. 30, the Bulgarian insurgents sustained a serious reverse at Smilovo Aug. 28, when ten of them were said to have been killed, while the Turkish losses were insignificant.

CONANT'S SALE

OF THE J. H. BURKE & CO., ESTATE YESTERDAY.

Conant & Co., had a very successful auction sale of eighteen parcels of real estate, the property of J. H. Burke & Co., yesterday. The sale was conducted under an agreement for the dissolution of partnership and was in every way successful, the attendance being large and the prices obtained higher than were anticipated.

The bidding was fast and sharp enough, upon everything but the vacant land. The six parcels of renting property brought $24,655, or $2727 more than their assessed value. The vacant lands did not bring their assessed values. We append herewith the full list of the properties, the purchasers of the same, and the prices that were realized. The Critchett land in Dracut brought $155, and its purchaser was C. E. Guthrie. The large block at the corner of Coburn and West Third streets, in which are the stores which have been occupied by the owners, was bought by Thomas F. Morris for $10,000. Druggists say they have never handled a medicine that gave such universal satisfaction.

Paw Paw gives new life and strength to the stomach so that it digests everything that goes into it; its effect upon the nerves is marvellous, it seems to relieve them of all strain and irritation. For insomnia it is proving a great blessing, as scores of people declare that Paw Paw soothes and quiets the nerves so that one can enjoy a good night's rest and get up in the morning feeling strong and refreshed.

Professor Munyon especially asks every weak and debilitated person to try his Paw Paw remedy. He says it makes old folks feel young and weak folks feel strong. That it will take away all need and desire for alcoholic stimulants. Alcoholic drink lifts but lets you fall. Paw Paw lifts and holds you, it gives exhilaration without intoxication.

On sale at all druggists. Price $1.00 (pint bottle). Paw Paw Pills 25c a bottle.

ON WINDOW LEDGE

PORTER OF A HOTEL WENT TO SLEEP.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Hermann Schwartz, a porter on the 19th floor of the American tract society building, went to sleep on a narrow ledge, less than three feet across, and 260 feet above the street, yesterday.

A crowd gathered on the street below to watch him as he lay snoring 19 floors above the sidewalk.

Finally someone notified Supt. Roberts of the tract building, and he sent his head porter up there. The window was raised and the porter and Roberts seized Hermann by the collar and dragged him inside the window.

"What's the matter?" gasped Herman, as he landed inside the office with a thump. "So long's my work is done, can't I take a nap?"

Now Hermann is looking for another job.

GAS EXPLOSION

MADE EVERY BANANA JUMP OUT OF ITS SKIN.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BOSTON, Sept. 3—John Marchi and F. M. Stanelo occupy the basement at 150 Commercial street as a banana ripening conservatory. The cellar is heated by a gas stove, and last night at 6 Marchi lighted the gas in the stove, twirled the plump, green bunches about a bit, and went home.

There was a little, imperceptible leak in the gas pipe. The stove worked steadily, the bananas stretched their skins in the tropical heat, and the tiny little leak spurted out the thinnest hair streak of combustible gas.

The gas stuck to the top of the cellar as long as there was room, then it was forced lower and lower until it met the stove.

That was at 9.40 and the explosion came at exactly the same second.

It was loud enough to scare the dwellers in Fleet street, two blocks below. It blew out the cellar door and hoisted it up the steps on to the sidewalk. It set the Marchi-Stanelo partition in the cellar afire, but two boys put that out with a cupful of water.

A passing citizen pulled in an alarm from box 15, but the fire was out when the department arrived.

The force of the explosion was sufficient to blow out the window of the Park sausage and provision company on the ground floor, and to blow out the front of its front door. The door still held by the top hinges, however.

The curious thing about the explosion was that it skinned all the bananas in the cellar.

PLAYED "ROBBER"

JOHNNY LANGER CAME NEAR BEING HANGED.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Johnny Langer, 6 years old, was sentenced to be hanged until he was dead, in Union Hill, yesterday, for being a "robber."

Had not his mother arrived on the scene at an opportune moment the child would probably have paid the penalty.

Johnny's playmates, about a dozen of them, all under 12 years old, had already strung him up by a clothes line attached to the top of a grocery wagon, and his body hung limp and almost lifeless.

The boys had been playing "cops and robbers," and Jimmy was one of the "robbers."

"I had been to the grocery store," said the mother, "and was returning home when several children ran toward me shouting, 'O, Mrs. Langer, they're hanging Johnny.'

"I was horrified upon reaching the wagon to see that the boys had a clothesline tied about my child's neck. And they were just pulling away at it as if it was fun. It's lucky I was there, or I am sure he would have been choked to death. I wouldn't tell my husband about this for worlds. I'm sure he'd murder some of those kids if I did."

FELL FROM BRIDGE

FRANK JONES, AGED 12, DROWNED WHILE FISHING.

By Associated Press to The Sun

BRAINTREE, Sept. 3.—Frank Jones, the 12 year old son of Mrs. Jennie Jones of Hancock street, was drowned in the paper mill pond at South Braintree just before noon yesterday.

The Jones boy, in company with another lad named Ralph Blanchard, were fishing at the pond, but at different points. The Jones boy sat on a small bridge, and it is supposed he slipped off.

Blanchard says he did not see Jones fall and the first he knew his companion was missing was when he found Jones' cap and fishing rod floating in the water.

A searching party recovered the body about two hours after the alarm was given. The body was viewed by Medical Examiner J. C. Fraser of Weymouth.

William T. Wade of Perry street is spending his vacation at his old home, Lewiston, Me.

14,000 TROOPS

Will Take Part in Big Encampment

By Associated Press to The Sun

JUNCTION CITY, Kas., Sept. 3.—The plans for the big camp at Fort Riley during the manoeuvres show that it will be one of the most spectacular ever planned. The 14,000 troops that are to participate will be encamped on the Republican river flats just north of Junction City in the form of a gigantic fan, which will have the apex near the bluffs half a mile farther north of the town. At the apex of the camp will be the headquarters of the commanding general and his staff.

On the ribs of the fan will be encamped in regimental formation, the various regiments and battalions of cavalry, infantry, engineers and signal corps, and the batteries of artillery composing the division of manoeuvres. Streets will divide the camps and form, when tents are pitched, the ribs of the fan.

This form of encampment will enable the commanding general to be at all times within easy communication with all parts of the camp. An extensive line of water pipes will be held at the camp site before the arrival of the troops.

The space between the headquarters of the commanding general and the camp of the various organizations will be large enough for a review of the troops that will be assembled on the reservation for the manoeuvres.

GUILTY OF CONTEMPT

ASSISTANT STATE ATTORNEY SENTENCED TO JAIL.

By Associated Press to The Sun

CHICAGO, Sept. 3.—Frederick L. Barnett, assistant state attorney, must spend ten days in the county jail and pay a fine of $50 for contempt of court unless he successfully appeals from a decision of Judge Kavanaugh yesterday afternoon.

He is accused of contempt in having assisted in carrying the arrest of Walter E. Hoyt, a playwright, after he had been freed on habeas corpus.

Hot times took place between Judge Kavanaugh and Mr. Barnett Tuesday and yesterday in a new habeas corpus hearing for Hoyt, and after the court had again freed the playwright he sentenced Mr. Barnett.

Thomas J. Howard, a detective, and Louis Houilon, messenger for the governor of Ohio, were each committed for 10 days. Mr. Barnett and the other defendants gave notice of appeal and a bond for their appearance today.

Judge Kavanagh declared in an oral opinion that the defendants had shown an "open, wilful and flagrant defiance of the court." He declared the writ of habeas to be the highest right in this country.

JOHN H. BOOTH

ONCE FIGURED IN A CELEBRATED CASE.

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 3.—John H. Booth of Meriden, who has confessed to robbing the International silver company of thousands of dollars' worth of bullion silver, the police yesterday recognized as the man who was arrested just 40 years ago in connection with the robbery of the Townsend bank of this city of $90,000 in cash and bonds.

Though alleged at that time to have received from Cashier Jeremiah Townsend, who robbed the bank, $6000 of the booty, nothing was ever proved against Booth. Cashier Townsend was sent to state prison and Booth was released.

Booth at the time of the bank robbery lived with his sister, Mary Booth, in this city. Afterward, he removed to Meriden and lived with his family until his recent arrest.

FRAUD RAMPANT

Charge Made by Republican Congressman

By Associated Press to The Sun

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 3.—Representative Frank Wachter of Maryland declares the entire federal service is honeycombed with corruption and incompetency, and he proposes to introduce a resolution for the investigation of every department of the government at the next session of congress.

"Every one who has been brought into close contact with the departments knows these things," he said, "and it is time that we had a general housecleaning."

Wachter is a republican and was recently defeated for the office of mayor of Baltimore. In addition to the postal scandal and the Indian land frauds, involving another department and agricultural officials, it is charged that there was a collusion between the seed contractor and the inspectors, and the department of justice has several officials who are accused of complicity in the Indian land frauds.

Customs scandals and irregularities in the letting of contracts have been mentioned often in connection with the treasury department, including the customs scandal in Porto Rico.

The charge has been made that the war and navy departments were controlled by cliques for their personal benefit.

$250,000 SUIT

Son of Millionaire Dolan the Defendant

By Associated Press to The Sun

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—Argument in a legal motion yesterday before Justice Blanchard in special term, part 1, of the supreme court, disclosed the fact that about a year ago Clarence W. Dolan of Philadelphia, who is a son of Thomas Dolan, the street car line promoter and wealthy manufacturer, was sued by Josephine Martin for $250,000 for breach of promise of marriage. The argument, which for the first time made public the fact that young Mr. Dolan had been sued for breach of promise of marriage, also disclosed that he settled the suit by paying Miss Martin's counsel $7500.

The facts came out in connection with an application which David Hirschfield, now counsel for Miss Martin, made to Justice Blanchard for the issuance of an order adjudging Dethlef C. Hansen, counsel for the plaintiff in her suit against Mr. Dolan for alleged breach of promise, to be in contempt of court for the alleged failure to pay Miss Martin $568 which she asserted he had failed to turn over to her and which she said she was entitled to as part of her share of the $7500 which Mr. Dolan paid to settle her suit.
